Congress Roars Yes. Quick Action, Plenty of It. Why Drag Us In? Germany Worries France.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WHEREVER WE may be going we are moving in a hurry. The President asked Congress:

"May I cut down the value of the national dollar, double the price of gold, take for Uncle Sam all the gold in the country? And may I borrow ten thousand million dollars this year to help the idle and revive business?"

The House roars yes, by a vote of three hundred and sixty to forty, as though the President had asked:

"May I have a match?"

REPUBLICANS complain, demand more time to fight and protest, but they are swept aside. They had their chance, sat still and did nothing.

Now they must watch someone who does NOT sit still and do nothing.

THE SENATE will approve the action of the House. This is no time for gentlemen on the public payroll to say "NO."

The people want action, quick and plentiful, and do not care how the bill will be paid.

One thing is certain, if this government insists on putting out ten billion dollars' worth of new yellow, interest-bearing bonds, costing taxpayers for interest four or five hundred million dollars a year and perhaps more, as government credit falls, there will be trouble ahead.

ONCE MORE be it said, the government, instead of insisting on bond issues and gigantic interest payments, could and should issue its own currency and pay bills with that.

The government's promise to pay, on green paper bearing no interest, would be exactly as good as its promise to pay—plus interest—on yellow paper. And issuing currency, instead of a crippling bond issue, would help government credit.

A government, free of a four or five hundred million dollar annual interest load, would have better credit than with that annual interest burden added to its other obligations.

WHO ARE the congenital usurers, money lenders and interest grabbers that persuade the President to issue bonds, instead of currency?

If the currency would be "INFLATION," then the bonds would be inflation, plus the added inflation of ten billions in interest charges, added to the ten billions of principal, before the debt could be paid off. An unnecessary interest burden might be the last straw on Uncle Sam's back, leading to a real smash and a dollar really cheap.

HERRIOT, former French prime minister, in an article written for Universal Service, says war is surely coming in the East, because of Japan's need for more room to expand and make surplus population comfortable. He says the world expects to see "three great powers, the United States, Soviet Russia and Japan enter into conflict."

Why insist on pushing us in? What have we done to deserve a war? Did we not send men and billions enough last time? Have we ever made any serious attempt to collect from the welching Europeans?

WILL ANY Englishman, Frenchman, Italian or other suggest that, if we were in trouble, any foreign nation would send as much as one man or one dollar here?

If war comes, it will be between Japan and Russia. The latter is now a buffer between Asia and Europe.

Russia would show what revolution, Lenin and Stalin have done for her, and Japan, afraid of nobody, would learn the difference between revolutionary Russia and the Russia of the Czars. It would be a considerable difference.

GERMANY'S NAZI government shows that two million men, formerly idle, have recently been put to work.

The Paris Temps says many of them are in factories adapted to manufacturing war material, and:

"Germany today possesses the most powerful war-equipment machine on the earth and Germany could put on the battlefield twice as many trained men as France could muster."

With airplanes able to smother the armies, that, you may say, would mean little.

BUT GERMANY now has a great flying fleet, that could be changed to a fighting, bombing fleet over-night. Stocks in factories able to make war material have risen violently in price on the German stock exchange, which according to Herriot means that Germany expects to use them, to the limit and soon.

Many men have suddenly been put to work in such factories.

Germany has twenty aircraft factories, against eight in Britain, and could produce twenty-five hundred new bombing and pursuit planes every month. Unpleasant war possibilities there.

Many new German air fields have been equipped near the French border. It is one thing to win a war, another thing to keep out of the next war.

LUCKILY, by the time that next war comes this nation will owe so much money that even Europe would hardly have the heart to borrow from us.

When the big war started Uncle Sam was in debt one little billion of outstanding bonds. Now he owes twenty-five billions and more, and is about to

HIGHBALL DEATH CASE OPENS

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 22.—Did Dr. Sara Ruth Dean, comely 33-year-old baby specialist, gripped by a frenzy of jealousy, give her lover, Dr. John Preston Kennedy, surgeon, a fatal dose of poison in a whisky highball?

The state today, arraigning the woman physician on a charge of murder, asserted she did.

Dr. Dean declares she did not.

Pale from the effects of an illness that caused a judge to order her released on $10,000 bond, though charged with murder, the woman physician stood before the bar today and re-asserted her innocence of the accusation the surgeon allegedly whispered as he lay dying.

If a jury decides Dr. Dean placed poison in a highball given the surgeon at a "farewell" party in her apartments, sending him to death in order to keep Dr. Kennedy from returning to his divorced wife, she faces a possible penalty of death on the gallows.

2nd Swindle Faces French Government

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—A new financial scandal faced France today with the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Georges Alexandre, director and founder of the Civil Servants Bank and other companies, accused of embezzling $15,000,000.

Search was launched for Alexandre when police learned he had disappeared. Investigation into his financial activities started in 1930.

POLICE DRIVE TO CAPTURE KIDNAPERS

Activity Hints Possible Contact With Gang; Father Absent

ST. PAUL, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Unusual activity by police and members of the Bremer family today provoked renewed speculation over whether contact with the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy banker, abducted for $200,000 ransom, was impending.

Walter Magee, friend of the Bremers, could not be found. He is the man who received the first and only note from the kidnapers shortly after Bremer was seized about 8:30 a. m. last Wednesday.

At the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company, of which Adolph Bremer, the victim's father, is principal owner, the telephone line of the personal friend of President Roosevelt was kept clear by the company's operator.

ALL SLEUTHS BUSY

Police headquarters was virtually deserted by the detectives who have lounged about deferring efforts to apprehend the abductors at the request of the elder Bremer. One officer said "this is the last night of this," referring to inactivity.

Adolph Bremer, it was believed, might be the medium through which the kidnapers planned to arrange a rendezvous for payment of the ransom, since Magee, the first selection, has been constantly watched by law enforcement officers working on the case.

The latest development came after the 123rd hour had passed without word from the kidnapers and as despair had crushed hopes for early release of the 37-year-old owner of the Commercial State Bank.

HUNT FOR TRUCK

An hour later, with Magee and the elder Bremer still absent, Minneapolis police broadcast an order to all squad cars to pick up a small truck seen downtown with three men in the cab and a fourth lying on the floor of the rear of the vehicle.

Simultaneously, orders to bring in everyone with underworld connections were issued by Fred Ohman, captain of Minneapolis detectives, in the hope questioning might glean some information concerning the Bremer kidnapers.

Several Minneapolis men were linked with the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping by possession of part of the ransom money.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars through its state commander, John B. Ladue, St. Paul, today offered aid to the Bremer family in the hunt for the abductors.

Kidnap Search Spur By President Denied

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt has ordered no extraordinary federal activity in the Bremer kidnaping case, it was stated at the White House today.

There are standing orders at the Department of Justice, it was explained, that federal operatives will give full and immediate cooperation to local officers in kidnaping cases, and this was done in the Bremer case.

DR. WYNEKOOP ASKS TRIAL BE ENDED

Ill Woman Physician Yields to Appeal Of Children

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop gave up today and too weary to struggle for vindication, submitted to the pleas of her children that she ask her trial for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, to be halted.

After a conference in the prison with the principals in the case including her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, who is fearful her mother will die in jail, the 62-year-old defendant signed a petition to the court asking a mistrial.

Judge Joseph B. David had put it up to her, after argument over medical reports on her precarious health. He said:

"It is her life in jeopardy. She has a right to know the full situation and decide whether or not she will take the risk of death."

The Judge appeared willing to grant the petition, but state's attorneys asked delay in his decision while "certain matters" were discussed, and a recess was granted.

When the session resumes, it is believed, a counter-proposal that Dr. Wynekoop be brought to court in a wheelchair will be argued. This the Judge has indicated he does not deem prejudicial to the state's case, but the prosecutor has bitterly opposed the suggestion, as he has the discontinuance of the trial.

Up to now, Dr. Alice had insisted she would go on with the trial, even if it killed her.

But when she was asked today if she wanted to go on, flying in the face of medical reports that it would be dangerous, she said:

"My whole interest in life is my children—they should be consulted."

JAP AIMS SPUR U. S. NAVY PLAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Chairman Vinson, of the Naval Committee, predicted to the House today that Japan would insist upon a fleet as big as America's when present treaties expire, and asked approval of a $380,000,000 United States Naval building program.

Denying that this government has any intention of engaging in an armament race, Vinson urged a five-year program to bring the United States fleet up to present treaty limits by 1939.

The London treaty expires December 31, 1936, he reminded, adding:

"Japan has made clear that she will be dissatisfied with a navy smaller than those of Great Britain and the United States, so it seems unlikely that she will agree to continue the existing ratio when the present treaty expires."

PREDICTS FULL STRENGTH

With an "adequate" navy, Vinson said, "the welfare of the United States will depend on our-

Europe Expects Debt Slash If Congress Gives President Right to Negotiate on Tariffs

The article following is the first of five articles by William Hillman, London representative and chief of staff of the European correspondents of the Hearst papers.

Mr. Hillman has exceptional knowledge of European affairs, extensive acquaintance with government officials in various countries, and prolific sources of information.

Europe knows much more about the acts and purposes of the American government than the American people know.

Mr. Hillman's articles, which are entirely accurate, will probably give the American people, and the American Congress, too, for that matter, a clearer insight into the attitude and objectives of the Washington administration than can be obtained from news sources here at home.

The facts related by Mr. Hillman are all obtained from state documents or authoritative statements of foreign government officials.—Editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

DRASTIC REDUCTION of war debts—the big bad wolf of international politics—threatens to slink into Washington disguised as presidential authority to negotiate TARIFF RECIPROCITY AGREEMENTS.

Unless war debts are SPECIFICALLY EXCLUDED BY CONGRESS from the mandate which the President hopes to obtain from Congress, tariff negotiations conducted by the Executive with the principal European debtors of the United States WILL BE SWIFTLY TRANSFORMED INTO NEGOTIATIONS TO REDUCE WAR DEBTS.

It is admitted the Executive has in mind the "PROBABILITY" of discussing war debts.

It is considered inevitable that European countries owing billions of dollars to the United States will raise the question of war debts in connection with the favorable balance of trade which the United States enjoys and has enjoyed for some years vis-a-vis the principal European debtors. It is stated that only executive authority acting "realistically" and WITHOUT THE HAMPERING INTERFERENCE OF OPEN DEBATE can handle effectively this "delicate" question.

Furthermore unless they are careful, the three little pigs—right of Congress to deal with war debts, right of the Senate to deal with foreign relations, and right of Congress in the final resort to determine the basic monetary and fiscal policies of the country—may find themselves blown away by the extraordinary executive powers contained in some new deal monetary program.

For in any currency and monetary scheme, permitting the Executive alone to determine all the conditions of a final and permanent stabilization of the dollar, THE QUESTION OF WAR DEBTS IS CERTAIN TO CREEP IN.

EVEN IF the President of the United States determined tomorrow that the dollar be immediately stabilized on a permanent basis he could not come to a world monetary agreement without being confronted with the British demand that the pound sterling CANNOT RETURN TO ANY PERMANENT BASIS WITHOUT THE "SETTLEMENT" OF WAR DEBTS.

And by "settlement," the British mean drastic REDUCTION of war debts.

And if Congress yields the right to decide the details of this phase of permanent stabilization, war debt reduction by executive authority will INEVITABLY follow.

Again on the question of tariffs, Europe declares:

The United States today enjoys a favorable balance of trade with Great Britain, France and Italy, the principal European debtors.

To grant the United States further trade concessions in Europe, Europe demands:

First—Scaling down of debts or CANCELLATION IF POSSIBLE.

SECOND—Further REDUCTIONS OF AMERICAN TARIFFS on foreign goods.

Great Britain points out that she purchases more from the United States than the United States buys from Great Britain. France says the balance of trade with the United States is overwhelmingly in favor of America.

On the question of stabilization, Great Britain declares that WAR DEBTS MUST FIRST BE ELIMINATED.

NOW EUROPE believes that these considerations find sympathetic understanding in Washington. For every indication Europe has had from Washington is that the administration is favorably disposed to reduce war debts—but that CONGRESS PRESENTS A HANDICAP.

Shortly after President Roosevelt assumed office, Europe was given to understand that the President intended to ask for full executive authority to negotiate tariff treaties IN ORDER TO TAKE THE FINAL SETTLEMENT OF WAR DEBTS OUT OF THE HANDS OF CONGRESS.

The most notable French statesman who visited Washington informed Paris that the President was planning to ask for such authority. This statesman was given to understand that it would be wiser for France to pay up the defaulted installment of December, 1932, to enable the President the more easily to conduct negotiations with the French for a reduction and "final settlement" of war debts.

The French were also given to understand by agents of the President that the White House was willing to be magnanimous with regard to the French "misstep" and was willing to consider the failure of France to pay in December, 1932, not as a default but as "deferment," provided the French immediately paid up this installment as a gesture to the new administration.

Further, the French were told that President Hoover, just before retiring from office, intended to issue a formal protest against the French default.

But President Hoover had been dissuaded from taking this action, the French were told by President Roosevelt. The President-elect had asked President Hoover not to em-

MAGISTRATE CONFIRMED FOR POST

Appointed By McNair After Council Rejects Malone

Police Magistrate Ralph E Smith today was named Public Safety Director by Mayor McNair and the appointment was confirmed unanimously by Council which a few minutes before had rejected James F. Malone.

Mayor McNair sat in crowded Council chamber and heard his own party associates, led by Councilman John Kane, block the confirmation of Malone.

The vote against Malone was five to four, Republican Councilman William J. Soost joining the four Democrats.

KANE APPLAUDED

When Malone's name was proposed in a letter from the Mayor, Kane rose to his feet and, in a speech applauded by the crowd, defied anybody to dictate to him how he should vote. He declared:

"I worked for the Mayor when there were very few people who thought he would become Mayor. I was a friend of the Mayor before many of these new friends ever heard of him. But I say that I will never be led into a position where any individual can tell me I have to do things.

"We were called into conference in the latter part of December and told that we had to vote for this appointment (Malone's) or we would be destroyed politically by being deprived of patronage.

"There is no man or no woman who can tell me what I have to do. There is no man alive who can browbeat me into action. If there is anyone who can drive me out of politics, my vote No! is a challenge for them to do it."

Councilman John M. Huston echoed Kane:

"I'm in full accord with every word Mr. Kane has uttered."

GALLAGHER FIRM

Councilman Thomas J. Gallagher added:

"When people tell us we've got to do a thing or be driven out of politics—or out of office—then we accept that as a challenge."

Soost chimed in by predicting that if Malone were named the

JOB SLASHES URGED ON COUNCIL

Mayor's Woman Aide Submits Plans to Balance Budget

Mayor William N. McNair today gave to City Council the recommendations of his financial adviser, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, containing enough proposed economies to balance the city budget. He then told Council the budget must balance. Proposed cuts in the present budget total $1,867,000.

Before a large crowd he read a message in which he urged that Mrs. Smith's recommendations be given "serious consideration."

The Mayor also had recommendations of his own for Council. He said:

"The citizens of this municipality expect us to run the city as economically as is possible without seriously hampering the services to which they are entitled.

BUDGET MUST BALANCE

"For this reason, the budget for 1934 must balance, and we must find the necessary funds during this year to meet the deficit of some $2,600,000 which we inherited from the former administration."

Other high points in the Mayor's speech were:

Income from special levies which Council is considering would not be used to balance the budget but to relieve the tax burdens on real estate and buildings.

Wages of skilled workers, some of whom have been getting $12.50 per day, should be reduced to a uniform rate of $7 per day.

He suggested a 5 per cent salary reduction for all persons employed by the city.

He favored the use of volunteer

BENEDUM GIVEN MELLON POST

W. L. Mellon was fired, so to speak, from his city job today and M. L. Benedum was named his successor by Mayor McNair. The job, non-paying, is membership on the City Art Commission.

In thus recognizing Benedum's services to the Democratic Party the Mayor seems to be encouraging a tradition. Mellon has been a financial angel of the Republican Party and Benedum fills the same role for the Democrats.

McNair named an entire new commission. Besides Benedum he chose Henry Hornbostel, Charles M. Stotz, Robert Schmertz, E. M. Ashe, Anthony Vittor and S. L. Benedito.

They replace Mellon, Edward B. Lee, William Boyd, Frederick Bigger, Homer Saint-Gaudens, Johanna K. W. Hailman and Albert C. Lehman.

Menjou to Marry Veree Teasdale

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Veree Teasdale and Adolphe Menjou plan to be married, probably next August, Warner Brothers studio today, coincident with the announcement that the actress had been placed under contract there.

Menjou is a player on the same lot. His divorce from his second wife, Kathryn Carver, will become final in August. His first wife was Katherine Tinsley. Miss Teasdale, niece of the late poet Sara Teasdale, was divorced from a Chicagoan. The couple expect to be married in Spain.

Boy Scout Founder Gains, Doctors Say

LONDON, Jan. 22—(AP.)—The condition of Sir Arthur Baden-Powell, 77, founder of the Boy Scout movement, was reported "satisfactory" here, and he was said to be resting more comfortably. Yesterday he underwent an operation, his second this month.

Dr. Johnston Dead, Link Air Hobby

Woman Physician's Chill on Flight Recalled

Avation—her only hobby—was a contributing cause of the death of Dr. Anna Johnston, noted homeopathic physician who died yesterday at her home, 5016 Liberty avenue, according to close friends.

Dr. Johnston had practiced medicine in the Bloomfield and Shadyside districts for 36 years. During that time she devoted herself, night and day, to helping the sick and aiding the missionary activities of the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church.

Seeking relaxation in a tour of Europe about five years ago, Dr. Johnston made her first flight in France and thereafter was a confirmed aviation fan, her friends recalled today. She once said:

"I'd rather ride in a plane than an auto any time."

Last summer she interrupted her professional work to fly to Chicago. In the air she became chilled, but at Chicago insisted upon riding 200 miles in an open automobile under a beating sun. Her collapse resulted.

For many years, Dr. Johnston was in charge of the children's ward at Homeopathic Hospital and for 10 years was treasurer of the Pennsylvania Homeopathic Medical Society of Allegheny County, and the Women's National Homeopathic Fraternity. She was also a member of the Criterion Club, the College Club, the American Institute of Homeopathy and the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church.

Noted for 36-Year Practice Here; Rites Set

She was born in Noblestown, Pa., and at one time taught school in the Bloomfield district. She leaves three brothers, W. H. and Dr. J. E. Johnston, of Pittsburgh, and Frank S. C. Johnston, of New Kensington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Shadyside United Presbyterian Church, with burial Wednesday morning in Hill Cemetery, near McDonald.

HINES FIGHTS LEGION MOVE FOR MORE LIBERAL VET RELIEF

DENIES HAYES' CHARGE OF TRICKERY

Soldiers Press Demand On Congress Despite Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—American Legion representatives today planned to press requests upon Congress for more liberal treatment of veterans, despite a sharp exchange of statements with the Veterans' Bureau in which each criticized the other.

One obstacle confronting the legion was an indication from the White House that President Roosevelt would seek to rally Democrats against going beyond his $21,000,000 liberalization of veterans' allowances. The legion is pressing for enactment of a four-point program to cost $80,000,000 a year.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, the veterans' administrator, last night described criticism of his estimates of the cost of the four-point program by Edward A. Hayes, legion commander, as "wholly uncalled for."

Hines said that before making estimates he had conferred with legion representatives and that there had been an apparent concurrence on the base of the estimates.

To a previous charge that Hines estimated was a "trick statement," he retorted that the legion has not "the technical experience which the making of estimates requires."

The controversy reached a boiling point when President Roosevelt issued an executive order last Friday to liberalize payments by $21,000,000. Hayes replied that this was not sufficient and that the Legion would continue to press for Congressional adoption of its proposed modifications.

Auxiliary Backs Legion Demand for Vet Benefits

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The national executive committee of the American Legion Auxiliary yesterday reaffirmed the auxiliary's support of the legion's full program of veterans' benefits.

Senator David A. Reed and Representative John E. Rankin, sponsors of the legion program, were informed of the committee's action by Mrs. William H. Biester, Jr., national president of the auxiliary.

PACT PROVIDES NEW SEACOAST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt sent to the Senate today a report from the Department of Commerce showing that the St. Lawrence seaway would create a new seacoast for the United States of 3,576 miles, reaching into the heart of the country.

Thirty American cities on the lakes would be converted into seaports and 26 of the 48 states would share in the extended coast line.

The report said the project would affect an area involving more than 35 per cent of the country's population.

Chairman Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced after a talk with President Roosevelt today that the with President Roosevelt today that the St. Lawrence waterways treaty would be laid aside in the Senate for emergency measures, including the monetary bill.

He predicted final action on the treaty at this session, however.

Riots in Athlone Mark O'Duffy's Visit

ATHLONE, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Wild fighting scenes marked the visit here yesterday of Gen. Eoin O'Duffy, leader of the outlawed Blueshirt party.

Civic guards swinging their batons charged twice into groups fighting on the outskirts of a meeting addressed by Gen. O'Duffy.

MELLON LISTED AS HOAX VICTIM

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Wealthy Americans who contributed to a "Gen. Pershing bust campaign" today learned they are victims of a hoax, as Alfred M. Layton, capital promoter, was held on charges of using the mails to defraud. He was unable to post a bond of $25,000.

Layton's arrest followed complaints by James A. Purcell, attorney for Gen. John J. Pershing. He said the name of the World War veteran was being used in a discreditable manner.

It was charged Layton had collected about $11,000 in a mail campaign for the Pershing bust committee, and converted the money to his own use. The campaign was approved by Gen. George O. Squier, and was to obtain funds with which to purchase a bust by the late Moses Dykaar, now in the National Gallery of Art.

Some of the donors to the "bust campaign" are:

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who came to Warm Springs for a week-end rest and quiet, adhered strictly yesterday to her determination to have a brief vacation from the activities of a President's wife.

Declining invitations and social suggestions, she spent a typically rural Sunday reading the newspapers in her cottage, resting and visiting informally about the Warm Springs community. She made no engagements and followed no routine or schedule.

Mrs. Roosevelt came unexpectedly to Warm Springs Friday. Her visit was so surprising that only officials here knew of her arrival. En route from Washington she stopped in Atlanta and visited the federal prison there.

AIR HEAD HINTS FOREIGN PLOT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Thomas B. Doe, president of Eastern Air Transport, Inc., in a statement yesterday, said that if the Senate air mail inquiry were pursued sufficiently it would bring to light the desire of certain foreign governments to throttle aviation in the United States.

Surface transportation interest, he charged, also are interested in the investigation, the findings of which have been "peddled up and down the country by disappointed seekers after mail contracts." He added:

"One fact to be brought out, is that the 11 contract mail lines are flying about 151,000 miles every 24 hours carrying mail, passengers and express, and about 60,000 miles of this flying is done at night, an accomplishment unequaled elsewhere in the world.

"It is possible that one of these days our military leaders will require every large commercial plane in the United States to transport troops, supplies and munitions to the Pacific Coast."

3 Bombings Mark Hard Coal Strike

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Three dynamitings, attributed by police to the strike of United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, today ushered in the second week of the walkout. Two of the bombings occurred in the Wilkes-Barre area, and the third in Peckville, near Scranton.

The latter explosion caused slight damage in what police said was an attempt to blow up a trestle at the Ontario mine of the Penn Anthracite Mining Company.

'CUT' DOLLAR BENEFITS TOLD TO SENATE

Home Owners, Debtors Would Be Aided, Warren Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—One of President Roosevelt's principal money advisors, Prof. George F. Warren, told the Senate banking committee today that home owners, farmers and debtors would realize "the greatest benefit" from the administration's monetary program.

He expressed his views to the committee conducting hearings preparatory to Senate action, while President Roosevelt went over the silver problem at a White House conference.

Indications grew that an effort would be made to attach silver legislation to the dollar-devaluation bill passed Saturday by the House.

WARREN QUESTIONED

The Cornell professor was questioned sharply about his contentions that the price of commodities was determined to a considerable extent by the price of gold.

Senator Walcott (Rep.), of Connecticut, asked if "we might be driven in. a period of extreme inflation" should the proposed two billion dollars stabilization fund fail.

Warren replied that every extreme inflation in the past had been preceded by government bankruptcy, violent revolution or a long period of war and that if this country drifted into that condition "it would be an unusual historical incident."

Walcott said he did not see how the fund could succeed.

QUIZ BY M'ADOO

Senator McAddo (Dem.), of California, said there was a great deal of misapprehension about the bill and asked Warren to state its "specific purpose" and tell what benefits would result from its enactment. Warren said:

"By cutting the gold content we can raise prices.

"Raised prices will make it easier for men to pay their debts. Business will start, profits will accrue. It becomes easier to pay taxes.

"Wages will rise, since business will start.

"The greatest benefit will be realized by the home owner, the farmer and other debtors.

"It will be of great benefit to holders of life insurance because while the policies will be of less value in the smaller dollar the companies will remain solvent."

Warren added that it would be "impossible" for America to pay its public and private debts without devaluing the dollar.

RECOGNITION OF CUBA BY U. S. SEEN NEAR

Roosevelt Ready To Act Within 24 Hours

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today notified the diplomats of Central and South America that he was ready to recognize the new Cuban government.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—President Roosevelt will recognize the new Cuban government of President Carlos Mendieta within the next 24 hours, International News Service learned today.

The President decided to extend recognition on the basis of representations of Secretary of State Hull and Jefferson Caffery, the President's personal representative at Havana.

Both Secretary Hull and Caffery feel that the fact that the army, navy and major political elements are supporting the Mendieta government is sufficient evidence to indicate the new regime will be capable of establishing reasonably permanent stability.

Decision of the President to extend immediate recognition was learned following the announcement by Secretary Hull that representatives of all the South American nations had been invited to confer with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House this afternoon.

JOHNSON SEES NO NRA CHANGE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—President Roosevelt today discussed with Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson current operations of the NRA in connection with the merchant and small business man.

Senators aligned with the progressive bloc last week criticized the NRA as tending to foster monopoly and drive "the little fellow" out of business.

On emerging from his conference with the President, Johnson revealed Mr. Roosevelt does not favor any changes in the law at this time. Both the President and the Administrator feel that the Executive's action of last week, in throwing open the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice to complainants, goes far enough in a corrective direction at the present time. Johnson said:

"We want to give these codes a chance to operate. Many of the codes have been in operation only three months and we want a chance to see the actual effects of their operation."

LOBBY RACKET WAR IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A bill to prohibit members of Congress from lobbying before government departments was introduced today by Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina.

Advisors of the President say he is in accord with the proposal by Byrnes, who is one of the administration leaders.

Because of the favorable attitude of the White House there is every expectation that Congress will enact far-reaching legislation regarding the law-lobby activities here.

Milk Control Board Named by Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today named the three members of the newly created milk control board which will have virtual czaristis powers over the state's controversial dairy situation.

The members named are Edward S. Stanford, Whitemarsh, Montgomery County; Howard C. Reynolds, Factoryville, Wyoming County, and John A. Barney, Erie. Stanford was designated chairman.

McKee to Open Law Office in Wall Street

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Joseph V. McKee, who ran for mayor last November with the indorsement of Postmaster General Farley, announced he would open offices in Wall street to resume his law practice. He is special counsel here for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

2 HELD IN FIRST BINGO RAID

Two men arrested in a raid on a bingo game were held for court by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in North Side Police Court today on charges of operating a lottery.

The raid early yesterday was the first made under Police Supt. Ben Marshall's edict that bingo must go. George W. Dorn, 43, of 1612 Sedgwick street, and F. W. Super, 69, 1624 Chateau street, were arrested in clubrooms on the second floor at 823 Federal street.

Police said 150 persons were playing the game. Dorn testified he was social secretary for the German Military Association and proceeds of the bingo game were to be used for beneficial and social purposes.

Police testified Super was selling admission tickets at 35 cents each.

M'COOEY DEATH SEEN AS DOOM OF TAMMANY

Big Boss of Brooklyn May Be Succeeded By Roosevelt Man

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—John H. McCooey, the big boss of Brooklyn politics, is dead.

He was the leader for almost a quarter of a century of the Democratic party in Brooklyn. He died yesterday at 69 from heart disease.

Throughout his reign as Democratic boss, McCooey was a staunch supporter of Tammany Hall and his death is seen by political observers as the end of Tammany's domination of the Democratic party in New York City. It is regarded as almost certain that he would be succeeded by a leader who is satisfactory to supporters of President Roosevelt and who will run the Brooklyn organization as a part of the Democratic state organization and not as an auxiliary to Tammany.

FOUGHT LAGUARDIA

McCooey's death came unexpectedly, although he had been in poor health for more than two years. Despite his illnes, he took an active part last fall in the mayoralty campaign which resulted in the Fusion victory of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and which saw McCooey's prestige as leader reduced as a result of a stormy revolt by Brooklyn district leaders who balked at supporting former Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate.

McCooey managed to hold on to his command, however, although after the election there were reports that he would be replaced as Democratic chieftain.

McCooey was a jovial, ruddy-faced man who came up from the ranks of the Democratic organization in New York's largest borough. He was the son of a shipbuilder and as a youth worked in shipyards in Chester, Pa., and Brooklyn.

POLITICAL CAREER

By the time he was 23, he had taken an interest in politics and become a party worker. At that time he was appointed a superintendent of a postoffice sub-station, the first of a number of public offices he held for 42 years.

McCooey's affability, through which he came to know thousands of people, followed him through his career as he rose to district leader and finally "big boss" in the fall of 1909.

In addition to being head of the Brooklyn organization, McCooey was a member of the Democratic National Committee.

McCooey leaves his widow, Mrs. Catherine McCooey, to whom he was married in 1898, three sons and a daughter. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman heads the list of honorary pallbearers which also includes Postmaster General James A. Farley and Alfred E. Smith.

INSULL SEEKS HAVEN IN ITALY

ATHENS, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Rumors circulated today that Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities operator who must leave Greece within the month, is trying to persuade Italy to permit him to fly to the Island of Rhodes for refuge from the United States authorities who seek to return him to Chicago for embezzlement trial.

Insull, it was said, would like to go to the Aegean island in the event his efforts to remain in Greece failed.

A strong probability prevails that the Supreme State Council has decided to reject Insull's appeal from a government ruling that he must leave this country January 31.

No decision, however, is effective or even existant legally until the council makes a public announcement.

Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris said today Samuel Insull, Sr., former Chicago utilities operator, must leave Greece, no matter what the council of state may decide on his appeal for permission to remain here.

add ten thousand millions, plus interest, to that debt.

Poor old dollar. Europe would surely say:

BAILEY AND BATES, gunmen and kidnapers, in Leavenworth federal prison under life sentences, said at first:

"We shall not stay here over Christmas."

But they are still there. Now they have decided to leave by the road of self-starvation since bars and bolts are too strong for them.

Authorities say they will force the men to eat, when that becomes necessary, which raises the question:

"Why jail men for life and force them to live against their will?"

The men cannot leave the building, see each other or the other prisoners. They have access to the library, food better than that of millions of Americans out of jail, but they would "rather die." This should impress on kidnapers the fact that liberty is precious.

RFC Head Fled Subpena In Plane, Suit Hints

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The question whether Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, rode in the baggage compartment of the plane of Capt. Frank Hawks, speed flier, 300 miles from Fort Worth to Houston to dodge service of a subpoena came up in Federal Court today.

The point was raised when motions were filed seeking to have legal penalties imposed on Jones and the RFC for failure to answer interrogatories propounded to them in a receivership suit. The suit was against the Fort Worth properties Corporation by Mrs. Selma Sternberg of St. Louis.

Jones is alleged in the suit to hold a dominant interest in the Fort Worth Properties Corporation, in which Mrs. Sternberg was a bondholder.

The question which Jones, as chairman of the RFC, was asserted to have refused to answer concerned his connection with the Bankers' Mortgage Company, of Houston, which received a loan from the RFC.

One of the allegations in the Sternberg suit is that the loan was obtained with bonds against the Fair Building here, another Jones enterprise, as collateral. The suit alleges the loan is void because the statutes prohibit the RFC from lending funds to any concern in which one of its members is interested.

Questions directed at Jones himself, and assertedly left unanswered, touch upon his alleged effort to dodge service of subpena in the suit here last October 19 by hurriedly leaving for Houston in the plane of Capt. Frank Hawks. One of the questions asked whether Jones rode from Fort Worth to Houston in a "cramped and uncomfortable position" in the baggage compartment of Hawks' single-seated plane.

Jones' presence in Fort Worth on that occasion was as a member of a party of high administration officials visiting here.

Business Racket Trial Opens in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Union officials, hoodlums and officials of employers' associations formed an unholy alliance which dominated four lucrative Chicago trades, Prosecutor Edwin Raber charged today as he launched the city's first racketeering case.

Raber charged that the 18 defendants—who ranged from college professors to underworld gang leaders—extorted large revenues from commodities as mild as towels and soda water, and enforced their rule by bombings, intimidation, threats or, when these seemed impracticable, by strategically-planned boycotts.

The four industries most successfully tapped by racketeers, Raber declared, were the linen supply business, the cleaning and dyeing plants, the carbonated beverage houses and the laundries.

All but three of the defendants were in court to hear the state outline its case, developed after weeks of investigation. There were so many defendants and attorneys that bailiffs installed extra chairs to accomodate them.

DEB BREAKS TROTH WITH ASTOR AS WEDDING NEARS

JOHN, EILEEN MUM; SOCIETY UP IN AIR

Cause of Rift Between Pair Mystery Even To Bridesmaids

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Manhattan's upper social circle today was recovering its breath sufficiently to set tongues wagging as to the cause for the curt announcement that issued last night from the swank apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie, of New York and Newport.

The announcement was that pretty, young Eileen Gillespie will not wed John Jacob Astor III, one of the most eligible bachelors of the year.

The date, February 6, had been set. The bridesmaids had been picked. The wedding trousseau was selected. Engagement of the pair was announced only about a month ago.

JOHN, EILEEN SILENT

No explanations were forthcoming today from Miss Gillespie, her parents or young Astor, heir to a $3,000,000 trust fund left him by his late father, Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster.

There was only the formal announcement that the engagement had been canceled.

Friends of the pair were at a loss to account for the situation.

Exclaimed Alice A. Andre, one of the eight bridesmaids who were to have preceded Eileen down the aisle at St. Thomas's:

"Why, I just can't believe it. I saw them only the other night at a party, and they seemed very happy together."

DISTINGUISHED FAMILY

Miss Gillespie, who made her debut only a week before the engagement was announced, is a member of a family as wealthy and distinguished as that of her former fiance. On the paternal side she traces her ancestry to Roger Williams, founder of Providence, R. I., and John Carter Brown, founder of Brown University.

Her grandfather was Gen. George L. Gillespie, acting Secretary of War under PIresident McKinley.

Before the engagement was announced, young Astor's name had been linked with those of half a dozen of New York's outstanding debutantes.

His mother, Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick, recently wed Enzo Fiermonte, Italian pugilist. Young Astor was said to have expressed disapproval of the match, which followed shortly after his mother obtained a Reno divorce from her third husband.

FOG HIDES DIVA AT CONCERT

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Fog "crashed" Mme. Galli-Curci's concert in Great Albert Hall yesterday.

It hung a hazy curtain about the diva and gave her an etheral appearance—an illusion heightened by her bell-like voice.

The fog was not so bad as that which swathed the city New Years, but there were many accidents. It plunged the streets in darkness in mid-afternoon and did not begin to lift for about two hours.

Ex-Gandhi 'Goddess' To Return to U. S.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Nila Cram Cook, Mahatma Gandhi's back-sliding "blue serpent goddess," probably will be sent to the United States the first week in February, authorities said today.

With the former Iowan, who left Gandhi's school "in search of thrills," will go her young son, Serios.

MAE WEST CASE NEAR CLIMAX

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—Trial of Edward Friedman, suspect in the Mae West diamond robbery, was to reach a climax today when Superior Judge Harry F. Sewell rules whether Friedman's alleged confessions to the holdup may be admitted as evidence and read or related to the jury.

The court ruling will determine if the trial is to proceed or whether Friedman, asserted hoodlum and gangster, is to go free for lack of evidence.

The state charges that shortly after Friedman's arrest on Thanksgiving Day last, the suspect confessed to almost everyone he met, including police, the District Attorney and the county grand jury. So he would place the alleged admissions before the state. The defense maintains, however, that these purported confessions were obtained from Friedman by brutal police beatings and are not admissable as evidence.

Baby Who Won Air Race With Death Dies

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Billy Koecher, six-months-old Racine, Wis., baby, who had been brought to Johns Hopkins Hospital for a brain operation, died yesterday.

After an operation by Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain specialist, the baby developed pneumonia and his condition was serious for several days. He was suffering from hydro-cephalus.

FAY DROPS SUIT, RUDY COUNSEL CRIES 'FRAUD'

Surprize Move Knocks Wind From Sails of Vallee's Cohorts

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A surprise flank movement by attorneys for Mrs. Fay Webb Vallee left the cohorts of her crooner husband, Rudy, somewhat disconcerted here today.

Mrs. Vallee, through her lawyers, suddenly discontinued her suit in New York to set aside their separation agreement. Fay wanted her financial compensation for living apart from Rudy increased from $100 per week to $7,400 per week.

Justice Lydon signed an order permitting dismissal of the suit.

Samuel Gottlieb, attorney for the crooner, shouted that "An attempt had been made to perpetrate a fraud" because he had not been notified of discontinuance of the action. He said he never had heard of a suit being discontinued without opposing counsel being notified.

MOTION POSTPONED

Announcement of the discontinuance came while contending counsel were before Supreme Court Justice McGeehan to argue Rudy's motion for an injunction to prevent Fay from proceeding with a similar suit in California on the grounds she is a citizen of New York. Hearing on this motion temporarily was postponed.

Rudy wants the case tried in New York courts because, he claims, he has ample evidence to obtain a divorce in that state, where divorces are granted on only one grounds.

'BOY, IT'LL BE HOT!'

Wherever the legal battle takes place, Hyman Bushel, another of Rudy's attorneys, predicted it will be a sizzling one. He said:

"Boy, it'll be hot. The judge will have to clear the courtroom when the testimony starts unfolding."

This court business today preceded Rudy's cap and gown appearance before Arthur Murray, president of the National Institute of Social Dancing. Murray will present the crooner with the degree of D. D. M., which, to the uninitiate, stands for Doctor of Dance Music.

Thus Rudy will become an honorary dancing master, the first such honor to be conferred by the institute on a band leader.

Rudy's Ex-Secretary Held Fay's Trump Card in Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—(Universal.)—From opposite ends of the continent Rudy Vallee and Fay Webb today continued to wage marital warfare.

And if threats mean anything both sides are about to spring sensations beside which present disclosures will be trifling.

Secluded in a Southern California resort, Fay holds as her trump card the anticipated testimony of Johnson Hurd, Rudy's former confidential secretary. And Ben C. Cohen, Mrs. Vallee's attorney, asid:

"If anyone should know the inside story of the Vallees it's the confidential secretary of Rudy. Wait until he testifies."

Lady Strabolgi, 70, Convicted in Fraud

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Lady Strabolgi, 70, the former Miss Elizabeth Florence Cooper, of Sacramento, Cal., was convicted today of a charge of conspiring to defraud the Hon. Francis de Moleyns and others in connection with a timber concession in Honduras.

She was sentenced to three months in prison without hard labor when the jury recommended mercy. Robert Mueller, 62, an alleged accomplice, was given a year's sentence without hard labor.

SUNDAY CLOSING ROW BOILS IN JOHNSTOWN

McCloskey, Council Each Blame Other For Edict

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The final outcome of blue law enforcement in Johnstown was befogged in uncertainty today while Mayor Eddie McCloskey and the Council played a game of "who started all this anyway?"

The first day after McCloskey's Sunday lid-clamping order went into effect found police ready to file 24 informations against alleged violators and the Mayor and Council embroiled in an argument over responsibility for the move.

At the regular weekly meeting the fiery Mayor, who issued the order to show "how ridiculous blue laws are," said the Councilmen were at the bottom of it and asked if they were ready to rescind a resolution of last week directing him to enforce the Sunday closing law of 1913.

COUNCIL WON'T GIVE IN

The answer was an emphatic "no."

George Griffith, recognized as one of McCloskey's opponents in Council, said:

"We did not intend for him to make this thing ridiculous. But we did intend to have him close the movies, and the movies must stay closed."

A secret meeting of McCloskey and the Council was set for this afternoon, at which time City Solicitor T. K. Saylor will address them on city ordinances. It was thought that out of the meeting would come some definite position as to the future enforcement of the old blue law.

M'CLOSKEY FIRM

Meanwhile McCloskey reiterated that next week will find even more stringent enforcement of the blue laws, with everything closed tightly.

Police Chief Harry Klink reported the shutdown order was obeyed yesterday by the majority of business houses. Theater operators, who had announced open defiance of the edict, suddenly changed their minds and remained dark.

Returning from Harrisburg to see how things were going, McCloskey said the movie men "backed out on me." He said:

"I came all the way from Harrisburg to go to a picture show and they decided not to run."

NO DIVORCE SUIT FOR SIDNEY FOX

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Sidney Fox and her husband, Charles Beahan, who separated during a quarrel at a New Years party, have talked things over, they said yesterday, and decided to abandon all plans for a divorce for the present. Said Miss Fox:

"In spite of our recent difficulties, our marriage has meant too much to both of us to end it without serious consideration. We have determined to take time to think things out."

Beahan, film director, said:

"I sincerely hope that our trial separation will eventually bring about a complete reconciliation."

New Jersey Plans Fete to Einstein

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Plans for a New Jersey state reception for Prof. Albert Einstein were formulated yesterday at a luncheon conference called by Gov. A. Harry Moore.

The main feature of the reception, it was announced, will be an afternoon concert in the Aalantic City convention hall, March 25. The concert will be followed at night by a banquet.

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 22.—Attacked by a rat while asleep, the 3-year-old granddaughter of Mr. J. B. Mays, of Salina, was bitten about the face and hands. The child's screams brought Mrs. Mays to the scene. The rat was found in the bed clothes.

Marketing of Cheap Brand Expected To Doom Career of Ye Olde Bootlegger

The new and higher prices on liquor went into effect in Pittsburgh today in the state stores.

But the one exception, Sweepstakes whisky at $1 a fifth, stole the show.

Eighteen minutes after the downtown store in Boulevard of the Allies was opened, the whole supply of eight cases had been sold. In other stores, whose supply also was limited to eight cases, the demand for Sweepstakes was great.

This is the blended whisky which state officials hope will, because of its low price, eliminate the last of the bootleggers.

In Philadelphia today Sweepstakes was being sold by retailers at 10 cents a drink.

In Pittsburgh a test of one of the first bottles sold showed the new brand to be 91 proof. This is about average strength of whisky.

A new gin was on the counters, too, at 90 cents a fifth. It is called Cavalier.

The price rise effective today is generally 15 cents on a pint and 25 cents on a quart. This was made necessary by the recent increase in the government tax from $1.10 to $2 a gallon, it was said.

'TOO CHEAP,' SAYS M'NAIR

Although he isn't a drinking man, Mayor McNair ventured to say that Sweepstakes seems too cheap to be good. He added that he had instructed Health Director Ray P. Moyer to have the stuff analyzed and until then he advised potential customers to "go easy."

As for taste, that's a matter of personal opinion. Among members attending the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association convention in the Hotel William Penn it was found to be "drinkable." Along the Water street wharf, the unemployed strollers found "it's pretty good."

While the convention delegates would not enthuse over the taste, dispensers of pre-prohibition liquor agreed it should serve the purpose of ousting the bootlegger. Ross L. Gammon, president of the restaurant men, said:

"For the purpose for which it is made, it's a drink that should keep the bootlegger out of the mill and factory district. Considering the tax that is included in the price, the Liquor Control Board was fortunate to obtain as good a product."

'BETTER THAN MOONIE'

A. Albert, maitre d'hotel of the William Penn, found:

"It's 100 per cent better than people were drinking during prohibition judging from the remains I found in many bottles of moonie left after parties. They paid as high as $5 for worse."

Harry Kramer dryly remarked that if it answered the purpose that was all that could be expected. He found it "drinkable."

The drink should not be compared with a good blend or good whisky, according to Christ Dimling. He considered it the best that could be expected for the price.

Sampled by a trio of Water street strollers, Sweepstakes brought a smacking of lips. They said:

"Pretty good whisky."

2 CONVICTS FED THROUGH NOSE

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, ex-members of the machine gun school of crime, struggled in vain at the federal penitentiary today to carry on a hunger strike in the face of forcible feeding of milk.

The announced purpose of the desperadoes' refusal to eat is:

"Death or freedom from solitary."

But prison authorities have other plans for them.

Both Bailey and Bates, under violent protest, are being fed almost a gallon of milk daily.

Four or five times a day the prison physician, two guards and two convict witnesses—the latter to forestall possible charges of the prisoners that they are abused—visit the cells.

The guards hold down the patient. The physician inserts a rubber hose with two outlets into his nostrils and pours down a pint of milk. There is some bad lauguage.

Illegal Liquor Traps Three Men

Three men, who were alleged to have had possession of illegal liquor, were turned over to state officials after hearings in North Side Police Court today. They were Louis Klein, 47, of Treveskyn; Thomas Patton, 38, of 752 Reedsdale street, and Thomas Randazzo, 55, of 1018 Brown street.

Five persons arrested with Klein in a raid at the Chelsea Club, 19 East Lacock street, were discharged after Klein testified he took liquor to the club despite the remonstrance of the steward.

CRUMBLING ICE PERILS BYRD

International News Service.

ABOARD S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, BAY OF WHALES, ANTARCTICA, Jan. 20 (Delayed).—The Byrd Antarctic expedition raced against time Saturday to get their supplies ashore to Little America before the crumbling bay ice disappeared completely.

Several times members of the expedition faced death as the ice broke under the weight of the supplies and as the ship pounded against it. One of the five tractors unloaded nearly went through the ice with a man aboard. Another tractor caught fire.

One of the most interesting points of the expedition to date was the discovery that every feature of Admiral Byrd's 1929 camp had been left intact in the five years it lay buried under snow and ice. A 1929 calendar hung on the wall, coffee was frozen in a pot on a table beside a slab of roast beef with a fork still stuck in it, and on the floor lay a rubber ball once used by Admiral Byrd's well known dog, Igloo, who now is dead.

CWA PROGRAM UNLIKELY TO BE CONTINUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was described today at the White House as unswerving from his budget, and planning to ask Congress this week for funds to continue the Civil Works Administration only until May.

This will involve about 350 million dollars of the $1,166,000,000 which will be asked to met budget requirements for this year.

There is considerable pressure to have the CWA extended indefinitely, but it was reiterated the President has given no intimation of abandoning his original plan to taper off the program by May.

County Board Protests CWA Curtailment Here

Vigorous protest against cutting down the CWA work in progress here was made today by the Board of County Commissioners in a telegram of protest sent to Harry L. Hopkins, CWA administrator in Washington.

The drastic economy ruling announced last week will cause the county a serious financial loss as well as affecting the morale of the unemployed, the County Commissioners said in their wire. The economy ruling ordered cutting of CWA hours of employment and halting of all new projects.

The order jeopardizes approximately a million dollars recently appropriated for materials and equipment on CWA projects, the commissioners pointed out. They wired:

"We entered into this program in good faith, assuming that the CWA would carry out its part of the agreement. We wish to file a most vigorous protest against curtailment of the program. Not the least of our objections is the effect on the morale of our unemployed. We estimate your order will deprive 2,000 of work."

MISS CARR HITS GUFFEY CHARGE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Declaring emphatically that her department "is not constructed along political lines," Pennsylvania Secretary of Labor and Industry Charlotte E. Carr today told a women's Democratic club here that Joseph F. Guffey's accusations against the Federal-State Employment Bureaus "showed a fatal misunderstanding of the situation and a real ignorance of the facts."

Guffey, Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania, charged that the employment offices were using political preference in placing employes on CWA jobs in Pennsylvania.

She pointed out that only 12 of the 67 employment agencies in the state have state connections and that the other 55 are entirely under the direction of the United States Department of Labor.

Pursuing her answer to Guffey, Miss Carr revealed that a month ago eight employes of the Philadelphia employment office were found to have been using CWA jobs politically. She said:

"They were dismissed forthwith, and a check-up was made of all persons placed by them, many of whom were dropped from the payrolls."

NAZIS INVOKE MOSAIC LAW

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—An ancient Mosaic law was invoked today in divorce proceedings between a Jewish couple who did not hold citizenship in Germany.

The court declined the woman's divorce petition and based its findings on the refusal of the husband to give a divorcement letter according to the Book of Deuteronomy.

The twenty-fourth chapter, first verse, was quoted as follows:

"When a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favor in his eyes, because he hath found some uncleanness in her: then let him write her a bill of divorcement and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house."

German laws provide that in such cases statutes which would be applicable in the principals' former residences may be invoked.

Bomb Blast Kills Three Aboard Train

AGRAM, Jugoslavia, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Three passengers were burned to death and 12 were injured, one seriously, when a bomb exploded aboard the speeding Berlin-Agram express train today.

The bomb was believed to have gone off accidentally as it was being carried by a Croatian revolutionary who planned to bomb the Little Entente Congress at Agram.

PRAYER LEADS TO SAVING GIRL

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Dorothy Jane Grosz, 17, of Omaha, is alive today because of her mother's premonition as she knelt in prayer at a church that something was wrong at home.

Leaving church hastily as the services drew to a close, Mrs. Cornelius Grosz hastened home and, finding the door locked, peered through a window and found that Dorothy Jane had been overcome by gas after a coffee pot had boiled over and extinguished the flame in the gas jet. A fire department inhalator squad revived the girl.

Mrs. Grosz said that as she knelt in prayer she felt her thoughts drawn away from her prayers to Dorothy Jane who had been left seated in a rocking chair. The girl, a night club entertainer, had recently been ill and was still weak as a result of the illness.

ASK EXTENSION ON COAL CODE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Concluding a week's sessions at which problems of the coal industry under the bituminous code were dealt with, the National Bituminous Coal Industrial Board yesterday asked the NRA for an extension of the code beyond its present limit of April 1.

In recommending the extension, the board expressed general satisfaction with the operation of the code and its effects on the industry.

The board also asked a Congressional appropriation to enable government departments having coal contracts to adjust prices to cover increased costs caused by operation under the code.

COUNCIL DELAYS CWA FUND

City Council this afternoon postponed any action on six bills dealing with the appropriation of $749,000 for material and equipment for CWA projects.

Councilman P. J. McArdle suggested the postponement until the city learned what action will be taken by CWA in continuing work on projects here. The money was part of $1,400,000 recently floated by a bond issue for the work.

PWA RECALLS INACTIVE CASH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Nearly $50,000,000 of public works allotments had been recalled today as Secretary of Interior Ickes sought to replenish his exhausted treasury by withdrawing funds from inactive projects for reallotment.

Recently he warned that he would follow this plan, and notified communities in every part of the country to sign their contracts and get their money into payrolls.

The warning was effective in a considerable portion of the cases Ickes had in mind. At the same time, with almost as many projects pending before his staff, as a result of new applications, as he had when his appropriation was intact the Public Works Administrator has been scraping the bottom of the money sacks wherever a few stray thousands could be salvaged. Today's recalled funds amounted to $11,579,450. Previously $20,945,761 had been returned or recalled, all aggregating today's total of $47,535,000 on hand for reallotment.

Father O'Keefe Dies In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Joseph F. O'Keefe, for 18 years rector of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, died yesterday in his eighty-third year. Father O'Keefe, a native of Philadelphia, in 1897 was assigned to the leading Catholic parish at Wayne, Wis., remaining th re 18 years.

Russ Mark Lenin, 'Bloody Sunday' Anniversaries

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia has begun commemoration of two important dates in its revolutionary calendar—the tenth anniversary of Lenin's death, which fell yesterday, and the twenty-ninth anniversary of "Bloody Sunday," when the Czar's troops shot down persons who appealed to the imperial palace in St. Petersburg for bread.

The latter anniversary is marked today—which is a general holiday.

The Order of Lenin was bestowed on Profs. V. P. Vorobiev and B. I. Zbarsky, noted biologists, for their work in preserving Lenin's body, which still lies on a glass-enclosed catafalque in a massive granite tomb on Red Square, where thousands view it daily.

4 AMERICANS HELD IN JAIL

MADRID, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Four Americans under arrest at Palma, Mallorca, were ordered to remain in jail today while the United States Embassy exerted its utmost efforts to settle their case.

Ambassador Claude Bowers conferred with both Spanish government and judicial officials in an effort to effect the release of the prisoners pending negotiations for clemency.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, West Springfield, Mass.; Roger F. Mead, New York, and Edmund A. Blodgett, Stamford, Conn., who were sentenced to six months in jail as the result of an altercation last year with a civil guard at Palma.

Authorities there jailed them yesterday when it was rumored they planned to escape, but today they were released temporarily, then returned to custody.

Von Hindenburg Better After Cold

BERLIN, Jan 22.—(AP.)—The condition of President Paul Von Hindenburg, reported to be suffering from a cold, is improved sufficiently for him to resume his postponed formal engagements today and Tuesday. No official bulletins were issued on his condition.

OXYGEN PUMPED TO SAVE MAN

Firemen from East Pittsburgh and North Braddock today continued efforts to have the life of Segundo Giorzo, 42, of 1564 Electric avenue, North Braddock, by administering oxygen with an inhalator.

The firemen began their efforts Thursday when an abscess on Giorzo's left lung broke. He cannot be taken to a hospital because the trip would interrupt application of the inhalator.

Giorzo, an unemployed laborer, was to start work on a CWA project this week.

P. O. BUILDING STRIKE ENDS

A strike, which began eight months ago on the new postoffice at Seventh avenue and Grant street, came to an end this morning when more than 400 workmen returned to their work.

Settlement of the strike will add $90,000 a month to the building payroll of the city.

Completion of the structure, which was scheduled for March 1, will be delayed, due to the strike, according to Maj. Robert Greenfield, United States engineer in charge of the work.

Grant Withers Says He 'Broke'

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Saying he had assets of only $300 in personal effects with which to meet obligations of $34,082, Grant Withers, movie actor and former husband of Loretta Young, had on file today a voluntary bankruptcy petition.

TOLD BY HEAVEN TO KILL SONS, MAN SAYS

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A 37-year-old fisherman, Oskar Hestness, a self-styled "messenger of God," today was charged with first degree murder for strangling his two little sons.

Chief of Detectives Luke S. May said Hestness gave as his motive a "vision from God" ordering him to "choke the devil out of" the boys.

Authorities were to study the man's mental condition.

In words including many religious references, the strong-handed fisherman described the killings. The victims were his only children, John, 10, and Henry, 4. The fisherman said:

"I killed John first. Last Tuesday he came from the Pentacostal Temple, and I asked him who sent him. He wouldn't answer. Then I asked him, 'Who is in you?'

"He said, 'The devil is in me.' Then God appeared to me and he told me to choke the devil out of him."

The man added that he killed Henry Wednesday.

'SECOND ELISHA'

The bodies were found in the Hestness small four-room home Sunday, after the parents had been placed under arrest the previous night. A minister, the Rev. O. L. Haavik, of the Ballard First Lutheran Church, had found them in his garage, in possession of his car.

Hestness demanded that the Rev. Mr. Haavik turn over the keys to his automobile. He said:

"The Lord has told me to take the car. I am the second Elisha. I pave the way for the second Christ."

His wife, Marie, added:

"We must take the word to my cousin, Hans Hansen, in Centralia."

WIFE KNEW OF CRIME

The two were jailed at the minister's request for a sanity examination. The minister was unable to arouse neighbors that evening, but yesterday succeeded in notifying one of them, Mrs. Carl Alfheim. She discovered the bodies.

Hestness' religious fervor had been pronounced in recent years, neighbors said, with psalm singing and shouting coming almost incessantly from their home.

The wife, Marie, aged 35, confirmed her husband's confession, police said.

Hestness was asked if his wife had known what he was doing. He replied:

"Yes, she didn't like to have me do it. But she knew that it had to be done because God had told me to."

'THEY AREN'T DEAD'

He resumed his account:

"The next day (Wednesday) the devil got into the house again. I tried to close the door on him, but I failed. So I took Henry on my knee. He held his hands over his eyes and would look at me. I knew that the devil was in him too.

"When I was through, I laid the body beside that of his brother."

During her interrogation, Mrs. Hestness raised her voice in singsong as she sank hymns in Scandinavian. An interpreter took down her replies.

As Hestness was concluding his story, in his wife's presence, he said emphatically:

"I want you all to understand that my sons are not dead. They are going to join us again."

Dave Montgomery's Niece to Be Married

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Announcement of the coming marriage of Frank McDonald, film dialogue director, and Goodee Montgomery, stage and screen actress, was made yesterday by the director.

Miss Montgomery is a niece of the late Dave Montgomery, who, with Fred Stone, formed the noted musical team of comedians a quarter of a century ago.

Beauty, Husband Starting Trial Reconcialiation

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Nadine Dore, statuesque dark-haired "Miss North America" of 1930, now a film actress, and her husband, Chester G. Miller, theater play director, had decided to drop plans for a divorce.

They will try a trial reconciliation after six months of living apart, Miss Dore said. She said:

"To test our lonesomeness for each other, we will live apart for the next six months; then we'll commence our trial reconciliation."

Armed Posse Hunts Assailant of Woman

MIDDLETOWN, Del., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—State police today conducted an extensive search in New Castle County for a Negro accused of beating his employer's wife, Mrs. Edith Murray, 36, in the kitchen of the Murray farmhouse.

Mrs. Murray told police the man, whom she identified as George Thomas, 23, entered the kitchen where she was working and struck her. Her 4-year-old son, Henry, struck the man on the head with a broom, and Mrs. Murray picked up the child and ran to Middletown. A posse of about 200 men armed with shotguns and rifles was formed.

JAP AIMS SPUR NAVY PROGRAM IN HOUSE

selves and the generosity of foreign powers."

A prediction that under the leadership of President Roosevelt the United States would have a full treaty strength navy by the time the Naval Conference meets, also was made, after Henry L. Roosevelt, acting Secretary of the Navy, said the administration approved the Vinson treaty bill.

The forecast was made by representative Ayres (Dem.), of ansas in charge of the $284,747,000 naval supply bill which was reported today by the Appropriations Committee.

Roosevelt appeared before the House Naval Committee and estimated the Vinson program would cost $380,000,000, or about $76,000,000 a year for the five-year plan.

NEW SHIPS AUTHORIZED

In debate on the 1935 supply bill, Representative Ayres said:

"Under the leadership of President Roosevelt, we will sit at the new conference table with a full treaty navy, built and building."

Included in the appropriation bill was authority to start three new six-inch gun cruisers, the committee hailing the present building program as bringing the navy near treaty strength.

Representative Britten, (Rep.), of Illinois pointed out that the bill did not provide for the construction of cruiser-carriers, and remarked that such ships had been planned before the late Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, died in the airship Akron's plunge into the sea. Britten said:

"Since Admiral Moffett is dead it would seem that we are kissing this new type of ship goodby and going back to the British type of six-inch cruiser with a flying deck."

Roosevelt answered:

"The general board and the chief of naval operations are giving serious consideration to the flying deck type."

DOUGLAS OVERRIDDEN

The committee considers a complete Navy of such importance that it voted to override Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas and authorize $1,200,000 to start three new six-inch gun cruisers in the next fiscal year.

Taking issue with statements by Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, that the condition of the fleet was not satisfactory, the committee reported construction under way which "upon completion, will bring us current with treaty limitations in all combatant categories, completely discounting overage tonnage."

The committee provided for an increase of 2,800 enlisted naval and 1,000 Marine personnel.

The measure is $23,922,000 less than the current appropriations and $1,585,000 below budget estimates. Transfers of unused funds totaling $9,085,000, however, will bring the actual cash withdrawals from the Treasury for the Navy to $293,833,000.

Admiral Standley urged the committee to put Navy enlisted personnel at 85,000, although saying he realized President Roosevelt had asked for only 82,500 men.

BULLITT'S WAR TALK CITED

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A speech by the American Ambassador to Russia was cited by a foreign office spokesman today as an example of prominent statesmen spreading the idea of the danger of a "Russia-Japanese War."

(In a speech in Philadelphia, William C. Bullitt asserted that "unfortunately it is impossible to say that there is no chance of war in the world today." However, he cited numerous Russian non-aggression pacts as evidence of the Soviet government's desire for peace.)

Europe Expects Debt Slash If Congress Gives President Right to Negotiate on Tariffs

barrass the forthcoming administration in any further negotiations with the French.

FRANCE, HOWEVER, was dubious about the ability of President Roosevelt to persuade Congress to allow the Executive alone to conduct "final" negotiations on war debts.

The French believed the House of Representatives might be persuaded by the President, but that the Senate would present obstacles—the French sought formal assurances that on payment of the defaulted December, 1932, installment, final negotiations would be entered into immediately and that a moratorium would be granted for the June, 1933, installment.

Spokesmen for the administration, however, pointed out to France that such an assurance in advance would only prejudice the President's chances of obtaining necessary authority from Congress and that France could make things easier by paying up the defaulted installment.

Soundings were taken in the French Parliament. But Parliament refused to be moved.

France, and in fact all Europe, believes that France cannot be left out of consideration if and when war debts come up for revision. This belief is predicated upon the Lausanne agreement.

This agreement "settled" reparations ON CONDITION OF A "SATISFACTORY" SOLUTION OF WAR DEBTS OWED BY GERMANY'S CREDITORS TO THE UNITED STATES.

With France out, the Lausanne agreement fails.

And here is the kernel of the nut.

AGENTS OF the Washington administration, whether with or without authority, have let it be known in certain European capitals that President Roosevelt regards the Lausanne agreement as one of the greatest achievements of Europe since the war, and believes that it would do European and world peace no service to see the Lausanne "settlement" smashed.

As a matter of fact the magnanimous and far-sighted statesmen of Europe "sacrificed" reparations only after a "gentlemen's" agreement was reached making their "sacrifices" CONTINGENT ON SACRIFICES OF WAR DEBTS BY THE UNITED STATES.

At Lausanne, the Allies "settled" with Germany on the basis of 10 cents on the dollar.

France has repeatedly made clear that she will consider no settlement of the war debt on a basis in excess of 10 cents on the dollar, and in all likelihood will refuse to pay anything at all.

The question before the people of the United States is whether any such detrimental settlement should be negotiated without the knowledge and approval of the people of the United States and without the exercise by Congress of the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution of the United States.

JAP WAR CHIEF RESIGNS, RUSS CRISIS GROWS

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—Strained Russo-Japanese relations were sharply accentuated today with the unexpected resignation of Gen. Sadao Araki as minister of war and the apparent selection of an even stronger militarist and nationalist to succeed him.

Premier Saito immediately accepted Gen. Araki's resignation, which was attributed to ill health and a consequent inability to attend the session of the Diet opening tomorrow. Gen. Araki recently suffered a severe attack of pneumonia.

Gen. Sunjuro Hayashi, inspector general of military education, member of Japan's strongest military clique, and known as a protagonist of a vigorous anti-Soviet policy, was mentioned as the man almost certain to succeed to the war portfolio.

General Araki, who became war minister in December, 1931, quickly won for himself a world-wide reputation as an aggressive militarist. He was the director of the policy under which Japan set up the independent state of Manchukuo after subduing Chinese armies in Manchuria.

In those days he was of almost dictorial stature, but in recent months frequent setbacks, chiefly in domestic matters, had served to weaken his hold. There even was dissension in certain elements of the army and in militarist groups.

General Hayashi, whose final selection lies in the hands of the Board of Generals, is associated with a clique of eight military leaders of avowed anti-Soviet policy who favor a considerable strengthening of Japanese armed forces in Manchukuo, particularly along the Siberian border. The other seven leaders are Generals Yanagawa, Yamaoka, Iisogaiya, Tojo, Mazaki, Nagata and Obata.

These men in all probability will be the leaders of the new military regime.

Gen. Hayashi is the former commander of the Korean garrison who sent a strong division of Korean troops to Mukden in September, 1931, at the outbreak of Japan's military campaign to take over Manchuria.

WAR CRIES ALL FICTION, SAYS JAP LEADER

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—Japan is pursuing a policy of peace and the "war cries" appearing in Japanese magazines and newspapers do not reflect the official opinion, a foreign office spokesman declares today.

Referring specifically to the statement of a Soviet official recently that Soviet Russia regards a war between Russia and Japan this year as a possibility, the spokesman said:

"Our policy is known to Moscow and to the world powers as one of peace. We cannot understand recent verbal attacks upon us."

'PROVOCATIVE' STATEMENT

The foreign office spokesman alluded to the recent speech of Soviet Foreign Commisssar Maxim Litvinoff, in which he charged Japan was planning to embark upon a war of aggression, and to other official and semi-official statements emanating from Moscow. He said:

"The Soviet authorities are voicing violent and provocative statements against Japan. Why should newspapers in the U. S. S. R. emphasize the danger of invasion of Siberia?

"Despite Russia's concentration of troops on the border between Russia and Manchukuo, we have not reinforced our frontier detachments."

ARTICLES HELD FICTION

The spokesman voiced indignation over Moscow allusions to the danger of a Russo-Japanese war, pointing out that Japan had accepted the invitation of the Manchukuo government to act as intermediary in her dispute with Soviet Russia over the Chinese Eastern Railway. He said:

"Recent articles appearing in Japanese magazines do not reflect the real situation. It is fiction which responsible officials of the foreign office do not indorse."

Russ Official Warns Tokio Against Attack

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—A stern warning to Japan to think twice before attacking Soviet Russia was delivered today by Lazara Kagonovitch, secretary of the All-Soviet Council of Trades Unions, in an address before the Moscow district conference of Communists. He said:

"The situation in the Far East is very tense. It smells of war and we must ex a Japanese attack at any minute."

Reviewing the Far Eastern situation, Kakonovitch, a former member of the Communist committee on organization of the Red Army, said:

"Japanese militarists have taken advantage of the complex international situation to seize Manchuria and are attempting to dominate all China.

SEES DREAM OF CONQUEST

"They are dreaming of conquering Soviet Russian territory in the Far East and, generally speaking, the whole world.

"Gen. Araki (Japanese War Minister who resigned last night) is developing Pan-Asiatic ideas with the expectation that Japanese bayonets will be used to deliver the population of all Asia."

Kagonovitch reminded his hearers of Japan's surprise attack upon the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904, declaring:

"Japanese militarists aspire to repeat the surprise maneuver, but Russia of today is not the Russia of 1904, which was ruled by a government of fools. It is now ruled by a Bolshevik government which will never be taken by surprise.

"If the Japanese generals dare to attack our borders they will feel promptly at their backs the might of our country, the might of our heroic Red Army. The Soviet Union will never concede an inch of its territory."

WARNS ON RAILROAD

Reviewing the complicated situation growing out of negotiations for the sale of the half Russian-owned Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria, Kagonovitch declared.

"We say to Japan that the Chinese Eastern Railway will not go to you for nothing, and any attempt to seize it will result in serious conflict."

Kagonovitch called attention of the conference to the European situation. He said:

"Our relations with Germany are also very tense. Our government has told Germany repeatedly that their promise to continue the policies agreed upon at Rapallo—policies of continued friendly relations with us—would be judged not by words but by actual deeds."

He denounced nations which he said were supporting Germany's demands for re-armament, declaring they were motivated by a desire to attack Soviet Russia.

Japanese Liquor On Way to America

TOKIO, Jan. 22.—(INS.)—The first shipment of Japanese whisky consigned to the United States since the repeal of prohibition was aboard the S.S. Nankai Maru as she sailed from here today.

The liquor, amounting to 1,500 gallons, is due in Los Angeles February 1.

DEBT EQUALITY ASKED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt, in a half-hour conference today with the German ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, asked that the Germans give treatment to American creditors equal to that accorded other creditors.

Dr. Luther upon leaving the White House, declined to comment except to say that he had discussed "economic problems exclusively but in a broad sense."

No doubt was left at the White House, however, of what occurred. Before the meeting, Stephen T. Early, a secretary to the President, announced that the purpose of the President was to get equal treatment for Americans from the German debtors.

The German treasury, which handles the interest payments on all state, municipal and corporation obligations, has twice cut the interest rate on bonds. More favorable terms were accorded some countries than those allowed American investors.

'COURSE IN SEX' SCORED FROM PULPITS

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Two local Protestant pastors today stood squarely behind the Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., vice president of Notre Dame, in his denunciation of what he called a "course in concubinage" at Columbia University.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick Shannon, pastor of Central Church, in Orchestra Hall, in his sermon yesterday, said:

"I consider it a shame and a disgrace that universities should require students to take sex courses."

In the Chicago Temple yesterday Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, said he was shocked and promised to devote more of his next Sunday's sermon to the topic. He said:

"The air is charged with new life and ideas. Unquestionably, all cultured people read with shock the article dealing with the course in sex relationship at Columbia University.

"While we are in a 'new day,' yet all reasonable people, no matter how broadminded, must admit that such a course is exceedingly dangerous and educationally questionable."

DENIAL FOR COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Columbia University officials want to know who started all this talk about a course in sex offered at the institution.

Dean Herbert E. Hawkes regards it as an indictment of Columbia University and termed the denunciations of aroused clergymen as much ado about a thing which doesn't exist. He declared today:

"The story is made up entirely of whole-cloth. There is no basis for it whatsoever.

"I can't think of any course given at the university which would answer to the one described by the Rev. John F. O'Hara, of Notre Dame University, last Saturday night.

"No announcement of any such course has been made by the university; none will be made.

"Whoever started this false story about the course suffered from wishful thinking or diseased imagination."

He said he would write to Dr. O'Hara, asking him where he had received his information about the course in sex.

CARDINAL FLAYS CAREER WOMEN

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Women whose names appear daily on the front pages of newspapers and those who are "carving out careers" are not ideal models to be imitated by Catholic women, Cardinal Hayes told members of the Carroll Club yesterday.

Such women, he said, are "frequently defying the laws of God and man."

The Cardinal said too many Americans fail to observe the moral law and added:

"The sorrowful, tragic thing about the world today is that so few people follow Christ. A large percentage of the people in this land have a low moral standard."

Jap Leader Denies Goodwill Errand

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Othohiko Matsukata, retired Japanese businessman, arrived here today from Tokio and disclaimed any semi-official status as a goodwill messenger, as reported in cables before his sailing.

Matsukata said he was on a purely business trip to the United States and Great Britain. He is a graduate of Harvard University, where he knew President Roosevelt, and said he would endeavor to visit Washington to renew the acquaintance.

Ukrainian Capital Will Move to Kiev

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A decision to move the capital of the Ukrainian Republic from Kharkov to Kiev in autumn of this year was announced today in the Soviet press.

The move is necessary, it is explained, to bring the Ukrainian government party apparatus closer to agricultural regoins, now that the industrial base at Kharov is consolidated. The change will bring the capital much closer to the western frontier.

4 Ohio Missionaries Safe in War Zone

FOOCHOW, China, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Definite word was received today that four American missionaries, isolated near Kutien as a result of recent fighting, are safe.

They are the Rev. W. S. Bissonette, of Canton, O.; Dr. and Mrs. H. N. Brester, of Xenia, O., and Miss Martha Graf, of Cincinnati. Concern had been felt for them until today's message, which stated they were continuing an evangelistic tour.

Il Duce's Envoy To Vienna Returns

ROME, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary of state, returned today from Vienna and soon will report to Premier Mussolini on his conversations with Chancellor Dollfuss, of Austria.

Bombs were exploded during Nazi demonstrations when Suvich arrived in Vienna last Thursday. His visit was regarded as a gesture of encouragement from Mussolini to Dollfuss.

TROLLEY BOARD JOB SEEN FOR SCHOYER

Appointment of Attorney William E. Schoyer by Mayor William N. McNair as a member of the Traction Conference Board, which mediates disputes between the Pittsburgh Railways Company and municipalities, was expected to go to City Council this afternoon.

The board is composed of two representatives of the city, one representing borough and townships supplied by the railways company, and a company representative. Schoyer would replace W. Edgar Reed.

Schoyer is a single tax advocate, but has not been active in the movement with which the Mayor is identified. He is regarded as a student of the economics of utility operations, is a social registerite and stands high as a member of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

A petition asking the Public Service Commission to defer consideration of extension of the contract by which the Transit Conference Board exists was filed by Mayor McNair during his campaign. The commission has scheduled a hearing.

Other members of the board are Charles A. Finley, chairman, representing the city; D. L. Starr, boroughs and townships representative, and W. H. Boyce, railways representative.

Membership Lunch Planned by Chamber

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will hold a membership luncheon and business meeting tomorrow noon in the auditorium of the Chamber of Commerce Building. At this meeting an amendment, making women eligible for membership in the organization, will be submitted for the approval of the members.

'Marrying Parson' Title Disclaimed

ELKTON, Md., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—In the announcement Saturday night of the marriage here of Graham McNamee and Miss Ann Lee Simms, of New York, the Rev. William W. Thompson was incorrectly referred to as one of the town's "marrying parsons."

He is pastor of a church here. The Associated Press regrets this error.

firemen in the less congested districts of the city.

He sounded a call to Council and department heads for economy, honesty and efficiency in government.

Mrs. Smith's recommendations included total cuts slightly more than enough to balance the budget, if a revised estimate of city real estate assessments is considered.

It includes elimination of scores of jobs from the city payroll, reorganization of many bureaus, combination of others and reductions in wages.

ECONOMIES URGED

Outstanding in the economies urged by Mrs. Smith were:

Elimination of 55 jobs in the Police Department, including those by 15 detectives, seven police captains, eight police lieutenants and three sergeants.

Stopping for next year the regular salary increases in the Bureau of Police and Fire.

Eliminating four jobs in the Bureau of Building Inspection and transferring 30 building inspectors to temporary positions to be used as needed.

Taking more than enough out of the operating costs at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview to pay for 23 more nurses and orderlies.

Setting up a separate bureau of building maintenance under the Department of Public Safety.

Combining the Bureau of Parks and the Division of Recreation under a special Park Commission.

Reducing the amount of workmen's compensation paid by the city to the amount authorized by state law.

Reverting $750,000 from unused bond funds and sinking fund to retire city bonds.

The reduction in city assessments which was originally estimated at 100 million dollars is placed by Mrs. Smith at 65 million dollars as the result of revised estimates by city assessors. This would leave the budget of $21,252,549 as closed by Council out of balance to the extent of $1,627,549.

Mrs. Smith covers this with her recommendation for economies totaling $1,867,461.

The Bureau of Police bore the heaviest weight of the proposed eliminations. In all, she recommended that 55 jobs be taken out of the police payroll entirely.

The report suggests cutting out two lieutenants of detectives, since one inspector and one captain are provided for a force of 60 other men. Ten detectives' jobs are recommended for elimination along with the positions of three precinct detectives.

The remaining 12 precinct detectives should be assigned to the Detective Bureau, the report states.

It was suggested that seven inspectors' jobs be created as recommended by Mayor Herron, but that seven captains' positions be cut out, leaving the added work to the newly-created inspectors, who also get $350 a year increase in salary.

Eight lieutenants of police and three sergeants are suggested for elimination. Other jobs suggsted for removal are one clerk, one messenger, four telephone operators, five police matrons, four turnkeys and one Bertillon clerk.

The work of five cleaners would be shifted to the new Bureau of Maintenance.

The duties of the telephone operators would be turned over to police sergeants.

POLICE SAVINGS

In all, savings recommended in the Bureau of Police are $110,290.

In both the Bureaus of Police and Fire, the report urges that regular increases in salaries brought about automatically by longer terms of service be not allowed. In the Bureau of Fire, this amounts to $38,300, and is the only reduction made in that Bureau.

Council is urged to reconsider its action regarding allowing furloughs to police and firemen. This allowance may seriously handicap city service, it is declared.

In the Bureau of Building Inspection a total saving of $46,770 is asked. The report urges elimination of jobs of plan examiner, assistant engineer, architectural inspector and one clerk, and putting 30 building inspectors on as temporary employes at $8 per day.

A new Bureau of Building Maintenance is suggested under the Department of Public Safety to take over cleaning, laboring and engineering services about city buildings. Its estimated cost is $85,572, but it would result in a net savings of $22,804 as a result of positions eliminated.

WORKS DEPARTMENT

In the Public Works Department, most of the recommendations made by Smith, namely those in the Bureaus of Light and City property had already been made to the old Council.

In the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, two district supervisors and three clerks were recommended for removal, and a reduction in the number of street foremen urged. One foreman at the asphalt plant can be taken out, according to the report, which suggested a study on closing entirely the city's North Side asphalt plant.

The Bureau of Health, a reduction, of $76,263 in the appropriation is recommended, of which $50,000 is in garbage and rubbish cost. Combinations are suggested in the various food, meat and milk inspection bureaus, for a saving of $10,520.

Positions of two auditors and a weight inspector were added in order to check the garbage weights on which the city pays removal charges.

The physician and nurse at Morals Court would go, if the report is adopted, as well as six other minor positions in the Health Department.

MAYOR'S SALARY

The report on the Mayor's office is revised by Mrs. Smith to leave in the budget the Mayor's entire $15,000 salary. Concerning this she says in the report:

"We desire to withdraw our suggestion of December 18 with regard to the suggested appropriation for the Mayor's salary. We suggest that the appropriation of $15,000 as fixed by Council should remain at that amount."

The amount of the Mayor's salary is set by state law.

In the City Assesors' Office, four clerkships are suggested for elimination, and the reduction of the chief city assessor's salary to $4,500, putting all 11 assessors on the same salary basis.

Mrs. Smith remained firm on the suggestion to eliminate two members of the Board of Water Assessors. This was in spite of the fact that the Mayor recently appointed Attorney Charles A. Poth and Harry F. Logsdon to those positions.

There is a general reclassification of positions at Mayview urged and enough taken out of operating expense to more than balance an increase of 23 nurses and orderlies at the hospital.

An increase in salary is recommended for Welfare Director Southard Hay in keeping with salaries of other city department heads. He now gets $5,000 per year.

COMBINATION URGED

The combination of the Division of Recreation and the Bureau of Parks under one park commission composed of five citizens appointed by the Mayor and serving without salary was recommended. Such a commission was authorized by the state Legislature in 1919, the report states.

Two members would be on the school board, and women would be eligible for the positions.

Abrogation of the South Pittsburgh Water Company contract for an annual saving of about $300,000, a proposal which recently failed to get action in Council, remains among the recommendations.

Should the city follow the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act rather than the City Ordinance of 1916, compensation payments can be reduced by $60,000, according to the report.

M. C. Conick, auditor for Main & Co., signed the report along with Mrs. Smith. Their work at City Hall has now been brought to a close.

Groundhogs Beat Calendar by Two Weeks

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 22.—(Universal.)—Groundhogs in the Quarryville section of this country seem to have lost their calendars. Farmers in town today reported seeing groundhogs a full two weeks before the date the marmots are traditionally supposed to emerge and look for their shadows.

What effect the faux pas of the groundhogs will have on the weather was a debatable question. Farmers said it meant spring is here.

Jurors Beat Sunday Card Ban With Dominoes

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Forbidden by state law to play cards on Sunday, the jury of two women and 10 men hearing the evidence against Tom B. Boyd, former state treasurer, charged with illegal removal of bonds from state vaults, borrowed a trick from city firemen. They played dominoes.

Warned by Judge Otis E. Hungate that they would be violating a Kansas statute if they played cards on the Sabbath, the members became so interested in their new game they refused an offer to be taken for a walk outdoors yesterday, a bailiff reported.

Firemen in several Kansas cities years ago were forbidden to play cards in the engine houses and developed the domino game known as "42." It closely resembles blackjack, except that wooden blocks are used instead of the illegal (once a week) pasteboards.

Chief Shoots Self, Leaves Vice Data

IRVINGTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Walter Engeman, acting chief of police, successor to Police Chief Andrew Coleman, who was suspended in a current investigation into a reputed police-gangster tie-up, today had shot himself, probably fatally.

Essex County Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld said the acting chief had left a note "of such importance and significance" that he would not make it public prior to presenting it to the grand jury tomorrow.

Only the Center Leaves are used in LUCKIES

For these are the Mildest and fully ripened for perfect smoking

We buy only the center leaves for Luckies. Not the top leaves for they are under-developed. Not the bottom leaves for they are inferior in quality. Only the center leaves for these are truly mild and fully ripe. And that's the fine tobacco we use—to make Luckies so round, so firm, so fully packed—free from loose ends that spill out. That's why Luckies are always mild, always truly mild. And remember, "It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

SMITH NAMED DIRECTOR OF SAFETY

police department would be "deeper than ever" in politics.

The vote then found Kane, Gallagher, Houston, Soost and Walter Demmler against Councilman Robert Garland, William A. Magee, P. J. McArdle and Charles Anderson, who made a speech lauding Malone.

McNair sat silent as his appointee was turned down. He seemed angered.

No direct reference was made by Kane to either M. L. Benedum, the party's financial angel, or to Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, the Mayor's unofficial budget observer. Kane has been aiming barbed shafts at both.

It was Huston who moved for confirmation of Smith. One by one the Councilmen confirmed. The crowd applauded each vote with handclapping, just as it had applauded the individual votes for and against Malone.

Smith, long a friend of McNair's, was appointed magistrate at Central Police Station a few weeks ago. He served first as a police magistrate years ago under appointment by former Mayor Magee.

QUIET CAMPAIGN

For a week or longer he has been waging a quiet campaign for the job, although it is doubtful that he had the support of David Lawrence, the Democratic county chairman, who has been at odds with the Mayor over patronage.

The safety director's post caused the first major split between the Mayor and his party associates in Council. When they indicated refusal to confirm Malone, who was strongly backed by Benedum, the Mayor threatened to appoint John Henry, the defeated candidate for Mayor. But the Councilmen surprised His Honor by promising to confirm Henry.

The Smith appointment will hardly please Henry, who said the Mayor had given him the impression he would be the second choice.

Smith succeeds Harmar D. Denny, Jr., Republican appointee, who has continued in office by request of the Mayor. It was Denny who took credit for the appointment of Ben R. Marshall as police superintendent. With Denny removed, Marshall's status will be a matter of conjecture.

J. William McGowan, head of the Catholic Boys Welfare Bureau, is listed to succeed Smith's police magistrate. The Mayor was ready to submit his name this afternoon, it was learned, but in the confusion over confirmation of the safety director, failed to do so.

At the Mayor's request a special meeting of Council was called for Wednesday afternoon when the appointment of McGowan will be presented.

COURT TO AIR SLEUTH'S LOVE

CHICAGO, Jan. 22. — (AP.)—Mrs. Myrtle Taner Blacklidge, formerly Internal Revenue Collector for the Chicago district, came into court today as the defendant in an alleged love triangle.

Garbed in a seal coat and a pert black hat, she watched the selection of a jury that will decide whether she must pay a $100,000 bill submitted by Mrs. Susanne Nottingham for the loss of Policeman Norman Nottingham's affections. Mrs. Taner said:

"I'll prove that long before Nottingham started taking me out, he was taking a lot of other women out."

The jury was completed shortly before 1 p. m.

Mrs. Blacklidge, whose love letters to "Dear Denny"—allegedly the patrolman—will form a part of the complaining wife's case, said she would refute the alienation charge by showing that no love existed for her to steal.

CAR, METER TAX BILL IN COUNCIL

Drafts of ordinances to tax telephones, one-man street cars and meters were introduced in City Council today by Councilman John J. Kane.

The ordinances comprise the Democratic Councilman's utility tax measure designed to increase municipal revenues.

One-man street cars would be taxed $100 a year. The Bell Telephone Company would be required to pay a tax of $2 a year on all ordinary telephones and $3 a year for hand sets or French type telephones used by subscribers. A $5 meter tax would apply to all meters used by utility companies.

ASK GRAND JURY FLOOD PROBE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Grand jury investigation of the New Year's Eve flood in the La Crescenta-Montrose district, which took more than 40 lives and destroyed hundreds of houses in this and other parts of the Los Angeles area, was asked at a mass meeting of some 500 persons yesterday.

The La Crescenta-Montrose district was the one hardest hit by the flood and the mass meeting was held there.

A resolution offered by State Assemblyman James O'Connor and unanimously adopted asked placing of "the responsibility, if any, directly upon the shoulders of the responsible party or parties."

Petitions seeking the removal of E. C. Eaton, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control District, were circulated.

TRADERS PLAN DEFENSE POLL

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—A series of committee recommendations for adequate national defense for the United States will be submitted to member organizations of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a referendum vote, it was made known today. The committee said:

"Our government should maintain our fleet at the established ratio in relation to the fleets of other contracting powers. In international agreements limiting naval armament, the United States should be assured of a fleet adequate to protect our shores, territories and possessions, and our foreign commerce to an extent equal to that enjoyed by any other power."

Funeral Luncheon Poisons Mourners

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 22.—(INS.)—Ten mourners at the funeral of Mrs. Louise S. Carles today were recovering from ptomaine poisoning following a luncheon served at the home. All relatives of the dead woman, the 10 were admitted to Altoona Hospital last night, several hours after the meal. Several others were given dispensary treatment.

Cold meats served at the luncheon are believed to have caused the attack.

Negro Vets Plan Flight to Paris

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Plans for a non-stop flight to Paris in the interests of the American Legion were announced today by two members of a Brooklyn Negro post.

The fliers, Charles M. Bolden, 34, and Lloyd V. Cox, 32, said they had purchased a monoplane used in establishing a women's refueling endurance record at Curtiss Field last year, and planned to take off early in June.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

If a Girl Smokes It Is Her Own Private Concern

If a girl friend smokes—
And a boy friend disapproves—
Has he a right to break the engagement if she won't stop?

"Adamant" broadcasting. And, believe it or not, this letter is written in the twentieth century, when women are people and have rights and everything. But that fact hasn't dawned on "Adamant" yet. And so—

My dear Miss Robinson:

I am 30 years old and engaged to a girl of 25. We both love each other dearly, but I am very, very definitely against her smoking.

She has promised on several occasions, both verbally and in writing, that she would give it up, but she hasn't done it. And the last time we spoke of it she told me she'd only promised to pacify me, and had no intention of stopping.

Her mother approves of her smoking, and doesn't think she should stop "just to please me." Unfortunately, I can't seem to learn what her father thinks, although I believe he has more sense and agrees with me. I really and truly love the girl, and I know we could get along marvelously married, but I can't and won't ever overlook her smoking, because I detest it.

I smoke myself, but—I'm a man, and it is a man's privilege. My fiancee says it is "only a little thing," and therefore nothing to argue about. I say it means everything to me and my happiness, and that she should give it up, if she really thinks it is only a trifling matter and really loves me. I am adamant.

SAYS IT IS FAD

I call feminine smoking a "crazy fad." And please note that the dictionary definition for "fad" is—"A custom, amusement, etc., followed for a time with exaggerate zeal; a hobby; a craze." And that is why I say fad, and fad only.

Please let me know what you think. And bear in mind when considering this question that from the beginning of time it has been quite necessary for a lady to maintain her femininity in order to be accepted unquestionably as a perfect lady by most people. Whereas, with a man it is different. Men have, and always will, "get away with" a lot of things and still be accepted as real gentlemen. Women are always more open to criticism than men are.

When I first met her I explained very clearly how I felt about smoking, and said frankly that I'd never stand for it in my wife. When she accepted my ring she said she'd stop, but she didn't. Your opinion on this will be most appreciated.

ADAMANT.

My opinion? You won't like it, Addy—but it's yours, gratis, with shrieks of enthusiasm.

My opinion is that you and your notions are about as great a domestic treat as a dose of hives.

To smoke or not to smoke—that's a matter of taste. Not your taste, but the lady's taste. The question is up to her to decide.

But concerning the major problem in your letter, which isn't smoking at all, there can be no question—and that is the problem of your intolerance, your egotism, your popeyed idea that men are men, but women are postscripts.

HER OWN CONCERN

Whether your wife smokes or not, of one thing you may be sure—an attitude like that would ruin any marriage.

Your fiancee may have some habits which offend you as doubtless you have scores which offend her. But get this straight: She is a person—as much a person as you are—just as intelligent, and with just as much right to decide her own destiny.

She doesn't "have to be feminine" to hold you or any other man. Even if she did, smoking in 1934 is as "feminine" as powdering one's nose. But her indulgence in that, or in any other purely personal habit, is her own private concern—and will continue to be so after she is married.

If you can't respect her or any other woman's sacred and fundamental right to be herself, there is but one answer—don't marry!

Moreover, if you've become so set on having your own way that any opposition to your opinion makes life miserable, there is also one answer—don't live. Rent yourself a nice, cozy niche in the nearest museum, Big Boy; buy yourself a nice label; swallow a couple gallons of embalming fluid and rent yourself out as Exhibit A. For, I assure you, that's the only place for gents who insist on Being the Whole Show.

And now, having given you a gentle whiff of what I think of you, let me invite several thousand lady readers to come and do likewise. Barring eye-gouging, ear-chewing and tonsil extraction, girls, the contest is yours with no holds barred. So at 'em.

Tooth, Not Patient, Interests Dentists, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

At the dentists' annual convention, the importance of that small talk with which they soothe nervous patients was emphasized.

We have long appreciated this fact. Bless them all for their "rubber drill" monologues!

Dental offices have been kidded a lot about their literature, but it is soothing also. After looking at Alpine peaks, and the Grand Canyon in an old travel magazine, one's face doesn't feel so swollen, or a cavity so deep!

But experience has taught me that the tooth, not the patient, counts most with dentists.

After they've bagged their game, these big "gum" hunters make a patient feel he has been extracted from his tooth.

I've crawled away, discarded and unnoticed while a dentist beamed with enthusiasm upon the tooth!

Madge Steals Off to Await Noel's Return

Dick looked down at me with quizzical astonishment as I whispered to him that I wished him to be ready to let Noel quietly into the house at 1 o'clock.

"The boy on the burning deck and the noble six hundred have nothing on me," he whispered back. "Why in the name of all the prophets I should be acting as an opera bouffe sentinel, when I need my beauty sleep so that I can give Mary away tomorrow with the dignity befitting an uncle, I cannot fathom. But 'mine not to reason why;' mine but to keep awake and sigh."

"You may perpetrate even something worse than that," I told him, "if you'll promise to keep Noel incommunicado until I can get down. I've got to be sure that Avis is really asleep before I come down."

I went slowly into my room, dreading any more conversation with Avis. But to my surprise she was already in bed, her blonde curly head almost buried in the pillow.

"You're sure you didn't put something in my coffee, Mrs. Graham" she queried playfully. "I never was so sleepy in my life. I jumped into bed without cold-creaming or even brushing my hair. Nighty-night."

KEEPS AWAKE

"Good night," I returned in friendly fashion, and then prepared for bed myself, laying out my lingerie, hose, dressing gown and slippers, so that I might be able to dress noiselessly just before 1 o'clock if I should be convinced that Avis was really asleep.

Never have I had a harder task than keeping awake for the next two hours in my darkened room for I had turned out my light immediately upon getting into bed. If it had not been for the fillip which my espionage upon Avis gave me, I do not think I ever could have managed it, but the fact that I had no idea whether Avis was asleep or awake saved me from collapse into exhausted slumber.

In Dicky's slangy parlance, I "had to slip it to her." If she were feigning slumber, she certainly was doing an artistic job. Her breathing was as regular as a baby's, and the only movements she made were the slight ones of a person in natural slumber.

I happen to possess an almost uncanny sense of time; I can tell within 10 minutes of the time it is whenever I am asked. So I did not even look at my wrist watch during the two hours of my vigil, for fear that Avis might awaken and begin to speculate upon my reason for watching the time. But finally, when, at 10 minutes of one, I cautiously raised my wrist near my face, and by its illuminated dial confirmed my impression that it was near my "zero hour," I decided that I would risk the chance of her being awake.

LEAVES DOOR UNLOCKED

With infinite caution I slipped out of bed and put on the garments I had laid out near the foot of the bed two hours before; then with my slippers in my hand I made my way to the door and slipped through it.

The lighted hall almost blinded me after the blackness of my room, and as I stood blinking and getting my bearings, I debated as to whether I should lock my door from the outside, thus keeping Avis a prisoner until my return.

Fortunately, however, a modicum of common sense and of humor was left to me, and I left the door unlocked. But all the way downstairs I imagined I heard footsteps behind me, although I knew that it was practically impossible for Avis to have dressed and followed me in so short a time.

I found Dicky in the library nodding over his book. He roused himself as I entered, and grinned sleepily at me.

"'Lo, old dear," he said. "There's no sign of the boy friend yet. What do you want me to do—stick around until he comes?"

"No need," I said, smiling, as the hum of a motor sounded through the quiet air. "There's Noel now."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Housewarming

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would appreciate it very much if you will tell me who gives the housewarming party when a married couple have their first apartment? Is it given as a party or as a shower (with gifts)? Does anybody have a housekeeping shower for the bride? She had a bridal shower. B.

The housewarming party, given to greet their friends in their new home, is usually given by the couple themselves. It may, of course, be arranged by a group of friends of the couple, and gifts may be brought to the party. But since, in this case, there were pre-wedding housewarming party showers, this would be a gracious way for the couple to "return" some of these courtesies. Usually after the wedding the couple plan to give some sort of party in which they are the hosts, and this is a charming type of party.

Cocktails - Without R.S.V.P.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received an invitation to a cocktail party written on a visiting party. Is it incorrect to send a typed unsigned acceptance? If so, will you kindly state in your column the accepted form of responding to any such invitations? B.

An invitation to a cocktail party, written on a visiting card, does not need an acknowledgment unless there is written on it a request for a reply . . . "R. s. v. p." or something of this kind. And it is most unusual to find this request written on the invitation.

However, if there is a request for a reply, this is the form of the reply, written by hand on the first page of double-sheeted letter paper:

Miss Alice Smithson
accepts with pleasure
Miss Mary Robinson's kind invitation to a cocktail party on Friday, the first of March at six o'clock

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Choice of a Trump Suit

Bridge players in recent years have come to realize that there are numerous hands which play better when the trump suit is divided four-four rather than five-three because the presence of a side suit of five cards affords the opportunity to discard losers, whereas with a side suit of four cards in each hand there is no chance whatever to discard losers in other suits. It is comparatively easy, by listening to the bids made by one's partner, to determine the length of suits provided partner follows well established principles in making his bids.

It was an appreciation of the advantage to be gained by selecting the shorter of two suits which permitted the North and South players on the hand below not only to reach the correct contract but to fulfill it.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡ (1)	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 ♠ (2)	Pass	4 ♠ (3)	Pass
4 N T (4)	Pass	6 ♠ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Of course, North should bid the longer suit first. The hand is of above minimum strength and North is willing to have South make a choice at the range of three between his two biddable suits.

2—When South gives a double Raise there is no question whatever in North's mind that his second biddable suit of four cards in length should be shown. In view of the double Raise the possibility of a Slam becomes quite apparent.

3—Of course, South now knows that North has five hearts and four spades. His Raise of the spade suit under the circumstances is in itself a very mild Slam try.

4—North is encouraged to reach for the Slam after knowing that he has a perfect fit with his partner in both of his suits.

5—While South has no Aces, he has the Kings of both suits bid by his partner. Therefore he knows that North has a minimum of three Aces. While there is a chance that the Slam may be beaten, the chance of making it is too good to make a sign-off bid. South realizes that there are advantages in playing a hand as close as this with four trumps in both the closed and open hands, and thus possibly using established low cards in the long side suit to discard losers in other suits.

The Opening lead was the club Queen, and this necessitated that North draw trumps at once in the hope that the trump suit would break 3-2. As this occurred, the losing club in the Dummy was discarded upon one of the established hearts. Later, when North found the diamond Ace favorably located, his contract was fulfilled.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Both sides were vulnerable. First hand bid one spade. Second hand, holding bid two spades. Was this bid correct?

Answer—No. The correct bid on this hand is a Takeout Double. The immediate Overcall in the opponents' suit forces partner to continue the bidding until a game contract is reached, and this hand is not strong enough to guarantee a successful game contract if partner's hand is worthless. If the response is favorable (in hearts or diamonds) a Raise will show a powerful hand and serve as a semi-force; but if partner cannot then rebid, a game probably cannot be made and a part-score contract will be better.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Noisy Baby Often the Healthiest

"Oh, he is such a good baby; he never cries." This is a common exclamation of the proud young mother. That's good, but young mothers are unnecessarily alarmed because baby seems to cry so much. To these anxious ones I am glad to say that the perfect baby is really a noisy baby.

Dr. Copeland

Do not be misled by well-meaning friends who declare that a baby should not cry at all. The baby can only express its needs and dislikes by crying. Of course, continued crying may be interpreted as a sign of pain or marked discomfort of some sort. It should not be ignored.

The loving mother dreads to hear baby cry. She picks up the infant, pets and soothes it unnecessarily. Baby soon learns that if it cries it will be picked up and petted. Once this habit is acquired it is difficult to break it.

When baby cries make sure it is not uncomfortable. Perhaps a pin is pricking it, or it may be discomfort of a crease in the blanket. The child may be uncomfortable because of overfeeding, or may be hungry because of underfeeding. Change of a wet or soiled garment may be all that is necessary to calm the angry baby.

But if baby cries and you are sure that nothing is wrong, leave it alone. Bear in mind that if baby learns that a cry will arou" interest from the parent, this means of obtaining attention will be resorted to constantly. That practice is not only disturbing to the health of the baby, but it increases mother's work. Likewise, it is an unnecessary annoyance to other members of the household.

The contented and happy baby lies in its crib, plays with its fingers and toes, and rarely needs outside entertainment. It is a mistaken idea that baby must be amused. Toys and ra" s are all right, of course, but to jangle them constantly in front of the child is likely to make the baby cross. If someone rattled a bell in your ears when you were attempting to listen to the radio or read a book, you would not be pleased, I am sure.

Leave the bright colored and noisy toys in the crib within reach of the infant. Let it play by itself. If it tires of one toy it will discard it for some more interesting object. After all fingers and toes are usually of more interest to the little one than too many expensive toys. In any event, do not force the playthings upon the baby. To do so may invite the crying you wish to soothe.

DOG PATTERN 601

Make This Droll Mascot

This droll dog, which might be a Pekinese or a Poodle, will meet with loud approval as a toy for a little tot or as a mascot for the college girl or her somewhat younger sister. It can be made in some startlingly gay material or just in a cotton print. He is a nice size to cuddle, being about 14 inches when finished. He is easy to make and has floppy ears, as such a dog should have, and a tail that stands up stiffly, as in the picture.

Pattern 601 comes to you with a pattern for the dog and full directions and yardage requirements for making it.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 83 Eighth avenue, New York City.

SWAHILIS CURSE HOT DOGS OF KING KELLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The "curse of the Swahilis" has descended on the Central Park hot dog vender who would not be king.

A letter from far-off Nairobi, British East Africa, has confirmed the fears of John Kelly, who politely but firmly refused to give up his hot dog business to become the head man of a tribe of elephant trackers. Kelly today said:

"It's the curse of the Swahilis. That's why business has gone sour.

"Look! (he exhibited a letter). Are those guys sore because I wouldn't be their king! Look what they say."

The letter began:

"Salanu sana na baada ya salamu naku arifu habari yangu mimi mzima na mimi nasaiuya."

MEAN BUSINESS

Kelly said:

"Now I can't translate that word for word for you, but you can see they mean business. Martin Johnson, the explorer, sent the letter on. He says, 'if you don't write an answer you will probably have the whole Swahili tribe put a curse on you, and your frankfurters will all go bad and your ice cream will melt.'"

Two years ago Kelly befriended two natives who were brought to New York by the Martin Johnsons to take care of a shipment of baby gorillas.

Kelly introduced them to such mysterious delights as ice cream cones, peppermint candy and hot dogs.

When the two natives returned to Africa they got busy and had Kelly elected king of their tribe.

The first Kelly knew about it was when he received in the mail last fall a pair of beaded belts, emblematic of the exalted position.

NEEDED FOR RECOVERY

Kelly went around to the zoo in Central Park, listened to the lions roar, and decided to mind his hotdogs. So he wrote a letter of declination, setting forth, among other things, that the national recovery plan demanded his presence in Central Park. The letter must have gone astray.

Johnson wrote:

Hussaini went to a lot of trouble making those belts for you. He watches every mail for an answer from his Bwana (King) Kelly. You can see by his letter that he's pretty sore."

King Kelly sighed:

"Well, I don't know just what to do. I don't want to cause any international complications, but I can't take that job. No, sir. I haven't had any experience at that sort of thing.

"I think I'd better send the boys some nice presents, though, and get that curse lifted."

MUSIC

Pittsburgh Symphony Society and Piatigorsky

Syria Mosque

THE PROGRAM

Finlandia ..... Sibelius
Symphony, D Minor ..... Cesar Franck
Concerto, B Minor (for 'cello) ... Dvorak
Islamey ..... Balakirew

The Pittsburgh Symphony Society, Antonio Modarelli conducting, played its second concert in Syria Mosque last night, again attracting an encouraging audience. It was a nicely balanced program and the soloist, Piatigorsky, contributed his marvelous spirit and some excellent music.

Mr. Lissfelt

"Finlandia" is now an old chestnut for orchestral programs, and yet it has a certain eloquence that makes one listen profoundly to its folk song. Last night it gave the orchestra occasion for a demonstration of its finest playing in the brass section. The symphony also takes its place with the Beethoven "Fifth" and the Tschaikowsky "Pathetique" for frequent playing and in popularity. I found Modarelli's reading of the first movement the best, the most consistently planned of this work.

After listening to the original piano score of "Islamey," I was not in the least intrigued by Casella's orchestral arrangement. This is brilliant enough and has all the earmarks of oriental music which goes of itself, but the finer coloring and clarity of the piano work is entirely absent.

Of Piatigorsky's 'cello playing, it was only a continuation of the magnificent art which for the last three seasons he has shown us in his recitals here.

Musical to the most exacting detail, dramatic in conception and performance, and beautiful in tone beyond one's best hopes for this instrument were the marks of his playing last night in the ingratiating Dvorak Concerto. The two encores from a suite of Bach he gave unaccompanied, a really magnificent example of the most delicate contrapuntal playing.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

The Pittsburgh Symphony has an audience in its own home town. Last night at its second concert of the season in Syria Mosque, the huge hall was filled as much as it is for many "big name" concerts. And Piatigorsky, 'cellist, the visiting soloist, received storms of applause.

Among the enthusiastic concert-goers was petite Evelyn Evans. Her black crepe dinner gown was distinguished by narrow fluting of white satin at the wide, high-neck line. With her was her mother, Mrs. Howard Salisbury Evans, in violet-blue crepe, trimmed with satin of the same color.

Mrs. E. V. Babcock Wears Black Velvet

Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., was there in street dress with one of her little daughters. Mrs. John A. Byerly, the Theodore F. Smiths, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose in black bagheera with a hat to match.

With her ruby red velvet dinner dress, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick wore a tiny hat of the same material. Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., a black crepe dress with a string of pearls for decoration. Mrs. E. V. Babcock, black velvet and cream lace.

Others I noticed were Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, Mrs. John A. Murtland, Mrs. T. C. Wurts, the James O. Flowers, the John W. Lawrences.

23 Women Musicians In String Orchestra

In the Pittsburgh String Orchestra, which will give its opening concert of the season tonight in Carnegie Music Hall, there'll be 23 women musicians.

Seventeen are in the violin section; two in the viola section; four in the cello.

Toscha Seidel, violinist, who'll be the distinguished guest artist, will be honor guest after the concert at a reception his hosts, the Harry B. Wassells, will give in their home for the orchestra and friends.

Social Leaders Give Concert Indorsement

Among the indorsers of the concert tonight are Mrs. Howard S. Evans, Mrs. John G. Frazer, Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Mrs. Hugh Rodman, of Oakmont; Mrs. W. K. Shiras, Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Mrs. William Reed Thompson.

Others are Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison, David Light, Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, Mrs. Jacob Simpson Payton, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, Mrs. Julian Kennedy, Jr., the Charles L. Reizensteins, Mrs. William R. Jarvis, Mrs. Edward G. Caughey, Mrs. John M. Freeman, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, H. A. Nomer, Mrs. D. M. Clemson.

Still others are Mrs. Roy Arthur Hunt, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Marshall Bidwell, Miss Helen Rauh, Dr. Will Earhart, Lee M. Lockhart, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Mrs. E. R. Weidlein, Mrs. Harry B. Wassell and Homer Saint-Gaudens.

Tuesday Musical Club's Junior Program to Be Presented Tomorrow

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Elsie Breese Mitchell, efficient press chairman for the Tuesday Musical Club, has sent out details concerning the junior club's annual program to be given tomorrow in Upper Memorial Hall, under the direction of Mrs. H. Allen Floyd and Mrs. Robert Avers.

The program is to open with numbers by the Senior Girls' String Sextet from the Edgewood High Club, directed by Miss Cathryn Carey. The selections are Rameau's "Minuet" and "Rustic Dance," by Wodehouse.

Nancy Nicodemus, from the Bach Music Club, will contribute three piano solos and then the girls' a cappella chorus from the Westinghouse High Junior Club will be heard in a group of numbers, Jane Pakham Alexander, directing. They have chosen "Overtones," by Rasbach; "Cradle Song," by Ries; Schubert's "The Hedge Rose"; Saint-Saen's "The Swan," and "The Star," by James H. Rogers.

Little Jeanne Brideson, with Ralph Lewando at the piano, will do a group of Kreisler and Bazzini numbers for violin and the program will close with the Taylor Allderdice Orchestra doing two dances from Smetana's "Bartered Bride," and Milton Thomas, violin, giving a Mendelssohn concerto. Miss Laura P. Ziegler conducts the orchestra.

During the tea hour, Mrs. Jane Lang Hervey and Mrs. J. Kennedy Irwin will take charge.

Eleanor Sloan Married to K. L. Smith

Miss Eleanor Sloan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Sloan, of Highland avenue, Burgettstown, became the bride of Kenneth L. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Smith, of Teenan street, Burgettstown, Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Sloan home. The Rev. Dr. Charles D. Castle, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, was the officient.

The bride wore a gown of melon crepe with brown accessories, and had a corsage of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Willa Smith, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, appeared in a gown of aquamarine crepe with black accessories, and wore a corsage of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley. Fred Smith, Jr., was his brother's best man.

A reception and wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, with covers laid for 14 guests at the bride's table, decorated with Easter lilies and baby's breath.

Mr. Smith and his bride are now on an Eastern motor trip.

Among those attending the wedding were Mrs. Ada V. Smith, of Burgettstown, grandmother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Ella D. Sloan, of Emlenton, grandmother of the bride; Miss Jane Lee Evans, of Monongahela, cousin of the bridegroom, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles D. Castle, of Burgettstown, and the parents of the bride and bridegroom.

Announce Betrothal At Bridge Luncheon

At a bridge luncheon Saturday afternoon in McCreery's, given by Mrs. Hugh C. Armstrong, of Ohio River boulevard, Bellevue, announcement was made of the engagement of her cousin, Miss Florence Margaret Gilliland, of Shiloh avenue, Bellevue, to Thomas Vincent Armstrong, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue.

There were seven tables of bridge. Miss Gilliland attended National Park Seminary. An early spring wedding is planned.

SPRING TAILORING FOR HATS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IT IS NEVER too early for a spring hat, even if the Christmas greens are still withering about the house, and a blizzard rages beyond the window pane. Early hats, therefore, tend toward the tailored so that they may bloom on clear days above a fur coat.

There are a lot of woollen flowers blossoming in highly stylized forms on many of the new hats, contrasting with the shiny synthetic yarns which make them. And bits of feather that look like plumage from no fowl ever hatched give a zip to other models. These are usually poised on hats of dull material.

Tie silk is being used for swathed bands on many brimmed hats that are a bit Tyrolean in shape, and there is a fair share of hardware in different metals still to be seen on late models.

Interesting pinches on crown and brim make the black toyo picture hat above excellent for wear with semi-formal silk frocks. The band and bow are polka dotted black taffeta.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Simplicity Marks Gould Nuptials

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—All the glamour which has generally been the keynote of a Gould wedding was done away with Friday when pretty Eleanor Gould became the bride of Ludlow Whitaker Stevens in the chantry of St. Thomas' Church.

It was last November when society learned that Eleanor was scheduled to become the daughter-in-law of Joseph Earle Stevens, of this city and Tuxedo Park.

Eleanor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Gould, a great-granddaughter of the late Jay Gould and the late Mrs. Gould, who was Edith Kingdon.

On the maternal side she is a granddaughter of Mrs. Hubert Vos, of this city, and the late John Lorimer Graham. She is also a grandniece of Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, of this city, and the Duchess de Talleyrand, of Paris.

Dr. Roelif H. Brooks, rector of St. Thomas', performed the wedding ceremony, with the assistance of Dr. Endicott Peabody, of the Groton School.

A. Pelham Stevens was best man for his brother.

Jewish Council Personnel Tea On Friday

Members of the personnel committee of Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, will be hostesses at a tea at the Workshop for the Blind, Craig street, on Friday afternoon.

A musical program will feature Mrs. Bess English Himelblau, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Edward Lenchner, and Mrs. Arthur Sigal, who will read.

Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, president, will explain the diversified work of council, in an endeavor to ascertain the type of work preferred by new members.

Good Shepherd Home Card Party Thursday

Another card party for the benefit of the Home of the Good Shepherd has been planned under auspices of the Ladies' Guild and will be held Thursday afternoon and evening. The affair is under the general chairmanship of Mrs. James Mawes.

Viewing the New

To find out the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column . . . CALL GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPY GLASS. Or . . . send a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

Great, big initials . . . called Jumbo-grams . . . on these white linen hankies with their hand-rolled edges! The two-tone linen initials themselves are appliqued by hand and make very sporty-looking snifflers in which to sniffle when so inclined! At 10c apiece, you can allow yourself a lot of sniffling! (Not that we would wish it on you!)

And for when you burst out into high "sassiety" there are linen hanks with lace edges a full three inches wide if an inch! And very very grand for the paltry sum of 5 for $1!

Martha Lind Creations . . . handbags this time and "creations" is the right word for them! Have you ever seen a canteen bag? One bag is fashioned into the modern version of a canteen—in a choice of colored woolens, with an adjustable strap handle to hang from your shoulder or wrist in real canteen manner!

Another style depends on an outside pocket and braided leather thongs running through it here and there for its individuality! Some have matching scarfs (gay plaids) . . . some have wooden clips to fasten them . . . and every one is so unusual that when we last looked back at them there was a cluster of women gaping there almost transfixed! In all smart Spring shades from grey tweeds to yellows . . . checks to white. All lined with natural colored linen. $5.

Baby, the little romp, must have some rompers to romp in (how's that. . .we know our "R's"). . .and here are the very ones for him. Blue or white broadcloth with cute little appliques and embroidery on them. . .some in contrasting colors. With round little collars and tiny belts. 49c. . .and a bargain! Sizes 1-2-3.

Every day our spyglass peers out new prints which have come to town. And today it's a collection of clever ones for $7.95 and $10.85 which we've found for you.

There are light and dark ones included in the group . . . with nice touches worthy of far more pennies. Touches like lingerie bows at the throat . . . little cascades of lingerie and lace all 'round the throat and at the wrists . . . three-quarter sleeves ending with elbow fulness (and this is SO good these days).

And even some plain black frocks . . . in which kind every woman likes to introduce herself to Spring! These with white crispnesses here and there also. Sizes 14 to 20 . . . and SOME half-sizes as well.

And now for a bolt from the blue! News . . . news . . . NEWS! There is a Self-Setting Permanent Wave for $1.25 . . . yes sir, right in this little old town of ours! Given by a shop whose operators have been with them for years (and therefore must know the business). So, if it's a wave you need, and you don't want to bother having it set every five minutes or so (to exaggerate) . . . then shuffle your little feet in the direction of this shop!

* * *

Rabbit skins have gone out of date to wrap your baby buntings in . . . and cellophane-wrapped nighties or kimonos are the vogue! We know where you can get nice neat, clean ones like this for only 15c each. With pink or blue edging, for infants!

Radio Auditions Open to All

From the number of letters that are addressed to the Sun-Telegraph radio editor, inquiring as to the procedure in obtaining auditions and positions of various kinds at local radio stations, the public seems to attach unnecessary mysticism and glamor to the business of broadcasting.

Auditions are open to all types of singers, instrumentalists, actors and actresses, specialty entertainers.

Go to any of the stations, see the hostess, and ask for a hearing. She will ask you to fill in an application blank, giving your experience and qualifications, and a date will be set for audition.

If, in the audition, it is found that you have something that the station needs, you'll probably get a job.

If you have some radio qualification for which there is no immediate need, but for which a need may arise, the station will make special note of it for future use.

In any case, you must go to the station and ask for what you want.

If you have a naturally and unusually good radio voice or some special accomplishment—fine and dandy!

But if you haven't, no amount of influence will help you.

There's one thing you don't need, to succeed in radio, and that's good looks.

Wales Due on Networks Saturday

By AIRCASTER.

A Prince-of-Wales broadcast from London will be brought over by NBC-KDKA and CBS-WJAS next Saturday.

The Prince is to discuss "voluntary service and unemployment," before a mass meeting of the National Council for Social Service in London.

Celebrities from the movie lots are tightening their grip on radio . . .

With the Hall of Fame series, the Troubadours, California Melodies, the Vallee guests, and the NBC weekly pickup from the West Coast, the cinamicrophoners were already in profusion.

And now the new series which Fred Waring opens via CBS February 3 will feature such personages as Will Rogers, Max Baer and ladies of the lots as well.

Maurice Chevalier might have had a place in these events, but he wanted only $8,000 for each appearance, mon dieu! . . .

Added to all this, Ted Fiorita, who succeeds to Waring's cigaret halo, likewise will bring several movie names to the air weekly.

ON ONE HAND!

"Count Your Blessings" has been adopted as the official theme song for the big radio celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday, January 30.

First playing of the ditty in this capacity will be by Aldo Ricci, at WJZ on the morning of that date.

WEAF stages a preview of the birthday event at 11:30, January 27, corralling a score of bands for the occasion.

Add to previous news about Roosevelt's objection to having his voice mimicked on the air:

Simultaneous proposals by listeners reached the March of Time directors and the White House, suggesting that the President and Bill Adams, his imitator, go on the same program and permit the public to guess who was who.

Mr. Roosevelt figured this as the last straw!

The early part of next month, NBC will be picking up the talent of associated stations in the Mid-West and South, including WLW.

An attempt will be made to nationalize inland performers, and, incidentally to cement relations with stations being wooed by the promoters of new networks.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

The most famous wreck in musical history, "The Old 97," is the promised feature of the Barnyard Frolics at 8.

Ann and Helen, with their 15 minutes of song, occupy a new early evening schedule spot.

Worth dialing — Moyer's Hawaiians at 6:15 and Eddie Peyton's Frivolities at 11:30.

Globe-Trotting

By Louis L. Kaufman

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

George Baker, hearing those Penn Township citizens amaze the listeners with their conjured yarns, wants to submit a true story every bit as fantastic as the strangest tale of fiction.

Years ago the Monongahela River was filled with catfish, commonly called bullheads. George Baker decided to spend an afternoon fishing for them and took up his favorite spot near the foot of Becks Run.

He threw in his line and almost immediately it tightened with a tremendous tug. George tugged, he heaved, he yanked and pulled. Finally his strenuous efforts resulted in the landing of a catfish so big that the river level dropped three feet. To secure the fish he tied it to a box car on the nearby railroad tracks.

A moment later the fish with a flap and flop dived back into the river pulling the box car with it.

Billie McKnight Crafton, writes that he listened to the champion 'Liars.' That made him think of his uncle who took a bucket to pick blackberries on his farm. When he arrived at the patch he threw the bucket away. He could only manage to get his arms around one of the berries.

What! No sea serpent in the Allegheny?

J. W. Rennie, I. R. K., F. G. Stacy, J. T. Shingleton — Those questions about the Old Age Pensions will be answered by Senator Frank Harris on Tuesday at the 12:15 broadcast. The Senator, one of the sponsors of old age pensions, will say something about its operation at that time.

What Price Whisky?

NEWS FOR ALL PENNSYLVANIA!

Today a new liquor era begins. An era of fine, pure quality at low price. Three inimitable brands are offered at practically pre-prohibition prices. One is a whisky; two are gins. All three are as pure as mountain spring water. Not a drop of sherry, malaga, prune juice or glycerin for "smoothing"... products of pure distillation!

Such brands must have a history of great distilling skill back of them. They have. All three are products of the largest distillery in America—the Continental Distilling Corporation. That means the finest in the science, equipment, method and experience in distilling liquor.

Priced at figures that are sensational, these brands will be in heavy demand. Not merely over the week-end—but immediately! Note the prices quoted. And particularly the size of bottle. That's important. Then hurry to your nearest liquor store for your supply.

RAIDER SPREADS MYSTERY GAS TERROR

FINCASTLE, Va., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—A series of stealthy attacks with gas on widely scattered homes in this section—made by a person whose identity is a mystery—is baffling officers of two counties today.

The "gasser" has released a nauseating gas in at least six homes, caused illness to several persons, and given the residents of this mountainous section a case of "nerves" during the last month or more.

A woman is believed to be linked with the series of attacks. Investigators have found the imprint of a woman's foot in two instances. But that is all the officers know about the strange gas attacks.

Even the motive and the exact nature of the gas used form part of the mystery.

ELUDES POLICE TRAP

In his latest attack, the gasser released gas in a home in Carvin's Cove, and then vanished without a trace as officers of two counties sought to trap him by converging from two directions. Other traps have been laid and officers have lain in wait at different points on nights when it was anticipated further attacks would occur, but the perpetrators of the crime always elude capture.

Dr. S. F. Driver, of Troutville, who investigated one of the recent attacks, was quoted by Botetourt County officers as saying he was convinced chlorine gas was used in that instance. This attack occurred at the home of G. D. Kinzie at Troutville about 10 days ago.

TERROR SPREADS

In one of the earlier attacks, occurring in December, Miss Alice Huffman, daughter of Cal Huffman, of Haymakertown, was overcome by a gas released in the Huffman home. Three seperate attacks were said to have taken place on the Huffman home on the evening of December 22.

All the victims were affected by nausea and were in a highly nervous condition for several days. Miss Huffman continued to suffer convulsions for about two weeks, though attending physicians said they believed this was caused by extreme nervousness rather than by after effects of the gas.

The motive of revenge was first advanced as a theory by officers, but this was abandoned when the attacks continued upon widely scattered homes in various parts of the county.

Eppley Will Quit As Hotel Receiver

E. C. Eppley and H. V. Blaxter, receivers for the Pittsburgh Hotels Corporation, will file their final account tomorrow morning in Federal Court. The report of the receivers will state that there are no funds, assets or property in their control which can be distributed to the bondholders. The receivers further will ask that they be discharged from their duties.

Perry High Names Graduation Speaker

Marjorie Bell, Alma Louise Harris, Robert Lang, Mary Jane Snaman, and Ruth King will give the graduation addresses at the commencement exercises of Perry High School which will be held Friday evening in the Heinz auditorium. The theme of the program is "Pittsburgh's Contribution to the World."

JUNIOR PATROL

Don't be afraid of "deep" books, fellows!

There's no fun about being dumb, fellows. Neither do we mean that you should fill your head full of all kinds of facts, helter skelter.

But on the other hand, don't be afraid of books. Get your teacher to show you a good book—and read it. If you don't understand it, keep trying and ask questions about it until you know just what it says, and what the writer of it means.

We are sorry for the fellow who doesn't learn any more than he has to. The kind of fellow who just "gets by." Don't have a lazy mind, fellows.

First today, here is a letter from Alma Young, of 100 Factory street, Monongahela, Pa. She writes:

"I am sending in 10 pledges for my club. Please send me my armband. I was elected captain. We have not thought of a name for our club. I am a Girl Scout. Our Scout motto is "Be Prepared." That is going to be our club motto, too. I have many ideas for our club. Our Scout troop gave out baskets of food to the poor for Christmas. Don't you think that was a good idea?

"We are very interested in our pets. Some have dogs, some cats, some canaries, I have a parrot, a dog, a canary, some rabbits, and some chickens. I love to read books but it is hard to get any that I haven't read. I go to the library where I can get a loan of books. My birthday is coming soon. I am in the sixth grade."

Say, we will say you have some good ideas, Alma. Sure we will send your armband right away. It is interesting that you have so many pets. And we are glad you like to read. There are millions of books, but it is better to know the good ones first, and know them well. Write again soon and let us know what you are doing.

MISSION ESSAY AWARDS MADE

The school championship trophy in the first annual Catholic students' mission crusade essay contest was awarded St. Rosalia's High School at exercises on the campus of Duquesne University yesterday.

Individual winners were Margaret Gardner, of St. Mary of the Mount School; Catherine Ward, St. Rosalia's; Mary Trageser, Ursuline Academy, and Margaret Wersing, Holy Rosary High School.

Honorable mention included Ruth Haut, Holy Rosary; Margaret Hollis and Dolores Mullen, St. Mary of the Mount; Genevieve McCloskey, St. Rosalia's, and Margaret Katherine White, Ursuline Academy.

Jealous Husband Slashes Suspect

Forty stitches were required to close the slashes inflicted upon John Day, Negro, of 549 Lowell street, by another Negro, John Wilson, 113 Carrington street, in Susquehanna street, early today, according to a police report. Wilson is under arrest. Police say he accused Day of being attentive to his (Wilson) estranged wife.

PLAN TO ADOPT OWN BABY FAILS

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Kloiber, 18, had an idea but it didn't work.

She planned, the authorities said, to adopt her own 10 months' old daughter, Mary Jane, as a foundling but, she was thwarted by the police.

As the story was told by her to police she quarreled with her husband, who ordered her out of the house last Saturday after which she sneaked back to the place and took the baby. After wandering around all night she hailed a taxicab driver in a park. She told him:

"I've just found an abandoned baby. Hurry to a hospital."

The driver hurried, but stopped en route to pick up a policeman. The baby was left at the hospital and Mrs. Kloiber was taken to a police station, where she told the story.

"I decided to make people believe I found the baby in Grant Park. I knew it would get care and nobody else would claim it. In a couple of weeks, when I had a job, I would adopt Mary Jane, but you spoiled it."

QUIZ IN 'SUICIDE' OF EX-OFFICIAL

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Police continued investigation today into the death of Edward J. Brundage, former Illinois Attorney General, despite a verdict of apparent suicide returned by a coroner's jury.

The bullet which ended the life of the Republican leader at his Lake Forest home Saturday was extracted by police surgeons and turned over to Northwestern University crime laboratory experts for examination. It will be compared with other bullets fired from the .38 caliber revolver found near the body.

The fact that the butt of the weapon was covered with a handkerchief and that there were stains, apparently of blood, on the handkerchief, led E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Better Government Association, to assert that "suicide was unthinkable" in the case.

2 CAPONE FOES HELD 'SAINTS'

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Former United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and the Rev. Henry C. Hoover, pastor of the Berwyn, Ill., Congregational Church, both of whom figured in the conviction of Al Capone, have been characterized as worthy of inclusion in a proposed catalogue of Protestant saints.

The Rev. Herbert D. Rugg, of New York City, editorial secretary of the National Home Mission boards of the Congregational and Christian Churches, in an address yesterday urged institution of a Protestant rite of canonization to "perpetuate the memory of the service to Christian civilization rendered by these men."

Johnson was the chief prosecutor at the trial of the gang chieftain and Mr. Hoover, a witness. The Rev. Mr. Rugg said:

"Modern missionary service has new forms. Mr. Hoover, Johnson and others who helped secure the verdict against Capone followed truly in the heroic footsteps of Father Marquette. Consecration and courage such as theirs makes for sainthood."

Gloria Stuart Star After Flunking In Dramatics

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—(Universal.)—Can you imagine Einstein flunking in trigonometry, of Owen D. Young failing in business administration? Well, it probably could happen!

Over on the University of California campus came the delectable Gloria Stuart of the movies. She's a former co-ed, and the faculty and students gave her a luncheon to celebrate her starring in "Roman Scandals." Miss Stuart said:

"You may be interested to know that Prof. von Neumayer flunked me out of his dramatic class when I was a student here!"

Prof. von Neumayer, his face a bit red, explained that he hadn't really flunked Miss Stuart, but that she had dropped his class.

PENSION BILL TO BE STUDIED

If Congress acts favorably upon a resolution introduced by Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, old age pensions as provided in various national systems will be studied by a federal commission, he said yesterday.

Ellenbogen also has introduced a bill to amend and liberalize the home owners' loan act of 1933. It would be empowered to that body to issue bonds of $5,000,000,000 as against $2,000,000,000 now authorized.

Of the old age pension, Congressman Ellenbogen said:

"The most feasible system of old age pensions in the United States is one that is based on a national system and not on a separate system in each state."

ANGRY FARMERS FIGHT SALE

International News Service.

WARSAW, Ind., Jan. 22.—Authorities contemplated additional arrests here today, growing out of an effort of 1,000 angry farmers to stop a mortgage sale.

Tear gas bombs were used by the Sheriff's deputies to disperse the farmers. Three were jailed for trying to stop the sale. They were Alfred Tiala, of Makinen, Mich., secretary and organizer of the United Farmers' League; Vila Tiala, his wife, and Jesse Hann, 22.

Held on charges of interfering with police, they were unable to provide bonds of $5,000.

When talk was heard of a massed attack on the jail, Sheriff Harley B. Person spirited the three prisoners from the Warsaw jail and took them to Goshen.

The farmers objected to the sale of the 15-acre farm of Clarence Gearhart, near Leesburg.

BOMBING LAID TO RUM GANG AT TRIAL

Martin, G. O. P. Leader, Says Blast Followed 'Fix' Refusal

Bombing of the home of Charles A. Martin, Republican leader, at 115 South Aiken avenue, last May 10, followed his refusal to "fix" a liquor charge, he testified today in trial of two men charged with the bombing.

Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson dropped prosecution of five defendants at the opening of the trial, saying the Commonwealth was without sufficient evidence to substantiate its charges against them.

TWO STAND TRIAL

The remaining defendants, Joseph Bondi and David Gaeto, were placed on trial before Judge Frank P. Patterson.

Martin, Tenth Ward chairman, testified that two days before the bombing, Bondi and Gaeto came to his home and asked him if he would see Police Supt. Charles Cahill and have him "lay off" Bondi's shoe repair shop. Police had raided it and found moonshine, Martin said. Martin's answer was "No," he told the jury. The next day Bondi was fined $100 in police court on a liquor charge. That night the two again came to Martin's house, he testified, told him they were going to run the shop on the square and for Martin to ask Cahill not to disturb them.

BOMBED AT NIGHT

Martin said he told them he probably wouldn't see Cahill for a couple days.

That night his house was bombed, Martin related.

The five, whom Prosecutor Jackson said he would ask the jury to acquit, are Frank Chiurazzi, Nicholas Gurgolo, John Caldone, Kathryn Cherry and her husband, Frank Cherry.

GIRL, 16, SEIZED AS RUM RUNNER

A 16-year-old girl was being held by police today following a hearing in Morals Court yesterday at which she was charged with running rum.

Patrolman Robert Wagner arrested her, he testified, when he saw her enter a house at 47½ Washington street with two bottles of whisky under her coat.

In the house, Officer Wagner said, he arrested Mrs. Margaret Trapolis, 24, and David Peppers when he found assorted liquors there. The trio were held for further investigation.

Fines ranging from $5 to $50 were meted out to alleged proprietors and visitors of a half dozen other resorts which were raided by Hill police over the week-end.

County detectives are seeking the proprietor of an alleged whisky-cutting plant and gambling house raided at 209 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, Saturday night. An electrical device, said to be used in the aging of the liquor; coloring matter, gambling devices and a quantity of moonshine were confiscated.

Home Nursing Might Cure Our Ailing Dollar

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Some days you read the dollar is stronger than the franc and weaker than the pound.

Other time you read the dollar is stronger than the pound and weaker than the franc.

If there is anything weaker than the franc then they must have set it out in the rain with the lid off.

If they just took that old dollar away from its contagious international company it would recover faster than a goldfish in salt.

There are few hospitals where they put three sick people in the same bed. Especially when they all have different diseases.

So, all we have to do to cure the dollar is to keep it home and nurse it ourselves.

ROBBERS LEAP TWO STORIES TO ESCAPE

Ransack Apartment On North Side; Get $50

Police are searching today for two burglars who leaped to freedom when they were surprised in the second floor apartment of Mrs. Charles Roessing, 3844 Baytree street, North Side, last night, it was reported.

Mrs. Roessing returned home with her son, Charles Roessing, of West View, and found the two men ransacking her apartment, police said. The men climbed through a window to the porch roof, jumped to the ground and escaped.

A check of the Roessing apartment revealed the burglars took $50. William Pfeiffer, who resides on the first floor, reported his apartment also had been ransacked, but he was unable to determine what was missing, police said.

North Side police asked all hospitals in the district to look for two men seeking treatment for injuries.

City detectives are searching today for thieves who broke into Winer's Style Shop, 1342 Fifth avenue, early yesterday. According to police, they stole a mink coat valued at $3,000 and other apparel including hats, hose and dresses valued at $12,000.

John Ponpoppo, of 3003 Elsinore square, was surprised early yesterday when he awakened and found two armed thugs in his room. One pressed a gun against him while the other looted the room. A watch valued at $50, a ring valued at $69 and $200 cash was reported stolen.

Thieves broke into the Crystal Cleaners and Dyers, 2016 Center avenue, last night, and secured loot yet to be determined, according to police. Entrance was gained through a window.

Three Hill district boys, ranging in age from 11 to 13, were arrested by police last night when they were seen walking in a downtown street with three boxes of candy, alleged to have been stolen earlier in the day from the Novelty Supply Company, 230 Third avenue.

Police said the boys admitted the robbery and that entrance was gained through a rear door. They were turned over to Juvenile Court. Because of their youth the Sun-Telegraph will not publish their names.

Another apartment occupied by Anna Gelman and Bessie Nichol at 5123 Center avenue was broken into last night. A watch, three rings, a silver cigaret case and a purse valued at a total of $126 were stolen.

Thieves smashed a rear door of the Oakland Theater, 207 Atwood street, and stole an unestimated amount of money from a candy vending machine.

G. D. EDWARDS, BANKER, DIES

George D. Edwards, 60, former president of the Commonwealth Trust Company, died today at his home, 826 Devonshire street.

For 25 years he had been active in the banking, business and church life of the city.

At the time of his death he was a director of the Mt. Lebanon and Aspinwall banks, West Penn Hospital and the Western Allegheny Railroad. He was also on the board of trustees of the Western Theological Seminary.

Mr. Edwards was a member of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church and last September resigned as treasurer of the Pittsburgh Presbytery of the church after 25 years service.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Pauline D. Edwards; three sons, George, Richard and Howard Edwards, and one daughter, Miss Mary Edwards, all of Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Shadyside church.

CWA Worker, Wife End Lives Same Day

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Twenty-four hours after Edward Suchy, 46, a Civil Works Administration worker, ended his life by slashing his throat, his 45-year-old widow, Mary, joined him in death by swallowing poison today.

Their son, Edwin, 9, was orphaned by the double tragedy.

17-Year-Old Girl Shoots, Kills Self

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 22.—Elizabeth Perickinllo, 17, of Economy, near Ambridge, shot herself through the heart yesterday, according to a Coroner's report here today.

An older brother and a sister found the body. The dead girl left no message or reason for her action.

Trade Bodies Over Penna. Mapping Program of Government Economy

Proposals Studied in View of Special Session

Governmental economies through consolidattion of many agencies is discussed in the following article, one of a series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing, showing duplication and waste in governmental operation.

A legislative program, striking hard at the duplication and waste in governmental agencies, as pointed out by the Sun-Telegraph during the last two months, is being carefully planned by every Chamber of Commerce in the commonwealth, in anticipation that a special session is to be called in the near future.

Abolition of second-class townships, consolidation of school districts and centralized collection of taxes, all of which the Sun-Telegraph has reviewed at length during the last two weeks, are but three of the many points in the program now being studied.

In a letter to all affiliated chambers, Dr. Leonard P. Fox, president of the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce, advised that another special session is expected to be called before May. He said local government finances and structure would be featured at the anticipated session.

He further declared:

"These subjects make a wide appeal and were included in the call for the special session issued November 9, 1933. Sharp conflicts over liquor control and social legislation then occupied the lawmakers to the exclusion of other matters."

PROBLEMS STUDIED

Dr. Fox, who also is manager of the research and information bureau of the state body, suggested that all affiliated organizations

5,000 Similar Events Planned Throughout United States

Young infantile paralysis patients at the Children's Hospital will benefit indirectly from the President's birthday ball to be held at the William Penn Hotel on January 30.

The youngsters at the hospital are already being treated by the same methods that are used at the Warm Springs Foundation, established by President Roosevelt in 1926. The Pittsburgh hospital is one of many hospitals now receiving information on the treatment and prevention of the disease, supplied by the Foundation.

With proceeds of the 5,000 birthday entertainments throughout the United States on Roosevelt's fifty-second birthday, the foundation will aid in establishing physiotherapy departments in many more hospitals. Victims of infantile paralysis would thus be treated in their own communities. Sixty-five hospitals are now equipped with similar departments.

All but a few of the 85 boxes have been sold for the Pittsburgh ball, which is expected to be the largest of its kind ever held. Single tickets are also available at the William Penn.

COUNTY REPORT BARES DEFICIT

How Allegheny County ran up a deficit in 1933, was revealed in the Controller's fiscal report for that year, just made public.

Appropriations for the year were $20,457,632. The report reveals that expenditures totaled $21,678,537, more than a million over the appropriation. Receipts were $19,567,010, nearly a million less.

The falling off in receipts is blamed on failure to collect the full 73 per cent of taxes estimated as forthcoming.

The county was shown to be facing the present year with a total of $8,123,649 in the treasury, as against $10,235,175 on January 1, 1933.

Outstanding taxes for the past year amounted to $5,212,840. The total in outstanding taxes, according to the report, for the past four years is $11,212,840.

Pneumonia Kills Woman After Fall

Mrs. Sarah Snyder, of 621 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, died of shock and pneumonia early today which developed following a fall in her home several weeks ago, according to a Coroner's report.

FREEZING RAIN SLOWS UP TRAFFIC

Produce Truck Crashes Into Butler Street Buildings

Skidding accidents claimed one life today, increasing the week-end automobile toll to four, as ice-coated highways played havoc with motorists.

Light rain falling on frost-covered roads, caused a slippery film that delayed buses, halted traffic on steep grades and resulted in some cars being abandoned.

John Webber, 65, of Whisky Run road, was killed today as he was walking along the Noblestown road, when he was struck by a car driven by Frank Barr, 27, of 802 Thirteenth street, McKees Rocks. Barr gave himself up to the Coroner. He said he was unable to control his skidding car.

LYING IN STREET

Stanislaus Squares, 65, of Seward street, Duquesne, was fatally injured when struck by the automobile of Paul G. Schoor, of 106 Wilmot street, Duquesne, last midnight, the Coroner reported. Duquesne police said the aged man was lying in the street when struck.

Mrs. Martha Long, 75, of 4889 Aylesboro avenue, is dead from pneumonia, which followed injuries she suffered when struck by an automobile at Aylesboro and Shady avenues, Wednesday night, according to the Coroner's report.

Dave Barnholz, 5641 Hobart street, the driver, was ordered to report to the Coroner.

Mrs. Nellie Shus, 62, of Altoona, died in Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, last night from injuries suffered in an automoble accident at Leechburg and Vandergrift roads last Thursday.

CAREENS INTO BUILDINGS

A loaded produce truck, driven by Frank King, of 44 Enon way, crashed into a pole and careened into two buildings in Butler street early today when, the driver reported, his steering gear locked.

Windows were smashed in the shoe store of George J. Henninger, 3423 Butler street, and the wall of the building occupied by the Grand Studio, 3425 Butler street, was damaged. The truck was demolished. Loss of the truck and contents was placed at $8,000. King was taken to St. Francis hospital with a head injury.

Traffic on the Ohio River boulevard was tied up for more than an hour when three eastbound buses and a number of machines were unable to climb a hill near Emsworth. County workmen scattered ashes on the surface.

MACHINE UPSETS

A sedan skidded off the Noblestown road near Crafton Heights and turned over. Ownership of the car was undetermined. Its appearance indicated the occupants had kicked out the top to free themselves.

A car driven by John E. Jayme, of the Union Trust Company Building, skidded on the Noblestown road, Scott Township, knocked out a pillar of the porch of W. J. Marsh at No. 119 and landed against the porch of Mrs. Rose Brislin, at No. 117. He was unhurt.

Several minor skidding accidents were reported from Maytag street, Overbrook and Pioneer avenue.

CRASHES INTO POLE

Richard Spardo, 19, of 304 Collins avenue, suffered a broken right leg and face cuts when his car struck a pole on Frankstown road last midnight. He was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

When his car crashed into a garage on the Greensburg pike, Wilkinsburg Township, John H. Noll, of East McKeesport, suffered injuries which sent him to the Braddock General Hospital, police reported.

TRADE BODIES WAR ON HEAVY TAX BURDEN

become familiar with the problems that are expected to be brought up at the special session.

Next month in Harrisburg the annual convention of the state chamber is to be held. It is likely that some program will be put forward so that the entire membership may get solidly behind the movement.

Among the questions the chambers now are studying will be the desirability of abolishing the second-class townships, in view of the tendency for the state to take over their highways.

Another question is the desirability of consolidating the smaller school districts into natural community units.

Point No. 3 is the desirability of integrating county government into well defined departments, for example, the state Department of Welfare is now using CWA labor to survey local poor relief in view of recommending a county welfare board.

UNIFORM BUDGETS

The chambers are also debating the desirability of uniform budgetary procedure and accounting practices in a given class of local governments, with the added requirement that reports of revenues and expenditures would be annually filed in Harrisburg and published in a form to facilitate comparison of specific costs in different units.

Another important point in the program is the desirability of providing for review of local budgets and bond issues by a state board or agency, as is the case in Indiana, or petition of a certain number of taxpayers affected.

The desirability of concentrating all property assessments in a county board of assessors, appointed by the court or by county commissioners also is being studied.

Centralized collection of local taxes, in the office of the county treasurer, on a salary basis, also is being studied in view of a change.

The desirability of extending state aid to schools by means of a graduated state income tax also is being considered.

SEEK LOWER TAXES

Last but not least, the statewide organization is contemplating a dozen means of lightening the existing local tax burden through constructive economies, without overhauling the present machinery of local government.

Virtually every one of the above mentioned problems are of great interest to Allegheny County taxpayers.

The Sun-Telegraph discussed abolition of second-class townships and also pointed out there are approximately 119 school districts in the county, many of them small. Allegheny County has two school districts that do not have a school nor a single teacher.

The Sun-Telegraph in its campaign pointed out also that a big savings could be brought about through consolidation of the county poor board and the city welfare department. It is significant that the State Welfare Department is now engaged in a survey with this in mind.

Uniform accounting system also was featured in an article during the present campaign the Sun-Telegraph is conducting. It was pointed out that the reports of the school and borough and township auditors in this county are in slipshod condition and that a uniform accounting system would result in more efficiency.

SIMPLIFIED ASSESSMENTS

The concentration of all property assessments in a county board, such as suggested by the State Chamber of Commerce, was discussed here a week ago, when it was pointed out that $601,000 has been spent in duplicated assessments in Pittsburgh during the last five years.

Centralization of taxes was another problem discussed at length. The Sun-Telegraph pointed out that several hundred thousand dollars are spent in commissions to the many collectors in the county.

As the State Chamber of Commerce points out, there are many economies which could be put into effect without special legislation, and member bodies should be ready with proposals when the advantage is offered.

To make other changes it will be necessary to have special legislation. In other cases it will be necessary to make some changes in the constitution of the state.

CREW RESCUED AS SHIP SINKS

COLON, Canal Zone, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The Royal Netherland freighter Brion sank yesterday in Gatun Lake, half a mile south of the lock, the first vessel ever to founder in Canal Zone waters.

Capt. W. H. Rohling and a crew of 22 were rescued by Panama Canal launches.

The foundering followed upon unsuccessful attempts to beach the vessel after she had developed a dangerous list. The sinking was believed to have been due to a leak which caused flooding of the hold.

The vessel was northbound through the canal with a general cargo from Guayaquil, Ecuador.

RUM SUSPECTS FREED, STATE PUSHES CASE

Three alleged liquor law violators, discharged in Central Police and Morals courts today by Magistrate Ralph E. Smith on the ground of insufficient evidence, will be prosecuted by M. P. Cimbala, state revenue agent, the latter announced.

The three are Frank Sweeney, of 49 Tunnel street; Peter Lombardo, of 1031 Bustrick way, and John Danas, 18, of 938 Bedford avenue.

TELL OF FINDING RUM

Police testified they had found a small quantity of moonshine in a garbage can at Sweeney's place and more in a hamper on the second floor. Sweeney denied selling the liquor. Lombardo and Danas were arrested while standing outside a vacant house at 1002 Webster avenue, police said. The officers said they suspected the men of transferring moonshine from an automobile to the house.

Steve L. Moley, of 39½ Tunnel street, was fined $5 on a charge of keeping a gambling house. Police raided his place, known as a Greek coffee house and found men playing cards, they testified. Four visitors were discharged.

SEVEN GIVEN FINES

Walter Bryant, of 2013 Webster avenue, was fined $25 with the alternative of 30 days in jail on a charge of keeping a disorderly house by Magistrate Charles J. McCall in Center Avenue Police Court.

Virginia Clark, Negro, of 30 Boone way, was fined $25 or 10 days in jail on the charge of keeping a disorderly house. Five men visitors were fined $5 each.

GIRL, 4, BURNED; BABY SAVED

Barbara Warren, 4, was seriously burned in a fire that destroyed her home and damaged three others today on Enger avenue, Seville plan, Ross Township.

Miss Kathryn O'Donnell, township nurse, rushed her to the Suburban General Hospital, Bellevue. Her grandmother, Mrs. Samuel Nolder, who lives nearby on Enger avenue, said she thought the child had been playing with matches and that her clothes caught fire, setting her home ablaze. Her mother, Mrs. George Warren, was visiting a neighbor at the time.

Genevieve Warren, 2, Barbara's sister, was saved from the burning home by her aunt, Iris Nolder, 15.

The rear of the home of Wilbur Conoran, his car and garage were damaged, while the homes of Thomas S. Sly and William Kuhlman were scorched. City firemen from No. 54 Station, Perrysville avenue, helped the township force fight the flames. Chief George Arbogast estimated the damage at $8,000.

About 200 children from the Ross Township Seville grade school on Enger avenue had just been dismissed for lunch when the fire started. Teachers sent them home in order to keep from hampering the firemen.

Man Found Hurt, Victim of Fall

Found lying on the ground in the rear of a vacant house at 1205 Madison avenue, North Side, last night, Joseph Saueroak, 42, of Hoff street, was taken to Allegheny General Hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture. He is believed to have slipped and fallen.

TWO-GUN GIRL CLEARED IN ROBBERY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—Isabella Messmer, the two-gun girl who got off with a parole in Pittsburgh when she was arrested there for gun toting, today was discharged when a Miami man could not substantiate his charge that she robbed him of $900.

The tap dancing Isabella was arraigned in Criminal Court, but was dismissed for lack of evidence. Carl Friend, of Miami, had charged she held him up in his own home.

The 18-year-old carnival performer was arrested in Pittsburgh last October when police found her carrying a brace of pistols.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN
The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. Lux cuts down holes in socks for the same reason that it cuts down stocking runs. It's made to keep the threads strong, "live," elastic, so each thread can stand a lot of strain without breaking. Two minutes a day with Lux saves you money as well as tiresome mending!

The Lux Way to cut down holes in men's socks

Wash after each wearing. Perspiration left in socks tends to rot the threads. Then they break easily—holes start.

Use lukewarm Lux suds. Squeeze suds gently through the socks, rinse well with water the same temperature. Hot water weakens threads, makes colors run.

Avoid ordinary soaps with harmful alkali, and cake-soap rubbing. These weaken elasticity, make the threads lifeless, apt to break under strain. Lux has no harmful alkali. Safe in water, safe in Lux!

Be sure to Lux wool socks as well as silk ones, to prevent shrinking and fading! The Lux way keeps socks perfect in fit.

DEAN OF DIETING ACTRESSES, EX-STAR, DIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Amelia Shaw Summerville, 71, a popular actress of a generation ago, died yesterday from the effects of a fractured hip suffered in a fall on icy pavement.

The actress had appeared in "Trilby" and "Mary, Mountain Maid." Her last role, several years ago, was in "The Gingham Girl."

She was born Amelia M. Shaw, in County Kildare, Ireland, taking the name Summerville when she went on the stage at 17. Part of her girlhood was spent in Toronto.

STAR OF GAY NINETIES

Miss Summerville, who was injured on January 3 when she fell outside her home, was one of the most hilarious comediennes of the eighties and nineties. She made her first stage appearance in "The Pet of the Petticoats." Another early performance was as a ballet girl in "The Black Crook," which was regarded as the forerunner of the modern musical show.

When she played in "Adonis," which ran for three years on Broadway, Miss Summerville weighed 250 pounds, although she was considered pretty and winsome at the time.

DEAN OF REDUCERS

Feeling her weight would be a handicap in her career, she undertook corrective measures which took off 100 pounds. She was said to be the first woman in New York to take up "reducing" seriously. In 1910 she wrote a book, "Why Be Fat?"

After "Adonis," Miss Summerville appeared in various productions and sang contralto parts in many Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. In recent years she had played mother and dowager roles with Marion Davies and other motion picture ectresses.

WINNINGER, OLD TROUPER, DIES

WAUSAU, Wis., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Frank Winninger, 58, veteran theatrical trouper and oldest of the "five Winningers," died at his home here yesterday. He had been ill several years.

Winninger was born in Austria. His family came to America in 1881 and organized the Winninger concert troupe, which for a number of years toured eastern states.

The family settled on a Northern Wisconsin farm in 1896. As they became old enough, Frank's brothers, Charles, Adolph and John, and his sister, Mrs. Leon C. Miller, joined the company which for two decades produced tent shows in the Middle West, and displayed its talents on show boats in the South.

Charles later achieved theatrical success in the East, Adolph left to produce motion pictures and John became noted as a caricaturist. Frank Winninger continued in stock companies.

STRAY COYOTE GIVEN TO ZOO

Peter Reiter, of 210 Hornaday road, Carrick, today was prepared to donate to the Highland Park Zoo a coyote which greeted him when he went to his garage yesterday. Reiter, aided by Edward J. Letson and William Bile, captured the animal after a brief battle in which Reiter suffered a bite on one of his hands.

Later the animal was taken to the home of John M. Phillips, at 2336 Brownsville road, an authority on wild life. Phillips pronounced it a "canis latrans," or barking dog, a type of coyote not uncommon in Indiana and Michigan.

The animal, which weighs about 30 pounds, had been seen running about the neighborhood with a pack of dogs, Reiter later learned.

Statesman Seized In Stamp Thefts

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—W. J. Walsh, minister of agriculture and mines in the Newfoundland cabinet, was arrested today charged with larceny in connection with the disappearance of part of the government's huge collection of foreign stamps.

The charge contended Walsh had appropriated from the closed Newfoundland Museum three volumes of unused stamps valued at between $5,000 and $6,000. They formed part of the government's $120,000 collection, about half of which has disappeared.

Housewives Laud Prudence Penny Recipes

Newlywed Writes of Help Given by Prize Menus

Are housewives enthusiastic over the Sun-Telegraph recipe contest? Just read Mrs. Clarence Butera's letter to Prudence Penny and see. She writes:

"May I take this oportunity to tell you what a great help you and your column have been to me during the four short weeks of my married life.

"Before I was married, I knew what the average modern girl knows about cooking, but through your contest column and your daily recipes, I have been able to serve my husband delicious and appetizing dishes.

"My one wish is that your contest wil continue indefinitely, for I would be at a loss without you."

Such letters as these make Prudence Penny very happy, for it is her one aim to help all housewives in every way she can.

Send in your recipes, which will help other women, to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Every day she awards one $5 prize and ten $1 prizes to the best recipes submitted.

STOP THAT COLD THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute on any pretext.

SEIDEL TO GIVE CONCERT HERE

Toscha Seidel, noted violinist, will appear in concert tonight with the Pittsburgh String Orchestra in Carnegie Music Hall. He will play his famous Stradivarius.

While in Pittsburgh, Seidel is a guest of Mrs. Harry B. Wassell, 600 Amberson avenue, who is one of the sponsors for the string musical group which makes its first public appearance tonight, under the direction of Ferdinand Fillion.

Seidel will leave the city tomorrow for Warren, O., where he will give a recital tomorrow evening.

PRISON BREAK LEADER CAUGHT

LANSING, Kan., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The first of seven convicts to leap to the ground after scaling a wall of the Kansas State Penitentiary here at daybreak Friday, was the first to be recaptured. Charles Clifton McArthur, sentenced for robbery, was returned to prison Sunday. The others still are at large.

McArthur, 29, was arrested early yesterday a block from police headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. He still wore his prison clothing which he said he thought might pass as work clothes. William G. Smicker, a special railroad agent, recognized the togs.

The convict said his escape was handicapped by a broken leg bone, received when he dropped too stiffly to the ground. He would not discuss plans for the break and said he did not know where the other convicts were.

Lewis Dresser, school teacher hostage of two escaping convicts returned home Sunday from Oklahoma, where he was released.

Taggart B. & O. Special Agent

Appointment of J. P. Taggart, assistant general passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad here, as special representative of the railroad was announced today at the company offices in Baltimore. J. P. DeVaughn, general passenger agent at Rochester, N. Y., was appointed general passenger agent here. The changes are effective February 1.

Girl in Argument Tries to Die by Gas

Rose Adrian, 17, of 4313 Willow street, is recovering in the St. Francis Hospital today from the effects of gas inhaled when she attempted to end her life in her home yesterday, according to a police report.

According to police, the girl had an argument with her father, went to her room and turned on the gas in a stove.

Lincoln Stamp Supply Exhausted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Demands of stamp collectors for the 3-cent Lincoln stamp for use in connection with Lincoln's birthday, February 12, has caused the Postoffice Department to order an unlimited number printed, as the supply has been exhausted. The Lincoln 3-cent is of the 1922-23 issue.

Postal officials are working on a new series of stamps to replace the present issue. It will bear the portraits of presidents.

Man Who Ran Mine From Surface Dies

PUEBLO, Col., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Andy M. Riddle, 61, known as "the coal mine superintendent who never was in his own mine," died in a hospital here last night.

Paralyzed from the hips down in a coal mine cave-in more than 33 years ago, Riddle became superintendent in 1922 of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company's Frederick mine at Valdez, although unable to go inside the mine.

The SHOW THAT MUST GO ON...AND ON

The whole world depends upon Electricity . . . every minute, every day, everything we do is affected directly or indirectly by its magic power. It is an influence so vital that we can hardly imagine our civilization existing without it . . . a power for almost everything but life itself. Yes, it is indeed a "show" that must go on: a show of shows that must be forever continuous, forever dependable.

Out front, is the vast audience of homes and industries to whom the performance of Electric Energy means so much.

Back stage, are the various agencies that make possible the performance . . . the systematic coordination of men and equipment . . . the power plants, the maze of copper highways, and the linemen—the faithful troupers who carry-on regardless of weather, regardless of storms, or of wind, or rain, or snow. They are on the job night and day in the interest of the Electric Power that comes from the huge generating plants, swiftly and silently over countless wires to the homes and industries. They are on the job when poles are down and service is endangered; when wires must be repaired, or fallen trees must be removed. They are on the job that the "show" may go on and on; that the audience out front may have those lights on or off at the touch of a switch; that they may command Electricity to do their bidding; and that they may enjoy its unfailing performance.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W: Your "Night Press Rate" stunt made for difficult reading setting it a la telegram style. The text served—but too tough on the eyes. Several called—wondered if you were "stuck" for stuff—as it seemed an easy way to fill. Magistrate Goldstein said the letters you sent him are receiving att'n . . . Rudy Vallee phoned. Said the front page stories on his arrival about him being sassy to the girls at the station were not true . . . A Dep't of Justice agent phoned. Said when you give praise on the radio to their captures to please say the agents were Dep't of Justice men, not Secret Service sleuths, as was the case in that Central Park West raid.

Lovely Wilma Cox, out on the coast for the Fox "Follies" was banged up in a serious motor crash, sustaining a broken limb . . . That dinner at Leone's in honor of J. J. McGraw had a menu all of which was prepared in the clown manner. This touched me, though: "P. S. One of the fellows we miss, our Jimmy Walker, whose wise cracks were grand, and who always rose above his wise cracks as a man among us—we tilt him one tonight" . . . The Shuberts are planning to revive the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic over the Winter Garden.

George Jessel tells about the second rate actor who knew he was only a second rater—so when he laid off—he laid off in front of Loew's State . . . Next time you chuck orchids, give one to John Wall, of No. 136 W. 50th st. . . . Mrs. Roseleigh, of Lindenwood road., Great Kills, L. I., tells me he is a sandwich man carrying a sign up and down 6th avenue . . . Last week she lost her purse containing $16. Mr. Wall, who found it, immediately took it over to the W. 47th Street Police Station. The Roseleighs rewarded him, of course, and know you would want to know about such an honest man as Mr. Wall, particularly considering his condition . . . S. Finn, who is La Belle Raft's bodyguard, is in town on business . . . Bob Hope called to offer this he and she repartee: She: "Honey, I haven't a thing on but my mules" . . . He: "That's all right, I've followed animal acts before."

The song from the new Gloria Stuart movie, "I Like It That Way," has been barred from both major broadcasting stations, so Con Conrad is preparing a new lyric . . . For the air, that is . . . Chas. Lucas is again the owner of the Maison Royale . . . The NRA has asked a biscuit company to omit the word "wine" from their wine biscuits, as they do not contain wine . . . The word "oyster" must also be omitted as the oyster crackers do not contain ersters . . . And the word "graham" ditto as they contain whole wheat and not graham flour . . . The Gershwin concert in Boston one Sunday afternoon did $4,800 . . . Ely Culbertson, who with Mrs. C. was eliminated from the bridge tournament at the Pierre, came to the NBC to introduce the winners. They were allowed 15 minutes and Culbertson spoke for more than 14 talking about his system . . . When Mr. Bernstein, the winner, was introduced (with only 10 seconds to talk), he said: "And I use the one-over-all which won!" . . . They all left the studio fighting like chorus girls—such people!

Gordon Andrews, leader at the Ha-Ha, phones his mother in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., every 6 a. m., before he retires, and often asks her to phone him from there to be sure he wakes up! His devotion to his mother is only one of the nice things about him . . . Edith Murray, who was up high a few years ago, and who had to take a chorus girl's job, so desperate was she, is getting a break again. On the air . . . Arlen and Kohler have done a new show for Eth Waters at the Cotton Club and Jim Lunceford's band there is plenty peppy . . . Frances Stutz, of the Casino de Paree ensemble, is the slugger among them—men or women, it doesn't matter. If any of them makes cracks about her Rubinoff—boff! . . . The girl with the swell figure on the Beaux Arts program is Dorothy McHugh, said to be the town's best figure model. She wants a job in a cafe show . . . Maxine Rickard's mansion, which the late Tex put $200,000 into at Miami Beach, can be had for 50 Gs . . . Ruth Hale certainly keeps her promises . . . The file of columns is out being bound—can't dig up your exact hint about their divorce of about six weeks ago.

That Tony Drexel Biddle guy who got on the front pages with Peter Arno on the coast is playing the lead role in "Young Eagle," which is about Boy Scouts, dear me . . . Lee Posner phoned in these Harlem bits of slang you asked for—"Satchel Mouth" is an earbender, who tunes in on other (hello satchy) . . . "Rug Cutters" are cheap skates who go to night clubs to dance and spend no money . . . "Beat to my socks" means broke . . . "Mr. Griffin" means a cheap customer, the phrase is "Mr. Griffin he's stiffin' " . . . "Freebie" is one on the cuff, who gets no check (a columnist) . . . "Steak, 'taters and tea" is a husband—or a guy who keeps a woman in style . . . What about your piece on slang? Use it in the column—don't send it to any mag . . . I like it. Put it in the column where it'll be seen . . . The Federation Restaurants are selling food coupons for $1 a week to men who are accustomed to good food and can't afford much money. Good idea. Its first unit is at 1160 B'way . . . The lowdown on why Mary McCormic risked a suit instead of going to keep that booking in Florida—is a nude Spanish dancer, who thought Mary gave a care about her man. She juggles a mean stiletto, I mean.

Some of the news photogs are sore because Mrs. Einstein, the Professor's fraulein, wanted $500 from them for an exclusive picture of the Prof, who played the fiddle at the Lewisohn home for the benefit of his charities . . . Einstein sends all of it to the German Jewish refugees. Tell the boys not to be mad . . . Repeal isn't two months old yet—but the word "speakeasy" is obsolete already . . . Gordon Sinclair, of the Toronto Star, will be in for an interview. Wash your neck . . . His new book, "Cannibal Quest," just came out. Plenty of "Things I Never Knew Till Now" in it for you to steal . . . I can't believe this one, but I understand that at the Hapsburg House at No. 313 East 55th Street the hat check gal hands YOU (or anybody) a dime when she returns your lid, with a very pleasant "Thank you for letting me hold your hat!" . . . I see where Barbara Hutton denies a rift with her Prince, who took another boat . . . The chatter, however, is that Alexis, who got two million before the wedding—is straining at the leash and wants to go ta-ta. Ain't I the cat, though?

STUDIO RAYS -:- Emanations From Hollywood Show What Photoplay Stars Are Doing -:- MOVIE PLAYS

Lyle Talbot's Ex-Wife Has Film Test

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—Here's news. Lyle Talbot's ex-wife, Elaine Melchoir, is being tested by two studios and, if she comes out here, don't be surprised to see her and Lyle try it all over again.

Miss Melchoir

Now a radio entertainer in New York, Miss Melchoir also has done considerable stage work. She and Lyle were divorced a week before he came to Hollywood two years ago, but have remained excellent friends. During those anxious hours after the star's recent injury in a motor accident, his wife kept in constant touch with the situation.

Unknown to Hollywood, they've been communicating regularly. Lyle got her first screen test several weeks ago with Warners. Yesterday he confirmed that she took two more tests with other studios.

"If she comes out here," admitted the star, "I think there is a very good chance that we will be reconciled."

All of which will be quite a jolt to the gossips, who have considered the handsome young Warner star as one of the most eligible bachelors in Hollywood. Many of Lyle's friends, in fact, didn't even know he had been married.

They'll tell you that Irving Thalberg's face was a study when it happened the other night during the showing of rushes of "Rip Tide." The young Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive was looking at one of Norma Shearer's scenes. Suddenly, the picture flashed off, but the sound track kept on. A child's voice asked a question, laughed, spoke to somebody, laughed again.

By now Thalberg was one big smile.

It was the voice of 3½-year-old Irving, Jr., who had visited his mother's set, and had been followed around by the microphone.

Thalberg was so pleased that he ordered a special print of the sound track made for the motion picture biography that he and Norma Shearer are keeping of their son's childhood days.

Tommy Shugrue, little read-headed electrician at M-G-M is dead, and many famous stars will mourn his passing. Irish and friendly, Tommy had made many friends during his 14 years with Metro. He met all the newcomers and helped many a one over those first nervous minutes. It was Tommy, Joan Crawford always said, who kept her from breaking up during her first screen test at M-G-M.

Miss Crawford

Two months ago, Shugrue was stricken with a throat ailment. Joan Crawford put her own doctor on the case, but nothing could be done. Tommy died.

Once in the blood, Hollywood is hard to forget. When Paramount failed to take up the options of most of its "Search For Beauty" candidates, young Yancy Lane went back to Montgomery, Ala., to take up school teaching again. He lasted just two weeks. Several days ago, he showed up in the Paramount casting office. Later they gave him a small part with Richard Arlen in "Come On, Marines."

High-heeled Mexican boots were too much for Adolphe Menjou. During a scene for "The Trumpet Blows," Adolphe slipped and twisted his ankle so badly that the company will have to shoot around him for several days . . . All that ghastly noise in Beverly Hills is a contest between Lupe Velez and Johnny Weismuller to see who can get the most outlandish horns on their automobile. So far, Jahnny leads with three bushorns, a whistle and two razzberry horns . . . Gary Cooper has been asked to contribute five sketches to an exhibition to be held in the St. Paul Public Library beginning February 25 . . . Looks as if Russ Colombo is going to entertain on a large scale—or is it something more romantic? He is taking a large house in Beverly Hills . . . Latest bosom friends in Hollywood are Joel McCrea and Leslie Howard . . . Joan Crawford is buying a daschund just like the one she gave Franchot Tone for Christmas.

Britisher Given Part Of Marc Antony

After a fruitless search of the New York stage for an actor to play the role of Marc Antony in Paramount's forthcoming production, "Cleopatra," Cecil B. DeMille returned to Hollywood and selected Harry Wilcoxon. He is a young Englishman recently brought over for a role in "Shoe the Wild Mare." DeMille made arrangements to borrow the young actor for "Cleopatra." Wilcoxon, who has never appeared on the American screen, will play opposite Claudette Colbert in the production.

Exciting Race On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

One of the most dramatic climaxes to a horse race ever brought to the screen is contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. It is the race for the Viceroy Cup at Calcutta, India, in which Sans Ame, the favorite, is nosed out. The Globe Trotter describes the race.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, backs President Roosevelt's gold plan and in a statement reassures the American people that it will place the country on a firmer financial basis and help recovery.

The New Jersey Motor Vehicle Commission stages a thrilling exhibition of improper driving that results in most of the accidents.

Weapons of all kinds captured from gangsters and other crooks in Chicago are thrown into a furnace and melted into metal for shovels.

Blueblooded dogs are paraded by their owners in Palm Springs, Cal.

Unexpected storms lash Sydney Harbor, Australia, into fury and thrilling pictures show big liners battling their way out to sea.

To protect their goats from the severe cold, Texas herders provide each animal with a warm overcoat.

First pictures ever taken show the famous fire-walkers of Kamakura, Japan.

Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Queen Christina," starring Greta Garbo, today began the second and final week of two showings daily in the Nixon. John Gilbert plays opposite the star and Lewis Stone has a prominent role.

Next week's attraction in the Nixon, "School For Husbands," comedy with music, adapted from the French of Moliere by Arthur Guiterman and Lawrence Langner, is a Theater Guild production with June Walker, Osgood Perkins heading the original cast from the Empire Theater, New York. It has music by Edmond K. Rickett and dances by Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman. It will be the fifth play in the local subscription series of the American Theater Society.

A number of Pittsburgh friends of Earl Carroll are planning to greet him at the Pennsylvania Station tomorrow night. Earl, who will be en route to Hollywood to assist in filming of his new production, "Murder at the Vanities," is taking 11 girls, beautiful, of course, to the movie capital. At the other end of the line 11 California peaches will be picked to engage in a contest of prettiness with the eastern bevy as part of the movie.

Katharine Hepburn's next picture will be titled "Spitfire," instead of "Trigger," the original title of the Lulu Vollmer play. Robert Young and Ralph Bellamy are in the cast.

Lively Farce Heads Bill In Fulton

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Take one naive Scandanavian janitor, persistently thwarted from going to the movies on his night off, and repeatedly threatened by a fatality, one perpetually ludicrous and inebriated scion of an old wealthy family, at least two pretty girls in distress, a raving disconsolate lover, a scheming mother, a bunch of tough gangsters, a flock of dogs of all sizes and descriptions, several speakeasies and a great many funny situations, nicely inter-complicated, are apt to ensue.

They do in "Olsen's Big Moment," with El Brendel, in the Fulton. Unlike the "Grand Hotel" employe who yawned through life because "nothing ever happens in this place," Knute Olsen is the center, the hub, the pivot for all things that happen in "Cromwell Arms," where he is the "yanitor."

Whether it is to fix a broken water pipe, to escort a drunken guest to a taxi, to sooth a love-lorn youth or take innumerable dogs for a stroll, Knute is kept on the jump, his days and nights, even his night off, a discordant brass symphony of other people's troubles. He has a positive inability to keep himself disentangled from other people's lives. He and his necktie, which flies off at the slightest provocation, are very funny.

It would be hard to say which of Knute's moments—they are innumerable—is meant by the title of the picture, "Olsen's Big Moment," unless it is the climax which results in his promotion from janitor to manager. Most of his moments are shared by Walter Catlett. Barbara Weeks and Susan Fleming are feminine support.

Happily, no musical short subjects with stenographers or telephone operators turning into chorus girls at an instant's notice are in the Fulton this week. Instead there are an organlogue of "Melodies of Love" from several nations, another of those fine adventure travelogues of the Far North, "Aniakchak," or the adventures of Father Bernard R. Hubbard in an Alaskan inferno of ice and fire, Hearst Metrotone News and Newslaughs, compiled from the press of the world by Irvin S. Cobb.

Aliquippa B'nai B'rith Will Hold Banquet

Sidney A. Teller, of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, will be guest speaker at the Aliquippa B'Nai B'Rith Lodge No. 1125 annual banquet next Monday evening, to be held in honor of the retiring officers of the lodge. The banquet will be followed by a dance.

Miss Robson Stage Star 32 Years

For 32 years, May Robson starred in stage plays produced by the Frohmans, Daniel and Charles, without so much as a pen scratch on a contract.

Miss Robson told of this unusual association during the filming of her new Cosmopolitan picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, "You Can't Buy Everything."

"During those 32 years," she said, "we had a sort of a 'gentlemen's agreement.' If one of the brothers did not have a play for me I would work for the other brother.

"I always rehearsed our new plays on the road as we traveled around the country. When the new play was ready for presentation, we would first try it out on the road and, if it was successful, we would return with it to New York for the long runs. It was wonderful training for all of us.

"Those were really the days in which the story of 'You Can't Buy Everything' was laid."

In "You Can't Buy Everything" May Robson plays the role of an eccentric, rich widow who lives in poverty, hoarding her money with the idea of making her son the richest man in the world. She shrewdly manipulates stocks on the basis of inside information and gains control of the largest bank on the street, only to meet with unexpected dramatic consequences.

This role is said to be even a greater characterization than that turned in by Miss Robson in "Lady for a Day"—the picture which resulted in stardom for this veteran actress. Included in the cast are Jean Parker, William Bakewell, Reginald Mason and Tad Alexander.

The story is an original by Lamar Trotti and Dudley Nichols, and was directed by Charles Riesner.

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

Strictly Confidential.

IN A prison not far from New York, one of the inmates is an elderly card sharp who has been stepping in and out of jails most of his life.

He isn't far from 60 now, and he's in the middle of another five-year stretch.

That gives you a rough idea . . .

Our friend has a strange way of passing time.

Working with a greasy pack of cards and an old mirror, he will sit in his cell—alone—and deal out four hands.

As if there were three others with him, he asks each hand what it bids—and then answers his own question by examining the other hand and bidding himself.

Every once in so often, especially when he is shuffling the cards, he glances into the mirror and watches his nimble fingers work.

He smiles with satisfaction, and goes on dealing day after day, month after month, year after year.

And always alone . . .

A few weeks ago, a new inmate—young and hopeful—paused to watch the old card sharp as he went through his daily routine.

He saw the mirror, and the four hands, and he was unable to comprehend the entire thing.

He watched silently as long as he could, and then he spoke up:

"I don't get it," he told the old timer. "What's the big idea?"

"No idea," replied the other man quietly. "Just practising."

"Practising?" repeated the newcomer. "Practising what?"

The old man shuffled the cards, his eyes sparkling as he watched his hands moving in the mirror.

"Son," he murmured happily as he dealt out the cards, "I've been doing this now for 44 years. And not once have I caught myself cheating!" . . .

BROADWAY conversation. Actually overheard in a restaurant the other evening:

"What a time I had the other night at Bill's party! What a time!"

"Yeah? What'd you do?"

"That's just it. I don't remember a thing about it. So I must have had a great time!"...

OUT in Chicago, Mr. Alvin Hamburg has a friend who was recently in need of spiritual guidance.

The lad went to the proper source, and was quickly advised that wine, women and song were the ruination of man.

Being a wise youth, he knew exactly what to do.

He stopped singing. . .

Seena Owen Writer

Often on the Hollywood lots one sees once-famous actresses and actors plugging away at small or secondary roles in an effort to eke out a living or to regain lost fame.

But you don't see Seena Owen among them, although this early film "exotic" still is active in pictures.

The girl who went into pictures for D. W. Griffith in 1915 as Signe Auen (a name that was promptly changed), may be found in front of a typewriter instead of facing a make-up mirror.

She explains:

"Since I started with Mr. Griffith I had worked for practically every major producing company and for many of the minors.

"One day, a few years ago, came the realization that another field of endeavor would be advisable. The public demand is always for new faces, new personalities, new favorites on the screen, I had had my full share."

So, not being in very good health at the time, she revived an old ambition to write. A play she submitted to Paramount brought her present job on the studio's writing staff.

She says:

"Whether the play is good or not I don't know. But something in it gave the company the idea that I could be of use as a writer—and here I am.

"I love the new work. Better than the acting? Well, I don't know. I think so. There's a keen pleasure in creative work, even in the effort alone."

Comedienne

Ruth Roye, singing character comedienne, will be a special feature on the Pitt stage Friday, when the new stage bill will be "Sweet and Lowdown."

Leroy Envied For Car

Hal Leroy's real name is Leroy Schotte, and he comes from Cincinnati, where his father, a lumber company executive, did not interfere with his ambitions to become a dancer and actor.

"I could have studied law or medicine or anything—but all I wanted to do was dance," Hal says. "I never liked school, and dad let me choose the work I have my heart set on."

So he quit in second year high school, and went to New York where—not then but later on—he was to be featured in musicals along with Harry Richman, Lupe Velez, Ruth Etting, Jimmie Durante and other stars. He is 20 now.

Hal had his specially-built car—specially built for Harry Richman and acquired by Hal at a bargain—shipped to Hollywood from New York and it's the envy of the "high school types" assembled for his first feature film

But of more interest to fans generally should be the plan to present him next in a talking version of Booth Tarkington's story of adolescent youth, "Seventeen."

Fay Bainter Swipes Hollywood Posy

Fay Bainter's first picture is "It Happened One Day," opposite Lionel Barrymore. She is enthusiastic about the part and the picture—but she makes her moan, too, of Hollywood.

It's "heat." It kept her awake at night—but then she lives on a farm near Ossining, New York, where it gets cold. She hasn't seen Garbo, not even from a distance. And for a crowning sorrow, her contract kept her in Hollywood beyond Christmas, away from home and her 10-year-old son.

"But it is beautiful," she granted. "The flowers are unbelievable. See"—exhibiting a posy—"I stopped by a garden today and swiped one. I really couldn't help it, and I did try to select a vacant house. I didn't think the people would mind!"

Connie Sings In Film

"Moulin Rouge," Twentieth Century's contribution to the musical cycle, stars Constance Bennett in a piece that for plot reverses an angle of the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne film, "The Guardsman."

Connie plays a dual role, appearing first as the brunette wife of a playwright (Franchot Tone) who disapproves of her stage ambitions. As her blonde self she portrays a pseudo-French star from Paris' Moulin Rouge.

The Moulin Rouge girl, it develops, was Helen's partner in a vaudeville sister-act, and she aids the wife in a plan to prove to Franchot that she really can act.

The brunette Connie becomes a blonde and takes the blonde Connie's place—whereupon she is dismayed to learn that her husband finds her new self very attractive.

But it isn't very serious, and there are the usual elaborate chorus spectacles interspersed. And—oh, yes, Connie sings.

Make this lip test

LOOK at them . . . and your cheeks, too, without make-up. Do they possess the natural glow of health, which comes from a sufficiency of rich, red blood? If they do, make-up is simple . . . if they don't, read on . . . you may find one of the reasons why your skin is not clear.

It is well to remember that a probable reason why you do not have red lips, rosy cheeks, good health, energy and cheerfulness is that your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

Neglect of diet, worry, overwork, colds or sickness, frequently break down and retard the natural development of the red-blood-cells and their oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin.

Why not set in motion the rebuilding of those all-important blood-cells instead of procrastinating and sacrificing your appearance and the feeling of being well and fit?

Though you have no organic disease,* you may have a lowered red-blood-cell count with deficient hemo-glo-bin. When this occurs, and it is very common, you need a tonic. Not just a so-called tonic, but a tonic that has the virtue of stimulating gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion, as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, we recommend S.S.S. because its value has been proven by generations, as well as by modern scientific appraisal.

S.S.S. is truly a blood and body tonic. It is carried by every drug store in America in two sizes—the larger being more economical.

Consult a physician, of course, if you suspect any organic trouble.*

Some interesting facts about the Blood

About 8% of the body weight is blood. It circulates over the entire body something like 200 times daily. On each trip it passes thru the lungs, before entering the heart, to throw off dead air from the tissues and to take up the vitalizing oxygen to convert food material into tissue repair and energy. The only way food can be utilized in the body to give it heat and energy and replace worn out tissue is to combine it with the oxygen released from the blood in the tissues. Hemo-glo-bin of the red-cells carries the oxygen. It is just as important that the hemo-glo-bin be kept up to Nature's standard to insure that the body tissues get their oxygen and can remove the waste matter as it is to eat nourishing food. Constant rebuilding of the red cells is necessary, as their ordinary life is only about 30 days, and extra help is needed when they are below normal.

Realistic Fire Featured

Two young men who plan to make pictures with settings over the "seven seas," offer in "Cane Fire," a film containing, among other things, what may rank as the screen's biggest fire scene of the year.

Count Alfredo di Carpegna and William Fiske, III, are the producers, embarking on their careers with this picture, filmed and recorded on an authentic sugar plantation in Hawaii.

Their setting is not the conventional Hawaii of popular song and of tourist guidebooks, featuring hula girls in grass skirts, but the island of Kauai, where the white men whose lives are devoted to sugar struggle along without the aid of much civilization.

The story is of the conflict between a native girl (Mona Maris) and a white society darling (Virginia Cherrill) for the heart of the young plantation supervisor (David Newell).

Driven by loneliness, David takes Mona as a native wife, but on a business trip to San Francisco he is ensnared by blonde Virginia, whom he marries.

Back on the island, Virginia soon becomes bored and welcomes a visit from a former suitor (Hardie Albright). Heart-broken, Mona is about to marry a native when the plot thickens and the cane fire, dread of the plantation, strikes and rages with spectacular effect.

Fields Kids About Kids

W. C. Fields' publicized "feud" with Baby Leroy needs light thrown on it. Bill probably started it when he cracked one day that he'd like to take a punch at the youngster—'only on second thought," he says, "I decided I'd better not—he's pretty husky."

But for the ways of infant stars in general Mr. Fields has but a bitter smile, springing from memories, no doubt, of hours spent waiting for infant monarchs of their infant stand-ins to cease crying or sleeping and proceed with a scene.

"I take it you're fond of children," someone remarked.

Bill's comeback was swift, given with a sound between a snort and a titter:

"If they're properly cooked!" he said.

Popularity as Measured In Film Footage

Stardom, a glory bestowed by public acclaim, can be measured with statistical accuracy in the film cutting room. As a player's popularity increases in reports to the front office, the amount of footage he is granted in his pictures grows accordingly.

Frederic March appeared in 5,000 of the 6,600 feet of "Eagle and The Hawk," in 4,800 out of 6,800 of "Tonight Is Ours," 8,400 out of 11,000 in "Sign of The Cross," and 7,000 out of 8,000 in "Design For Living."

Mae West has made only two films but statistically it can be shown that Miss West gives of her personality generously. The two combined represented a footage of 133,800 feet. You saw Mae in 12,500!

ROBERT G. WOODSIDE, CONTROLLER, ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNA.

PANTHERS AND DUKES SHARE BASKETBALL SPOTLIGHT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Mungo Brooklyn's Hope. Tipped for Big Season. Bouts of 1907 Recalled.

Luque Heartens Hurlers. Pitt Halts Irish Drives. Jinx Trails Petrolle.

While not making any pennant claims for the Dodgers in very loud tone of voice this year, Brooklyn fans are confident that at least they're going to have the National League's leading right-hand pitcher. They refer to Van Lingle Mungo. And there are quite a few outsiders in baseball who share their belief that it's going to be a big year for the smoke specialist. The new ball may lessen the effectiveness of the average pitcher, but Flatbush folk contend that no batter can hit a ball that he can't see, and they think Mungo has gained just the poise he needed to make him the outstanding hurler of the senior loop, regardless of the opposition he will get from such rivals as Dizzy Dean and Lonnie Warneke.

Van Mungo

Truth to tell, Mungo did appear greatly improved last year. He gained control of his temper as well as of the ball, and though he got only a shade better than an even break in the Won and Lost columns, with 16 victories and 15 defeats, he made the impressive earned-run average of 2.72, which tied him with Larry French for eighth place among the National League hurlers in effectiveness. Ready to start right in this year where he left off last fall, Mungo bids fair to rank right up with the best power pitchers of the season. There is no doubt of his speed. He beat Vernon Gomez in a test last season, the machine registering the velocity of Mungo's pitch at 113 feet per second.

MASON RECALLS OLD M'KEESPORT BOUTS

Red Mason, veteran boxing manager, whose connection with .e ring game dates back beyond that of most other men now prominent in the sport, always had a hobby for saving programs and other souvenirs of fight shows. He has them from the time of the Corbett-Sullivan battle at New Orleans in 1892 and the Fitzsimmons-Hall affair in the same city one year later. Announcement of the scheduled revival of professional boxing in the McKeesport Palisades tonight prompted Mason to delve into his collection and send a card listing the bouts staged at a show held at Coliseum Hall in the Tube City more than a quarter century ago, Decembeer 18, 1907.

The main bout was between John Scarry, of Duquesne, and Jimmy Manning, of Lawrenceville, with preliminaries between Bill Duffy and Frank Wango, Mike Lutz and Eddie Taylor, and Dick McCracken and Jimmy Carney. Scarry, then a 105-pound boxer, is now athletic director at Homestead Library A. C., where he has developed some great swimmers, including Champion Lenore Kight.

"I just read in your column that my good friend, Jim McGirr, is going to resume holding professional shows in McKeesport," Mason writes from Chicago, "and I hope sincerely he will have great success from the start. McGirr was one of the few promoters around Pittsburgh who always staged good shows, and who really gave Cuddy DeMarco and some more of my boxers their starts. McKeesport was the spot where some of the best youngsters got a start, and one place where I made it a point never to miss a show. It seems only yesterday that I attended the show at which Scarry and Manning fought. I surely would like to go back to some of the days I spent in the Tube City, if for nothing more than to hear that gallery gang yell at me.

"Lew Raymond has a great card and a good fight in that Teddy Yarosz-Jimmy Smith match. I am picking Yarosz to win."

CURVE PITCHERS MAY MASTER NEW BALL

Fred Frankhouse, of the Boston Braves' mound staff, can't see any reason for the sorrow that is being expressed for the National League pitchers in connection with the livelier ball they will have to throw next season. Frankhouse, who owns the best right-hand hook in Bill McKechnie's hurling department, insists that the new pellet will be no handicap to the curve-ball pitchers, at least. And he offers some strong evidence by pointing to the performance of 43-year-old Dolf Luque in the final game of the 1933 World Series. Finishing the contest as a relief pitcher, Luque allowed only two hits in four and one-third innings, and struck out Russell, Myer, Goslin, Bluege and Kuhel, fanning the first-named three in a row in the seventh frame.

Fred Frankhouse

As the game was played in Washington, Luque was working with the American League ball that will be used in the National this year, and Frankhouse reasons that other curve-ball hurlers will be able to master the sphere just as the Cuban did.

PITT AGAIN SMASHES NOTRE DAME STREAK

Notre Dame's winning streaks in basketball continue only until the Irish run up against Pitt. History was repeating when the Panthers toppled the South Benders here last Saturday night, 39 to 34, to halt their drive of 22 straight victories, the longest run in the history of the school, for three years ago George Keogan's stars invaded Pittsburgh with a string of 21 consecutive wins to their credit, only to be stopped in the same fashion. And it was Pitt also that plastered the last defeat on Notre Dame, 39 to 35, just before the Irish started on their 22-game streak.

The South Benders had routed all previous opponents this season, piling up 406 points to the enemy's 271 in eleven games, but, as usual, Pitt was just a bit too much for them. Since Coach Keogan took charge in 1923, Notre Dame has won 168 basketball games while losing only 50. That's a percentage of .711, or better than three victories in every four games, but against Pitt the percentage of the Irish up to date is only .471. The Panthers have trimmed them seven times in 12 meetings since they opened relations seven years ago, and of the last nine games, Pitt has won six. Only once in six appearances have the South Benders been victorious on the Panther floor. A lot of other coaches around the country who have been trying in vain to trip up Notre Dame might well apply to Dr. Carlson for the prescription.

PETROLLE CROSSES FINGERS AWAITING GO

Billy Petrolle heaved a sigh of relief when Barney Ross arrived in New York last week and reported himself thoroughly fit again and all set for Wednesday night's 10-round bout, postponed from a date in early January because of an injury to the Chicago fighter's right side. But Petrolle says he is keeping his fingers crossed and won't feel safe until he sees Ross in the opposite corner of the Coliseum ring. So many fights have been erased from Billy's calendar because something happened to his prospective opponents that he no longer takes anything for granted.

Billy Petrolle

Bep Van Klaveren caused Petrolle more inconvenience and expense in that way than any other foeman. Illness or injury caused Bep to postpone their proposed second meeting so often that the Fargo Express finally asked his manager to rub the Hollander's name off the list. It was the first of these postponements that caused the ill feeling between Manager Jack Hurley and the Madison Square Garden promoters. The latter refused to pay Petrolle $265 for traveling and training expenses, and as a result Hurley has kept Billy out of the Garden ring for the last year.

Brentwood Senior High Stars and Coach Compiling Fine Record

WILLIAM LACH, Forward

COACH LEO HARROLD

CORBERT DE COURDRES, Forward

Enjoying its first season as a member of the W. P. I. A. L., Brentwood High School is threatening to run away with the championship of Section XII, having won four games without a defeat. Harrold, a former Slippery Rock College star, has been coach at the school for six years. His entire first team will be graduated in June. Lach is leading scorer. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

BRENTWOOD HAS CONTENDER IN SCHOOL RACE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Some may consider it "beginner's luck," but those who have seen the crack Brentwood High School basketball team in action in the Section XII race of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League, are predicting that a new champion will be crowned in this division this season.

Brentwood High School, a comparative newcomer in W. P. I. A. L., having been admitted only last fall, is making rapid strides in athletics and is certain to bear watching in the races for the basketball and football championships.

Getting away to four successive victories in league competition, including a one-sided triumph over Robinson Township, last year's sectional champion, Brentwood is well on its way to the Section XII crown.

Unless a flock of injuries or other unforeseen mishaps retard the progress of the Brentwood passers, they should remain in the running from start to finish.

COMPOSED OF VETS

Brentwood's quintet is composed mainly of seniors who will be graduated in June. In the league campaign Brentwood scored a 41-15 victory over South Fayette, a 31-21 triumph over Bridgeville, a 32-8 decision over Peters Township and a 37-18 verdict over Robinson Township. Brentwood will complete its first half schedule Friday when Bethel Township is met. If it defeats Bethel, Brentwood will have defeated every other member in the section.

Besides its perfect record in league competition, Brentwood's quintet has made an impresive showing in pre-season games, losing only one contest in four starts, Springdale winning a 23-22 decision. In the other pre-season engagements, Brentwood defeated Stowe Township, 28-12; Mt. Lebanon, champion of Section IX last season, 25-24, and the Edgewood Deaf Mutes, 43-23.

HARROLD FINE COACH

Leo Harrold, a graduate of Slippery Rock Teachers College, has been coaching the Brentwood High quintets for the last six years. Four members of the regular squad were stars on the 1933 football team, which turned in a creditable showing against the best Class B elevens in the W. P. I. A. L. Jack Swift, sterling center of the basketball team, was halfback and end on the grid eleven; Robert MacWhinnee, a guard on the floor machine, was halfback and quarterback in football; Howard Flock plays center on both the basketball and football teams, while

Chillysauce

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Fred Schulte, the big hawk of the Washington outfield, and Blondy Ryan, of the Giants, offered what I would term the most dramatic touches baseball flashed in 1933 . . . This is said with due appreciation for the pitching feats of Carl Hubbell and Mel Ott's homer that won the world series.

Schulte's unselfish attempt to catch the homer referred to in the preceding paragraph will stand out in my memory as one of the grandest things I have yet seen on the diamond . . . The 190-pound sprinter courted permanent injury for the honor of his ball club. Although Fred failed by a hair as he endeavored to snatch the rocket out of the bleachers, his courage and skill as he crashed into the low barrier could not have been improved upon had he saved the day.

Forbes Field was the scene of Ryan's exploit. . . It was a feat of the early season, but the fate of a pennant seems to have been riding with Blondy that afternoon. . . Rain cut the scheduled series to one game between the Pittsburgh and New York contenders. The Pirates threatened to win in a walk as they piled up a lead. . . Three more Buccos were on the sacks with two out when Arky Vaughan stung what started out like a cleanup triple toward the left-center pocket.

Ryan took a chance of playing a deep field for the young slugger. . . Here was one instance where Blondy's exceptional height and his long reach stood in his stead. As the rocket streaked over the infield, Ryan let go with a frantic high jump and fell back to earth with the sphere in one hand. . . Three runs were spoiled, the Giants picked up a lot of bats, tied up the old ball game and then Gus Mancuso untied it with a homer to win.

The Schenley Park golf links yesterday offered a picture that made passing motorists think the summer was upon us . . . The midwinter setting was unusual with golfers awaiting their turns at many tees, and this in he absence of putting greens. . . . Monte Oneretta was splitting the fairways with 250-yard drives.

Jim Marks, the sage of Kiski, is our authority for the contention that the two best conditioned football clubs of the East were the Dukes under Elmer Layden and the Tigers under Fritz Crisler. . . . The late Knute Rockne, an expert in chemistry and diet, knew how to bring boys up to a physical peak. . . . Rockne used a concentrated form of sugar to produce quick energy on a football field. . . . A lot of sorrowful rooters of Notre Dame saw Mike Sebastian produce quick energy without the use of sugar.

Professional boxing returns to McKeesport tonight with an eleventh-hour switch in the program, due to the fact that Al Rossi, of Newark, N. J., who was to box Billy Holt, Negro middleweight, of Homewood, in the 10-round main bout, was knocked out by Red Affinito in New York's Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Unable to obtain a suitable main bout attraction to oppose Holt, and taking cognizance of the fact that his home fans were more interested in the scheduled eight-round semi-final between Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and Dominick Mancini, of the North Side, Promoter Jim McGirr yesterday resigned Bazzone and Mancini to top the bill in a 10-rounder and signed Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, to battle Holt in the six-round semi-final. Holt and Speigal boxed a six-round draw at Hickey Park some time ago.

Just to show you how such things work out, McGirr's original intention was to offer a double windup, with the Mancini-Bazzone bout one of the 10-rounders, but Mancini's manager, Gus Camp, held out for eight rounds instead, and now he has the 10-rounder after all, and Mancini is very much on the spot. If he loses to Bazzone, the latter likely will take his place against Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, on the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith card at Motor Square Garden Friday night of next week.

Two Clairton amateurs will turn professional in the six-round preliminaries tonight, Farmer Bill Schwerin, middleweight, against Kid Berry, of Kittanning, and Irish Jimmy Ferry, featherweight, against Joey Adams, of Johnstown.

The first bout will go on promptly at 8:30 o'clock. This is the first professional boxing show in McKeesport in many months.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Lew Raymond, who is promoting the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith fight, along with Jules Beck, says he never heard of a Smith who was a poor fighter, and cites the following examples: Mysterious Billy Smith, Jeff Smith, Sonny Smith, Gunboat Smith, Steve Smith, Sammy Smith, Young Sammy Smith, Cyclone Johnny Smith, Midget Smith, Harry Smith, Rocky Smith, Tiger Roy Smith, Homer Smith and Matt Smith . . . Read that out loud, and if your tongue isn't tied, you'll say, "Damn those Smiths."

Raymond says nothing about the Smith Brothers, Trade and Mark, nor about the Village Blacksmith, nor the Schmidts, nor the Smythes, nor the Smithers clan, but you get the point . . . He wants to make it plain that there have been more good fighters named Smith, even if that wasn't their real name in many instances, than there have been famous Yaroszes in the ring . . . Such a man!

Charley Dunn, former Ambridge boxer, is now in San Antonio after leaving Miami, Fla., and stopping off en route in New Orleans . . . He's the good will ambassador for Steve Horlick . . . Answer to query (Harry Schaeffer): The Pirates paid $29,000 for Marty O'Toole and Billy Kelly . . . Twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars for O'Toole and the other $6,500 for Kelly, his battery mate.

Phil Goldstein, manager of Al Quaill, local amateur middleweight star, is on the warpath . . . He wants a better spot on the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith card at Motor Square Garden, Friday night of next week, than the opener, which has been assigned his man, who makes his professional debut against Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale . . . He says many of the fans who will attend will go to see Quaill do his stuff and he doesn't think it is fair to either them or to Quaill to have him box while the fans are getting seated . . . He has taken up the matter with Matchmaker Lew Raymond, asking for a special bout billing, preferably between the two six-rounders which precede the main bout . . . His bout is carded as one of the three four-round preliminaries.

Here's the how of why Jimmy Clabby, who was found dead the other day, claimed the welterweight title . . . Mike (Twin) Sullivan had vacated the championship and it was in dispute when Clabby, Dixie Kid and Jimmy Gardner laid claim to it . . . Clabby defeated Dixie Kid in New York and received much recognition . . . Later he graduated into the middleweight ranks . . . Clabby boasted that he never was knocked out or down in more than a dozen years of fighting, many of his bouts being 20-rounders . . . He did not do much training, being one of those "shave and a drink" fellows who seem to be able to defy all of the rules of conditioning . . . George Engel, former manager of Frank Klaus and Harry Greb, both middleweight champions, now is located in Miami, Fla., where he still keeps his hand in the fight game.—HARRY KECK.

DE ORO FACES CUE TEST

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Although only three matches remain to be played, the national three-cushion billiard championship tournament nears the end today with four of the eight entrants still in the running.

Alfredo de Oro, 71-year-old New York star, has the hardest fight among the favorites. To clinch the title he must beat Len Kenney, of Chicago, today and then take the measure tomorrow of Kinrey Matsuyama, fellow New Yorker.

ST. FRANCIS WINS

LORETTO, Pa., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The St. Francis College's varsity "8" club yesterday defeated an Indiana independent team, 34 to 31, in a fast basketball game at Doyle Hall. Sable scored 12 points for the victors in the final half to put them ahead.

GRID BANQUET SET

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Jan. 22.—The Ramsey High School football team, W. P. I. A. L. Class A champions, will be honor guests at a testimonial banquet to be held Thursday evening in the local National Guard armory. Judge M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, will be the principal speaker.

SHOTTEN NAMED REDS' COACH

CINCINNATI, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Burt Shotten, Philadelphia's former dean of managers, will be coach of the Cincinnati Reds during the 1934 season, the Reds announced today.

For a time, the former St. Louis pitcher and outfielder had been mentioned prominently as likely manager of the Reds, though he was pilot of the Phillies. Then Bob O'Farrell, another St. Louis product, was named to run the team here, and Shotten was deposed at the helm of the Phillies by Jimmy Wilson, whom he had traded to the Cardinals years before.

Shotten's choice was that of O'Farrell himself, it was disclosed by Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Reds.

By JESS CARVER

Pittsburgh, it would appear, has the collegiate basketball situation right by the well known ears and figures to continue to grasp same by same for some time to come.

Here we have Pitt and the Dukes, the first receiving the congratulations and adulation of the mob over its sensational defeat of Notre Dame Saturday night, when the Irish 22-game victory string was abruptly snapped, and the latter, the Dukes boasting the nation's longest consecutive win streak, thanks to the antics of their rivals, the Panthers.

What is more, no foe looms on the immediate morizon for either that figures to do any checking. The Dukes certainly should beat Thiel Saturday night and if West Virginia can beat Pitt, said result will be filed away under the head of major upsets.

CRIBBS LAUDED

Those who sat in on the Pitt triumph over the Irish still are crooning the praises of Claire Cribbs, sterling Panther center. It was Cribbs' jumping that enabled Pitt to control the ball to such an extent, and it was his fine passing and ball-handling that got the locals out of many a tight spot.

When it is considered that he played throughout the second half with three personal fouls dangling about his neck, forced to perform under the mental hazard of knowing that one more foul and out he'd go, his performance becomes all the more remarkable.

There are those of the opinion that Coach George Keogen did not handle his team as smartly as he might have against Pitt. The second guessers always are with us, of course, but in this case, it would appear that they have some ground for argument. The boys think Notre Dame might have fared better, might possibly have won the ball game, had Peters not been kept in the action throughout the second half and Capt. Moose Krause been returned to the center position.

PETERS FALTERED

Peters sparked the Irish, no doubt of that, as they rallied to pile up their first half advantage, but he was not much of a help

CURRY ADVANCES IN NATIONAL SOCCER PLAY

MORGAN BOWS IN THRILLER BY 2 TO 1

By TOM BIRKS

Fighting one of the hardest battles of the season, the Curry Soccer Club advanced to the second round of the National Open Challenge Cup competition yesterday afternoon at Greenlee Field, defeating the Morgan eleven, 2 to 1, before one of the largest crowds of the season.

It was a game of surprises and one that found two of the greatest goal getters in Western Pennsylvania—Buff Donnelli, for Curry, and Felix Mitchell, for Morgan—being completely covered all afternoon.

CURRY GETS LEAD

The start of the action was very much in favor of Curry. For 20 minutes Morgan played soccer with Dave Matthews shadowing Buff Donnelli all over the field. From one of these Curry attacks the ball came out to Chappell, Curry center half. He sent in a bullet-like shot from 20 yards out. Dresmich never saw the ball until it was in the net.

Curry held this lead until the interval.

In the second half, Morgan played great soccer. Villani and Cyle were repulsing all of Curry's attacks, Dresmich crossed the ball in front of the Curry goal and Gordon Hart headed perfectly into the corner of the net.

That was the last chance Morgan had to score. Buff Donnelli, playing a great game, was giving his forwards all kinds of chances. From one of these he tricked Dante Villani out of position, touching the ball to Harriet. The little inside right then scored the winning goal for Curry.

KEYSTONE TEAMS TIE

Other games yesterday found Heidelberg and Galiatin playing a 1-1 tie and Cecil and the Riehls doing the same in the Keystone League.

In the Allegheny Valley League, Harmarville beat the Athletics, 1-0; Hillman stopped Tarentum, 5-3, and Curtisville swamped Garfield 5 to 0.

In the Panhandle League, Avella defeated Sturgeon, 6 to 0; Coverdale and the Webers played a 1-1 tie, and Beadling nosed out the Braves, 2 to 1.

The second game for the South Park junior championship found the Zupanics defeating Bruceton, 2 to 1. The lineups:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE OLDEST JOCKEY—Levi Burlingame, who claims to be the oldest jockey in the world, celebrated his eighty-third birthday on November 17, 1933, and has ridden horses on tracks in Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska since he was 24. He recently rode one of the entries in a horse race at the Hays Fair, in his home town. La Crosse, Kan. Gurlingame weighs 90 pounds and is about 5 feet in height. TWICE AS COLD AS ZERO—The thermometer is based upon the interval between two fixed points, namely the freezing point and the boiling point. On the Fahrenheit scale the freezing point is 32 degrees above zero. Therefore twice as cold as zero equals 64 degrees below the freezing point, or 32 degrees below zero.

East, West Draw In Golf Matches

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—The West staged a comeback in the singles matches of the intersectional golf championship with the East at the Lakewood Country Club course yesterday to earn a tie and an even split of $1,000 prize money. They finished with 7½ points each.

The East set itself up a 3-to-2 lead in the morning in the Scotch doubles matches, winning two of them and halving the third.

Carnera Might Be Larger But for Nose

Millions who have seen Carnera in the flesh or in pictures will swear that he has a broken nose and the general supposition is that it was fractured while boxing. But that is not so. Early in his career, I found that he had considerable difficulty in breathing and his nasal structure was blamed for that impediment. So a surgeon friend of mine operated successfully on Primo's nose. It restored his breathing to normal but it did give him a so-called "fighter's nose."

I might add that many children who do not breathe freely are retarded in their growth and remain small. Primo seems to have been an exception to that rule or, perhaps, he migh be much bigger if his nasal passages had been normal. Perhaps, impeded breathing only affected part of his growth. His feet and hands, it is established, are definitely out of proportion to the rest of his stature.

Indeed, had Primo's nose been operated upon in childhood or adolescence, imagine how gigantic he might have become! He might have equaled surely the dimensions reported in those 6-foot-11, 300-pound press stories emanating from Europe prior to his first invasion of America!!

Leon See's 'Inside Story' Of Carnera's Career

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

During the fall of 1928, Carnera won his first three matches at Paris with quick knockouts in pursuance of Mr. See's weird champion-making idea. His purses were increasing rapidly; the fame of "The Man Mountain" was just beginning to spread through Europe. . . .

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, Heavyweight Boxing Champion.

FOURTH FIGHT, FIRST DRAMA

The next match was destined to be of an entirely different character. Prepared under the worst auspices, it was to become drama and to end in real tragedy. I think that never before was the winner of a fight so near defeat as Carnera was when he met Islas, in Milan, in October, 1928.

After the Carnera - Rugirello fight, I had received better and better offers from Italy. Our neighbors were anxious to see the work of their fellow citizen whose reputation had passed the frontiers long before.

The Italian newspapers, full of patriotic enthusiasm, had filled the peninsula with sensational details of his victories. Italian sportsmen wanted to admire him in the ring and the leading promoter of Milan, Signor Carpegna, sent me telegram upon telegram in order to obtain the services of his now celebrated compatriot for the Palace of Sports at Milan. Useless to say that I desired nothing less than to risk what had been accomplished and that I hastened to refuse.

Primo Carnera

INSISTENT PROMOTER

The Milan promoter returned to the charge, however, offering me successively 8,000, then 10,000, then 12,000 francs for a bout. Primo demanded in vain the reasons for which I hesitated. He knew nothing of my previous plans or activities. His confidence grew from day to day. Never having really received a truly dangerous blow, a fight seemed to him as some sort of pleasure party, an interesting session of training at the end of which banknotes of a thousand francs—each time more numerous—came to add themselves to those so easily gained before, while newspapers devoted entire columns to the glorification of "the new invincible one."

As for myself, I had the most serious reasons for refusal.

Islas, the suggested adversary, was a tall Negro and an experienced boxer who had arrived in Europe with the title of champion heavyweight of South America.

NO WAY OUT OF BOUT

Meanwhile Signor Carpegna continued to insist.

"You name the purse you want to receive," he finally telegraphed me.

So as not to appear as backing out, and in order to avoid an encounter bristling with uncertainty, I cabled a ridiculous figure.

"I would accept 20,000 francs," my telegram read.

Imagine my astonishment when I read his immedate replay:

"Accepted. Contracts en route. Carpegna."

Thus, in spite of what I had done, I was compelled to go ahead with this dangerous match.

The good Signor Carpegna must have had a very bad opinion of Carnera's manager. In fact—always expecting that he would end by consigning me to the Devil—I urged him successively to pay the traveling expenses of three persons, plus the training expenses, plus the participation of two of my other boxers on the program, each with excessive purses. But every demand on my part received the telegraphic answer:

"Accepted."

FIGHT MUST GO ON

Twenty thousand francs (about $800) and all the expenses, for the fourth match. The figure was absolutely absurd! The only thing I could do was to accept and the next thing to do was to take the first train for Milan. I was hopeful that I would hit upon a scheme to assure a Carnera victory again, but I was not certain.

My first visit to Milan was to the promoter. I made efforts to dissuade him from staging such an unprofitable fight.

"You will lose money," I averred. "The highest boxoffice returns ever seen in Italy are far from justifying such a large purse as the one you offer me. You are going to lose a small fortune . . ."

But to no avail. Carpegna, citing my telegrams, and the implicit promise represented therein, demanded the bout.

My last resource was to interview Islas . . . I returned to Paris more worried about the promoter and his boxoffice returns than about Primo and myself . . .

I little knew at that moment the tragic events that were to follow . . .

The evening of the battle, the Milan Palace of Sports was no more than half filled. My Italian friends, I may note, are very fond of happy manifestations and public acclamations, but when it comes to the matter of paying several liras each, popular enthusiasm (as shown in gate receipts) seems to diminish in direct proportion to the size of the admission fees.

Faithful to my policy of increasing very progressively the number of rounds required of Primo, whose progress was pleasing, I had decided that this should end with a knockout in the fifth round. I knew Carnera capable of going five rounds without weakening. But, alas, events are not always shaped to the best laid plans and my fears at the moment of signing the contract were more than justified, as one will see.

CARNERA TIRES EARLY

The match was for 10 rounds. Islas—very superior to Primo in both science and experience—had no intention of receiving unnecessary blows from a boxer weighing 120 kilograms (about 265 pounds).

Thus the Negro, while not hitting too hard, gave proof of an excellent defense during the first four rounds, with the result that my giant appeared slow and ineffective—faults than can be excused in a novice, but which disappointed his ardent compatriots.

At last, the fifth round, for so long expected, arrived . . . and with it the unexpected.

During the one-minute rest before the round, I had told Primo:

"Attack him vigorously, try to hit him once in the jaw, and Islas will fold up. Go to him with all energy."

Alas, my big novice was tired, his heavy arms seemed to be of lead. He did the best he could and landed a right cross that reached its target. Islas flopped to the floor.

But I had not reckoned with the referee . . . and that was a grave mistake.

The referee had seen that the knockdown blow was not hard; so, instead of counting the regulation seconds, he told Islas:

"Come on, get up! You have not been hit!"

As the Negro, compelled to get up, regained his guard, he gave me a desperate look.

The situation was critical, indeed. Disqualification would mean to Islas a suspension, confiscation of his purse, scandal.

As for us, we were only in the middle of the battle, and Primo was getting more and more tired. The first five rounds had been mediocre. Would Primo have enough strength and will power to endure five more long rounds? What was to be done?

*Pittsburgh won only game played by Toronto.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 22.—Pittsburgh's Yellow Jackets of the North American Lacrosse Association suffered a severe setback in its drive toward the Association title here last night, being swamped by the Milwaukee Brewers, 16 to 5.

The Jackets will meet Chicago in the second game of their mid-Western trip tomorrow night and return for another game Wednesday.

The Pittsburghers were shut out in two of the four periods in the night's game. They counted two goals in the first session as Milwaukee garnered five, were forced to go scoreless in the second as the Brewers picked up three and again in the third as the home team counted four and then tallied thrice in the final to four for Milwaukee.

The victory enabled Milwaukee to gain a tie with Buffalo for third place in the Association standing. The lineup:

Morgans	3	0	15	1	6
Pirates	1	1	5	8	2
Webers	1	2	3	8	2
Ravens	0	3	4	16	0

The Webers and Pirates of the City Amateur Hockey League swing into action tonight on the Duquesne Garden ice, battling for second place in the circuit.

The contest looms as a toss-up, with the Pirates appearing to have a very slight edge, this reckoning based on the previous showing of the teams. The Pirates have scored two more goals in two games than have the Webers and have a one-goal defensive edge. Both have scored victories over the last place Ravens.

Led by Jackie Powell, former Schenley High School football and basketball star, the league-leading Morgans boosted their advantage on Saturday night by crushing the hapless Ravens, 9 to 0.

Local Golfers Get Chance to Hit 'Em

The spring-like weather which prevailed yesterday gave the local golfing fraternity a chance to get a few lines on their favorite courses.

More than 100 were reported at the Schenley Parks links, among them being Carl Kaufmann, county champion, and Bog Graham, Schenley pro. Big turnouts also played at the various country clubs.

OHIO SQUASH STARS TAKE LOCAL MEET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Ben Pope's aspiring band of Pittsburgh squash racqueters dropped the second of their Tri-City Team Championship tussles before a large gallery at the Keystone A. C. yesterday. But the home host garnered honor aplenty even in defeat, for their hairline 3-2 loss to the powerful Polley-led host of Buffalo was by long odds impressive enough to convince all and sundry that, after several lean years of effort, this district has developed an outfit capable of making it tough for the best of them.

The Steel City quintet that pushed the Bisons right to the outside limit was, incidentally, an all-Keystone array, such luminaries as Dr. David O'Loughlin and Frank McClintock of the P. A. A., Frank White of Alegheny Country Club, and Joe Oliver of the Pittsburgh Golf Club having been unavailable the past week-end.

CLEVELAND CHAMPION

The Pittsburgh-Buffalo encounter, though its outcome had no bearing on the destiny of the brand new Tri-City crown, which Cleveland had clinched on Saturday by virtue of wins over both of yesterday's combatants, was warmly fought. The summary:

C. H. Polley, Buffalo, defeated W. McCook Reed, Pittsburgh, 18-13, 4-15, 15-10, 4-15, 15-8; Henry V. Blakely, Pittsburgh, defeated Adrian W. Smith, Buffalo, 17-15, 10-15, 16-13, 15-9; J. F. Rogers, Buffalo, defeated William D. Bickel, Pittsburgh, 15-10, 3-15, 15-7, 15-9; Edward E. Seifert, Pittsburgh, defeated H. P. Burgard II, Buffalo, 12-15, 15-8, 18-14, 15-12; H. H. Littell, Buffalo, defeated Charles A. Fagan, Jr., Pittsburgh, 15-9, 8-15, 13-16, 18-16, 15-8.

Comparative quiet prevailed yesterday in the annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation singles squash tournament. In the lone matches actually played, McCook Miller sprang a startling surprise by eliminating his gold club mate, Joe Oliver, 15-13, 15-11, 9-15, 11-15, 15-12, while C. L. Snowdon, Jr., trimmed Henry Chalfant, 15-12, 15-12, 15-12. Meanwhile McClintock advanced by default of Del Kennedy and Irvin Goodman eased ahead by withdrawal of Wilfrid Murtland. Miller takes on Goodman at 6 p. m. in today's feature.

O'LOUGHLINS BEATEN

Those sensational young Squirrel Hill racquet-wielders, Frank Broida, of Harvard, and Irvin Goodman, of Pitt, yesterday sprang the first and probably the greatest major local net upset of 1934 by rallying from a seemingly hopeless situation to defeat Drs. Dave and John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. stars and ranking team of Western Pennsylvania, in a five-set final fray of the fourth annual Pittsburgh Golf Club invitation indoor men's doubles tennis tourney. The verdict read 6-1, 1-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.

It was the initial reverse the O'Loughlins have suffered since they teamed up last summer after several seasons with other partners—and if memory is correct 'twas their lone home setback since 1926.

Taylor, Pittsburgh.

BRENTWOOD HAS STRONG FIVE

Russell Dunlap, forward, was halfback in football.

One of the outstanding forwards in the Section XII race is a member of the Brentwood team. He is William Lach, who leads the team in scoring and is among the pacesetters in the Division XII race.

LOSES ENTIRE TEAM

Lach is one of the five regulars who will be graduated in June. The others are Corbert DeCoudres, forward; Swift, center, and MacWhinnee and Thomas Fairfield, guards.

Extended only in the pre-season game with Springdale, Brentwood has had little trouble piling up victories. Much of the credit for the fine showing is due Coach Harrold, who has developed a smooth-working passing attack that has baffled the opposition. Keep your eye on the Brentwood team if it succeeds in winning a place in the W. P. I. A. L. elimination series, is the word being passed around by its supporters.

Local Man Named To Tennis Office

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—William P. Rowland, of Philadelphia, is the new president of the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association.

He was elected at the annual meeting to succeed W. D. R. Evans, of suburban Narberth. John Carle Parry, who was treasurer, became vice president and J. Phillips Davis, of Pittsburgh, was named second vice president.

Albert J. Batty was elected treasurer and Joseph Morgan, Jr., secretary.

DUKES, PITT IN SPOTLIGHT

after the Panthers started their rally in the second period.

Despite their defeat (and, after all, 22 victories in a row provided a whale of a strain for any team) the Irish looked to be a mighty good ball club. They undoubtedly are better on the attack than on the defense, but then, if you can go out and get 'em, you don't need to worry so much about the other fellow getting himself a point or two.

With the local varsities taking part in only four games this week, the chances of the home lads scoring a clean sweep appear to hinge on Carnegie Tech. The Tartans play twice, meeting Wash-Jeff and Geneva, the Prexies here tomorrow night and the Covenanters at Beaver Falls on Friday.

TECH FACES TESTS

Carnegie finished in the ruck in its games last week against Pitt and the Dukes, but so would the majority of other teams, if not all others, in these parts. Carnegie is capable of better basketball than was exhibited against Duquesne, and likely will prove this contention this week.

Cribbs and Irv Brenner, of the Dukes, are deadlocked for honors in the city scoring race, each having tallied 70 points, Cribbs in 10 games and Brenner in eight.

In the Intercollegiate Conference, in which the Panthers are out in front with three victories and no defeats, Hargedon, of Georgetown, is showing the way, with 37 points, followed by a teammate, Crowley, with 34. Gibson, of Tech, is next in line with 32.

Only one match is to be fought out for a chance at the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference title this week.

Two were scheduled, but the clash between Pitt and Washington and Jefferson was postponed, leaving the Carnegie Tech—Bucknell battle at Lewisburg, Pa., Saturday, the only attraction of the week.

W. & J. and Pitt both are undefeated, but injuries received by two President boxers in clashes with Duquesne last week necessitated a postponement until late in February.

Miami-Biltmore Amateur Play Opens

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Two days of qualifying rounds for the third annual Miami-Biltmore amateur invitation golf tournament opened today.

Match play, beginning Wednesday, will be over an 18 hole route each day, with the final 36 hole round Saturday, when a successor will be determined for the championship, won last year by Arthur F. Lynch of Mamaroneck, N. Y. Lynch now is on the Pacific coast, participating in open tournaments, and will not defend his title.

Blaik, Gustafson Visit Dartmouth

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Dartmouth's new football coaches are in Hanover today and in seclusion at the home of President Ernest Martin Hopkins.

Heach Coach Earl (Red) Blaik, and his assistants, Harry O. Ellinger and Andrew J. Gustafson, left the train at Lebanon, seven miles from here, yesterday and were driven to the Hopkins home.

Eastman Report Shows Change In Policy

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE REPORT of Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation, reflects a radical change in government attitude toward the railroads. This change in attitude may have a far-reaching effect on other industries, particularly on public utilities.

If we assume that the viewpoint of Mr. Eastman corresponds to that of the administration, it is quite possible that the report represents a crystalization of an entirely new philosophy of the relationship of government to business.

The ideas expressed in Mr. Eastman's report are not new ones, but the report represents the first occasion on which these ideas have been given acceptance by an administration official.

Recommends That Action Be Delayed

CO-ORDINATOR EASTMAN feels that the present is not an advantageous time to take action on the railroad problem. His recommendations are brought forth as policies to be put into effect in the future when conditions may become satisfactory.

His report contains two alternative plans. One is for federal ownership of railroads. The other is for compulsory consolidations. While alternative plans are advanced, the discussion appears to favor government ownership. The consolidation proposal appears to have been advanced as a next best remedy in case government ownership should meet too much opposition or should be thought to be too radical a step.

The consolidation proposal is quite different from plans which have been advanced in the past. Previous railroad consolidation plans did not contain the element of compulsion. They merely set up a system of mergers which appeared to be in the public interest and said that the railroads might voluntarily enter into consolidations which coincided with the general scheme. The previous consolidation plans also provided for the continuation of competition between systems at principal points. The new consolidation proposal would eliminate competition at many points. The opinion also is expressed that the development of new types of competition makes the preservation of intense competition between railroads less important than in the past. In fact, the report says that one of the chief objections to consolidation is that it will preserve costly competition between railroads in many instances.

Finds Prospects For Credit Bad

IN DISCUSSING the future of the railroads under private management, the report declared that the outlook for credit is most unpromising. Some railroads will measure up to the necessary standards with improving business conditions, but many will find it a slow and difficult process, even if times improve.

Mr. Eastman stated that present management of the railroads is unsatisfactory since it has been unable to make any concerted effort to meet competition of new forms of transportation. He recommended, however, that management should have a chance to apply the principals of statesmanship with the help of the government, at least at the outset. He declared that the government should continue to give financial assistance when the risk appears to be justified.

As principal points in favor of government ownership he said that management, now in the hands of financial interests, could be united with operation. Public regulation would merge with management and operation. Financial domination would cease.

The greatest difficulty facing government ownership is seen in the cost of acquisition and the principal reason for delay is the undesirability of adding this extra expense to the burden on the Treasury at the present time.

In the past our government has followed the principal that it should take as small a part as possible in business. It has confined its activities to regulation of such essential institutions as the railroads and the preservation of free competition. Mr. Eastman's report suggests that government actually engage in business where this becomes desirable for the public interest. This thought, now applied to the railroads might be extended to other types of activity.

PRINTER ADDS EQUIPMENT

With 44 years' experience as a background, the Liberty Show Printing Company, of this city, announced today the completion of a modernization program and the addition of a complete lithographing department.

According to Richard E. Smith, salesmanager, this move forward has been definitely timed and attuned to present-day conditions, and places his company in the best position of their 44 years of successful operation.

He further states that with the new mechanical equipment, which is the first of its kind anywhere, and the recent new appointments to mechanical and sales organizations, the company has one of the best balanced personnel and mechanical organizations in the graphic arts industry. He said:

"This advancement eliminates the necessity of advertising buyers going out of the city for high class work. In fact, we recently closed some new contracts with four New York firms, who placed their business with us as they believe we can give them better reproductions than obtainable in New York.

"We are in a position to guarantee 98 per cent or more reproduction of any original, which statement in itself is revolutionary in the graphic arts industry."

EXPERT VISITS BUILDING HERE

Specialist in office decoration and arrangement, John H. Millar, of Grand Rapids, Mich., claims to be one of the two members of his profession in the country.

Mr. Millar is in Pittsburgh this week to arrange suites in the Law and Finance Building. In the course of his 15 years experience, he said, he has visited offices in every large city in the United States and in several European countries.

NEW ART

Mr. Millar declares he has noted a definite trend toward the development of a new, highly specialized art, in the decoration of offices. The modern business and professional man he said, knows the necessity of combining the practical and the beautiful, and realizes that a well appointed office is a paying investment.

In a European tour Mr. Millar studied the artistic products of various nations, forming a cultural background for his present activities. In art museums and the castles of the nobility, he viewed works of bronze and marble, oil paintings and tapestries that enable him to choose furnishings for the most elaborate office suites.

USES TAPESTRY

One office designed by Millar includes in its decorations a tapestry valued at $27,000.

Buildings in all parts of the country have employed his services, and in Pittsburgh he has aided in the office planning throughout the Law and Finance Building.

N. Y. Reserve Bank's Earnings Decrease

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Net income of the New York Federal Reserve Bank after operating charges and depreciation amounted to $6,970,726 in 1933, comparing with $10,404,550 in 1932. Of the total last year $3,509,872 was distributed in dividends at the rate of 6 per cent per annum and $2,687,853 added to surplus.

THE ROAD BACK
We are all glad to see the upward trend on the business chart and signs of better business conditions in Western Pennsylvania and throughout the country.
But prosperity will not come back to us overnight nor in the space of months. It's a long, slow road back to the top.
We have worked with many industries in this area—some for many years—others not so long.
On the way back to happier and more prosperous times together, we want our personnel and services to be of the greatest possible assistance. In helping the industries of Western Pennsylvania to attain their full measure of success lies our greatest privilege.

HANDBALL LOOP RACE CLOSE

CITY HANDBALL LEAGUE

STANDING OF THE TEAMS
Class A

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Downtown Y. M. C. A.	22	13	.629
Keystone A. C.	20	15	.571
Y. M. H. A.	18	17	.514
P. A. A.	10	25	.286

Lou Alman, southpaw star, returned to action yesterday to lead Y. M. H. A.'s faltering Class A glove champions to a 4-to-1 victory over the pace-setting Downtown Y. M. C. A. contingent in City Handball League title competition on the Bellefield courts. The contest started Saturday provided rather an upset and, though it failed to shift the circuit standing, it none the less tightened the going into a three-way chase involving yesterday's rivals and the Keystone A. C. as the title play enters its final stage.

Alman registered in both singles and doubles to assure his outfit's continuance in the race. The lone Y. M. C. A. win was scored Saturday by Debberthine over Altmeyer. The summary:

Singles—Alman, Y. M. H. A., defeated Hrycho, Y. M. C. A., 21-14, 21-18; Alpern, Y. M. H. A., defeated Myers, Y. M. C. A., 21-15, 21-15; Debberthine, Y. M. C. A., defeated Altmeyer, Y. M. H. A., 8-21, 21-11, 21-19.

Doubles—Alman and Altmeyer, Y. M. H. A., defeated Myers and Debberthine, Y. M. C. A., 21-8, 21-14; Wolf and Lager, Y. M. H. A., defeated Hrycho and Horvath, Y. M. C. A., 21-17, 21-20.

PREPS PLAN FETE

The St. Rosalia Preps football squad will be honor guests at a banquet and reception Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the basement of the church, Greenfield avenue and Lydia street, Greenfield.

BEARS DEFEAT ALL-STARS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—(AP.)—Flashing the same brilliant type of football that won them the 1933 championship of the National Professional Football League, Chicago's Bears defeated the Pacific Coast All-Stars, 21 to 7, in the annual Knights of Columbus charity game here yesterday.

A crowd of 35,000 fans turned out for the game.

Superiority of the professional champions was clearly demonstrated at any time they chose to bear down, despite the fact that the coast players rolled up twice as many first downs and had an edge in yardage gained from scrimmage of practically 2 to 1.

Cliff Battles, Ronzani and Hewitt scored the Bears' touchdowns, with Glenn Presnell going over for the All-Stars. The lineup:

Chicago Bears.		All-Stars.
Hewitt	L. E.	Franklin
Toman	L. T.	Edwards
Carlson	L. G.	Hyzer
Miller	C.	Hein
Zeller	R. G.	Rosenberg
Musso	R. T.	Irvin
Karr	R. E.	Roberts
Brumbaugh	Q. B.	Presnell
Battles	L. H.	Caddel
Ronzani	R. H.	Pinckert
Nagurski	F. B.	Musick

Score by periods:

Chicago	7	0	7	7—21
Pacific Coast	0	7	0	0—7

Chicago scoring: Touchdowns—Battles, Ronzani, Hewitt. Point after touchdown—Manders (sub for Ronzani). Manders (sub for Nagurski), 2. Pacific Coast scoring: Touchdown—Presnell. Point after touchdown—Presnell.

Officials—Referee, Tom Fitzpatrick, Utah; umpire, Lloyd Toder, Carnegie Tech; field judge, Rufe Klawans, Chicago; linesman, Nick Busch, Georgetown.

STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Stocks and staples generally sailed in narrow channels today, although there was little change apparent in the trading weather.

Equities were turned over in large volume during the early hours and the ticker tape occasionally lagged a bit. Inaugural gains of fractions to a point or more, however, failed to hold in the majority of instances. There was considerable profit-taking, but trading turned dull on moderate reactions. Strength of the oils was a feature. Grains, cotton and other commodities were little more than steady. The dollar held about even in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were fairly firm.

Speculative circles continued to watch Washington closely for further market clues. The feeling was general that the President's money bill revaluing the dollar and setting up a two billion dollar stabilization fund would get the approval of the Senate probably this week or early next and that it would go to the Chief Executive virtually in the same form it passed the House.

Many in the financial district believe that huge credit inflation, operated by the government instead of the Federal Reserve System, will soon get under way over a broader front than has yet been witnessed. More conservative bankers, at the same time, appear to be encouraged by the belief that the 50-60 per cent dollar devaluation will be held to, that expatriated capital will come home for investment purposes and that, as a result, forward spending by manufacturers and other industrialists will attain great momentum.

Wall Street was intensely interested in the forthcoming report and recommendations of Secretary of Commerce Roper on the regulation of stock exchanges which, advices from Washington said, would be presented to President Roosevelt tomorrow.

It was not clear, however, just when the report would be made public. Exchange members, while concerned over possible federal control, were inclined to feel that the Roper report might not be as drastic as has been expected in some quarters.

WHEAT VALUES HEAD DOWN

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Ignoring strength shown in securities, wheat prices underwent early downturns today. Sellers of wheat were more numerous than buyers.

Opeing at 3/8 off to 1/8 up, wheat later declined all around. Corn started 1/8 lower to 1/8 higher, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

About a cent a bushel setback in wheat values took place, with the Kansas City market relatively weaker than Chicago. It was pointed out that supplies of wheat on ocean passage showed fully 7,000,000 bushels increase in the last week, but lack of buying interest was the chief factor rather than any adverse news. Corn and oats were responsive to wheat weakness. Provisions kept about steady.

SHARP PICKUP IN BUSINESS SENTIMENT

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Financial changes in the security markets and in the realm of monetary adjustment last week overshadowed shifts in business.

Mr. Rukeyser

In industry itself, there was something of a temporary halt. Developments were, if anything, less than the seasonal expectation. Nevertheless, with the administration economic stimulus program gradually unfolding its pattern, there was a sharp pickup in sentiment. About six months after the climax of the rise of last spring and early summer, stock prices broke out of their long established rut on the up side. This technical development impressed devotees of charts, and the old Wall street experience that nothing whets the buying appetite like the spectacle of rising prices was again verified. Commodity prices also rallied.

FEEL CWA BENEFIT

Retail stores still feel the beneficial effect of CWA and Public Works expenditures. The effect of repeal also tended to lift retail volume last month above the low level at which it had been running.

Improvement in automobile prospects and in rail buying are bolstering the hopes of the steel industry, which anticipates a distinctly rising trend for the next six months.

Inasmuch as Public Works expenditures will reach a peak in the reasonably near-term, there are assurances of direct bolsters to consumer buying. The President in his budgetary and monetary messages has sought to win the support of finance and industry in giving assurances against unlimited budgetary deficits and uncontrolled issue of fiat money.

With $10,000,000,000 of government financing on the schedule, the administration has taken steps to improve the marketability of government bonds.

The most important step is to delimit the area of uncertainty concerning the future of the dollar. In announcing what amounts to de facto stabilization around present levels, the President has put an end to the gold purchase experiment, conducted by George F. Warren. This should occasion no surprise as no changes in the gold price had been made for three weeks prior to the President's recent speech.

Furthermore, as long ago as November 29, this column was authorized to say on high authority that the Treasury was not taking advice exclusively from Prof. Warren. Moreover, the new gold bill provides that the $2,000,000,000 equalization fund can be used, among other purposes, for the purchase of government bonds. In such thin markets as have been experienced in recent weeks, such support can have a decisive effect on market prices for government bonds.

ADVERSE EFFECT

Outside economists believe that the adverse effect which the Warren gold maneuver had in November on the market prices of United States government bonds led to a decision to curtail the adventure.

The President's reiterated desire to keep the dollar stable in purchasing power has created mental speculation as to whether he intends to achieve such constancy by varying the gold content of the dollar or through other devices, such as the discount rate, open market operations, and perhaps maneuvers of the equalization fund.

Even advocates of the commodity dollar have shifted their ground. Irving Fisher, of Yale, the chief sponsor of the idea in this country, recently told me that in his own thinking he had abandoned the idea, presented in his books, of the bi-monthly adjustment of the gold content, and had come to the view that instead of the automatic device which he had formerly advocated for keeping the dollar constant in purchasing power, through varying the gold content, the adjustment might better be left to banking discretion and management—preferably to the discretion of a proposed stabilization board.

CHANGE NEEDE

He said, however, that he did think that perhaps in another decade it would be necessary to make a substantial change in the gold content of the dollar again. Thus, Prof. Fisher leans over to the managed currency idea, presented by John Maynard Keynes, the British economist. There are indications that President Roosevent, though keeping gold in the background to satisfy the traditionalists, is sympathetic to the ideas of a "managed currency."

From a practical standpoint, fortunately the currency issue is again relegated to the background. It was obviously not as important as propagandists on both sides contended, for we witnessed the widest fluctuations in prosperity and depression under the old standard. The really important objective should be re-employment of the idle on a basis that will assure balance among the vast social groups. From this viewpoint, the test of progress will be in an expansion of the gross volume of business and employment. Under such circumstances, the national income will rise.

CHAPTER XVI.

"Here I am," said Carroll, entering the room just in time to overhear his name. "I dug up some hot stuff in Washington and I'm anxious to report."

"Let's close this door," suggested Anderson. "And don't talk too loud. I'd just as soon we weren't overheard if there is someone hanging around the garden."

I fastened the library door and we drew our chairs up around a table in front of the fireplace.

"Shoot," said Anderson, cutting the end from a fresh cigar.

"Well," began Carroll, "I wanted to check up on Paige's story from the very beginning. You will remember that he said he had sent his wife a telegram. He didn't. I did my best to trace it from the Baltimore office as well as from Washington. There is no record of a wife ever having been sent, received or delivered here either by telephone or messenger boy. I knew that was a lie from the start because Paige was able to actually quote the words of his telegram—'Am delayed. Will be home late'—or something like that, yet he couldn't remember the merest details of his trip. So I was positive myself that he had concocted a fictitious telegram to cover up something else."

Was With Woman

"Good!" commented Anderson. "That's headwork, Carroll."

"You remember that he said he had dinner at the Occidental," continued Dickey. "That part's all right. He did. I dropped in at the restaurant, and showed a picture of Paige to the manager, who recognized it right off the bat.

"'Certainly I remember him,' he said. 'His picture came out in the paper, the day after he'd been here to dinner, as the husband of that Paige woman who had been murdered in Baltimore. We remember him because he'd been bothered about getting a long-distance call through to Baltimore from the time he came in.'"

"That's correct," interrupted Anderson. "We checked up on the phone calls, but the only one we could trace that was of any interest came from the Occidental at 6:30."

"'Then,' said the manager, 'we sort of wondered about his being here with Mrs. Brooks, being a married man like he was. Still we see lots of that sort of thing here, and, of course, we have nothing to say as long as they pay their bills and are respectable.'

"'Who is this Mrs. Brooks?' I asked.

"'Oh, she's one of these wealthy women around Washington—got lots of them here. Plenty of money and no husbands. Her name's Mrs. Louise Brooks, and she lives up on Sixteenth street. Henri over there can give you the exact number. He knows her pretty well; she asks him to serve private parties now and then; he's the best waiter we have.'

Fascinating Person

"Well, the long and the short of it is that I found out from Henri who she was and where she lived, and discovered that Paige was a regular visitor there. So I decided to pay a call on the lady.

"She lived in one of those big palaces, something like a castle. At first the maid wouldn't let me in; then I told her I was representing Mr. Paige of Baltimore on important business, and right away I was admitted into one of the most sumptuous rooms you ever saw in all your life.

"And there sat Mrs. Brooks on one of those long things that's a cross between a chair and a sofa, reading a magazine. She's some baby doll, if you ask me. Pretty flossy. I guess she's about 40, but she was dressed up to beat the band in sort of a rose-colored gown. Not a handsome woman but awfully stunning and fascinating.

"I just had to start in with something; so I began something like this: 'You understand the condition Mr. Paige is in at present, Mrs. Brooks, and that he will not be able to see you for some time. He has told me everything concerning the matter upon which he called on you the night of his wife's death, asking me to come over and settle it with you.'"

"'What matter?' I asked, daring to interrupt.

"'I didn't know then,' answered Carroll, with a grin, 'and I know even less about it now. Anyway she hesitated for some time before answering me, but finally said: 'I thought that I had made my position clear to Mr. Paige through the man whom he sent to see me yesterday morning. I should be very glad to help him by returning it but the truth of the matter is that it has passed out of my possession and I do not think that I can obtain it again.'"

A Familiar Name

"Obtain what?" asked Anderson taking an interest.

"That's just the question that I wanted to ask, but I didn't. I'm a better detective than that. 'Yes, he understands that,' I replied, 'but he wants to know all that you knew about it before—well, before you didn't know anything about it.'

"I told him everything—that is, almost everything. I knew it came over from England and I knew who had it up to a few years ago, and then I lost it. But, well, I have a little heart left in me and I just couldn't tell him about Cat's-Eye Annie. He probably knew all about that already though . . . You know Cat's-Eye Annie, don't you?' she asked, knocking me off my guard with one of those piercing looks.

"'It was just there I bungled the whole thing. 'Frankly, I don't,' I admitted.

"'It's just as well that you don't, being a friend of his,' she answered. And that was all I could get out of her about Cat's-Eye Annie. Did you ever hear of her, Inspector?"

Anderson had started to raise a cigar to his mouth, but he paused.

"Cat's-Eye Annie!" he repeated to himself several times, twirling the cigar between his fingers. "No, it sounds familiar, but I can't place it. We'll look it up. But you've done some good work, Carroll. It makes sense to me even if it doesn't to you. It clears up something which we learned today. I'll tell you . . ."

Just then there was a knock on the door, and Paige entered in response to Inspector Anderson's greeting. We all rose and spoke to him.

"Have you discovered anything?" he asked, looking at the inspector nervously and a little fearfully.

Tells of Trip

Anderson waved his cigar toward Carroll. "My very able assistant, Mr. Carroll, seems to have uncovered a new angle on the case, and I'll let him present the matter in any way he sees fit. We can talk it over after he has finished. There are several points which I want you to clear up for me."

We all turned our eyes on Carroll, who mustered his forces as well as he could upon such short notice, for he had so lost himself in his account of his trip that he had apparently forgotten that Paige was expected.

"Well, Mr. Paige," he began slowly, "to be very frank and, I am sorry to say, undetective-like, I was in Washington all day."

I couldn't help glancing at Paige to see what effect this would have, and I really admired the way he accepted it without a change of expression in his face or a sign of interest.

"And I would like to ask you why you sent a phone call to your wife instead of a telegram as you told us?"

Paige smiled. "So I'm under suspicion, am I?"

"No, no, I don't want you to take that attitude," interrupted Carroll hurriedly. "I am just trying to iron out some discrepancies in your story and I want your help."

"Well," said Paige quietly, "I don't know what I said about my trip to Washington. I was pretty much all in after—the—the murder and I wasn't quite certain of myself or anything else. I told the Inspector that at the time. I know that I had intended to telegraph. I know now, of course, that I actually did telephone. You see, I loved—"

"Yes," said Carroll. "We understand that, and I thought the telegram business was probably just an error; so let's drop it."

Admirable Calmness

Paige leaned back in his chair more easily.

"But then I called on Mrs. Brooks," Carroll went on.

At this, Paige flinched in spite of himself. "You got me there," he admitted, smiling nervously. "But, golly, man! you have any man on that point if you know the name of the lady. Mrs. Brooks is perfectly respectable, if you know what I mean, and she has befriended me on more than one occasion. You see, I call on her as sort of relaxation, something every man has to have—something to take your mind off the everyday things of life."

"She spoke to me, however," said Carroll leaning forward, "about THE THING!" He spoke carefully and emphasized his words clearly. And from all that I learned later I admired Paige for that total command of himself which he had acquired and which he showed us then for the first time.

He hesitated for a long time, apparently wondering whether to speak or to keep silent. In the silence we could hear the big clock on the mantel ticking.

"It's funny, isn't it?" he said finally, gazing at the floor, "the way the foolish things we do in life always come back at us with so much importance attached to them later! To think that a letter I wrote a year ago would stir things up like this. But, honestly, old fellow, that letter could not help you in the slightest way to solve this murder. I'll admit I went to Mrs. Brooks that night to get it, and if it would help you in any way I would surrender it, provided she would give it to me. But it has nothing to do with the case, and really I admire your cleverness as a detective, although I do not relish your finding out so much about my private life.

Synopsis

Sonia (Sunny) Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph (Ranny) Paige, is found hanging by a silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. An autopsy reveals that Sunny had been suffocated first with the tassel of the cord and then hung. Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, says the night of the tragedy was her night off and that Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, was to spend the evening with Sunny. Inspector Anderson is furious when Ranny employs Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, to investigate the tragedy. Anderson and Judson decide to forget their antagonism and work together. Anderson questions Mrs. Phelps. A face peers in the window. Anderson thinks Mrs. Phelps tampered with Sunny's desk when the police sought the intruder.

DISPUTE WITH BRITAIN OVER OREGON TERRITORY

During President Polk's administration (1845-1849) the expansion of the United States southward, westward and northward proceeded. The campaign slogan, "Fifty-four Forty or Fight," referred to Oregon territory, extending from California to latitude 54° 40' jointly occupied by the United States and Great Britain. The expansionists wanted the whole, but in face of the Mexican difficulties President Polk proposed 49° as a compromise border line. Although rejected at first this was accepted finally (Treaty of 1846, June); the United States was extended in the area of the Pacific.

LUTHER BEFORE EMPEROR CHARLES V AND GERMAN PRINCES AT WORMS

The impetus in learning by the Renaissance, the strengthening of the national spirit of crystallizing nations, the malpractices of some unworthy representatives of the church, had a reaction in the movement known as the "Reformation" or Protestantism.

Wycliffe (1324-1384) started opposition to the Roman Church in England; John Huss (1369-1415) in Bohemia; Luther (1483-1546) in Germany. Luther stated his case with his 95 theses, first in 1517. The German princes, with Emperor Charles V presiding, and ecclesiastical leaders, met in the Diet at Worms (1521) and declared Luther an outlaw and under ban of the empire. Forced to hide, Luther translated the New Testament into German and continued his teachings.

Divided religious beliefs soon led to persecutions and civil wars in Germany. In 1555, Charles V was forced to legalize Lutheranism, which had spread rapidly. (World History)

A BOY WHO STUDIED

Sir Humphrey Davy (1778-1829) was a poor country lad and an apprentice of a chemist when he started his experiments and studies which made him one of the most eminent scientists of his time. Besides great discoveries in chemistry, he invented the safety lamp, thereby saving thousands of lives through avertine explosions in mines. He was knighted by the King of England, but won a still nobler place in the esteem of humanity. Strong will and study lift one above the mass. (Character Building)

CUTS OF BEEF

Color of good meat is clear, bright, not purple, dull; has little or no odor and firm, elastic touch.

Meat is a valuable food containing fats, proteins and mineral salts. Food value varies between 800 (dried beef) and 1,940 (smoked ham) Calories per pound. From bones and connective tissues gelatine, a protein is dissolved. Intemperance in meat eating may cause illness (acidosis).

Dangers connected with impure meat: Animal parasites (trichina, etc.), injurious bacteria, bacterial poisons (ptomaine poisoning). Hence the great importance of thorough cooking, of meat and keeping under refrigeration. (Foods)

THERMIONIC TUBES DETECT, AMPLIFY

Thermionic tubes consist of an evacuated bulb with a filament and a plate. The filament is heated by current and emits electrons toward the plate if that is positively charged. The Fleming valve (1904) can be used as rectifier or detector, admitting currents flowing in direction plate-filament only (1).

The triode tube, invented by Dr. Lee De Forest (1907) has a grid between filament and plate, which grid is connected to oscillating circuit becoming alternately + and — admitting or repulsing electrons from heated filament to plate. Small variations in grid charge produce great variations in current flowing through plate so that the latter is an amplification of the former. Triode tube (2), its working (3, 4), shown.

Once to Every Man Is Enough

After half a century of respectability they finally got The Bug into full dress. We might as well describe it for the citizens who ain't suffered yet.

It's got two tails in the back like a Bob Ripley cat.

The Bug is shorter than an order in a lunch wagon. The tails tickle his heels and he jumps. When he jumps they tickle him again. He has gone through the best society in the East in 15 jumps. That ain't bad from a standing start.

The coat is like the cook flirting with the grocery boy at the back door. It doesn't meet in the front at all.

The vest hasn't got a back. You slip it over your head like a man in a sandwich sign. That's balancing the budget.

If you think that's a 40-hour week you should get a load of the shirt. It's starched so stiff it makes you feel like the crew of an armored cruiser.

Its got 40 pounds pressure on all four tires and bulges like a glass blower's face.

When you pipe yourself in the mirror it is a picture of a man looking over his own tombstone.

The collar is so tight it feels like it was put on by a revengeful posse who refused to allow the law to take its course. The necktie bobs around like children in a dancing class. There's a high hat that goes with the outfit and it makes you look like an old-fashioned pot pie with ears. That's what they call formal attire. Add gloves, a cane and a muffler and set it on the window sill to cool off.

When you are dressed like that you are a fireless cooker and as snug as a bug in a thermos bottle.

We don't intend to be hogtied by fashion. A tuxedo ain't so bad. But when you wear full dress and sit down on your own coattails it is like being on a toboggan slide.

Well, we learned something anyway. Now we know why society people smack news photographers over the head with their own cameras.

The Forgotten State

Pennsylvania Has Fared Badly in the Distribution of the PWA Billions

The Public Works Administration has completed the allocation of the thirty-three hundred millions of dollars appropriated by Congress for construction projects to relieve unemployment and speed up recovery.

Pennsylvania, which will have to furnish a large part of the money and has been one of the worst sufferers from unemployment, has fared very, very badly in the distribution of the PWA jobs.

Pennsylvania is the second most populous state in the Union. Allegheny County alone has more people than Vermont, Delaware, Wyoming, Idaho and Nevada combined.

Pennsylvania is a highly industrialized state; its people are largely workers for wages, and so were hit harder by the shutdown of the industries and were in greater need of relief than the people in the agricultural states who live on their own farms.

Pennsylvania is among the leading contributors to the United States Treasury. The federal income taxes from Allegheny County alone are greater than those from any of 39 states.

One would have expected, then, that Pennsylvania would have received an appreciable share of the three billion, three hundred million. But it has not.

L. H. Gavin, secretary of the Oil City Chamber of Commerce, was in Washington last week to urge the completion of the improvement of the Allegheny River, a project to which the federal government has long been committed.

Reviewing the facts which we have set forth above, Mr. Gavin said Pennsylvania might well be called "the forgotten state." He was reminded by one of the government functionaries that the PWA had appropriated three million dollars for a reservoir on the Tygart River in West Virginia, which would help to control stream flow in the Monongahela. That remark pulled the trigger which released Mr. Gavin's pent up anger, and he said some bitter things. They needed to be said.

Mr. Gavin pointed to the twenty-two million dollar appropriation for flood control in the Muskingum valley in Ohio, to a forty million dollar appropriation for another project in another state, to a fifty million dollar grant for something else elsewhere, and so on. In conclusion he wanted to know if Pennsylvania was being punished for having gone for Hoover.

We do not think Pennsylvania is being punished for having gone for Hoover. We think it has been "forgotten" at Washington because it has no outstanding, forceful leaders.

By far the most vigorous of our Congressmen in pressing the claims of this section is a new member, serving his first term, a man who did not come to America from his native Austria until after the World War, and who was only recently naturalized—Congressman Henry Ellenbogen.

Since the PWA turned down the local flood control program, Congressman Clyde Kelly has introduced a bill directing the government to do the work as a regular project.

The Chamber of Commerce, to which we might reasonably have looked for leadership, has been sadly deficient. At a time when great projects involving millions were at stake it has been preoccupied with trade promotion excursions in the Tri-State District and things of equally petty caliber.

Joseph F. Guffey and M. L. Benedum, of whom so much was expected, have failed to produce results.

We may expect to remain "forgotten" until we acquire some leaders who will command attention.

Abolish Townships

Money Can Be Saved for the Taxpayers by Dispensing with Needless Administrative Districts

The Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce has sent a circular letter to its members, saying that Harrisburg is buzzing with what is apparently a well-founded report that another special session of the Legislature will be called, before May, to consider proposals for local government reforms which will reduce administrative costs.

The chamber calls upon civic and commercial bodies to post themselves on the desirability of abolishing second-class townships, consolidating school districts, and integrating county government into well defined departments. Consideration is also asked for many other proposals of like purpose.

The Sun-Telegraph indorses most of the suggestions. Many of our minor administrative units such as second-class townships are an inheritance from oxcart days for which there is no further necessity. They can be abolished to advantage.

The Play's the Thing

Amateur Dramatic Organizations Are Giving Pittsburgh an Abundance of Good Entertainment

Pittsburghers who lament the fact that stage plays are now rarely given in the downtown theaters need not go without that kind of dramatic entertainment.

The movies have not been permitted to abolish the drama. On the contrary, the play is still the thing, as a dozen or more amateur theatrical companies in various parts of the city bear witness.

These reflections have been evoked by the splendid performance of Chekhov's "Cherry Orchard" by drama students at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. They have been playing to audiences that had the little theater well filled long before it was time for the curtain to rise.

The Tech actors and many others who are appearing in little theaters in the suburbs are almost of professional quality.

Adequately supported, our little theater groups, already not to be disdained, can be confidently counted upon to improve steadily the character of their performances.

Wings for All Chillun

But There Will Be No Rush To Try the Munich Contraption.

Flying has become simpler, but not yet simple enough for most of us. It means getting a technical education, knowing all about batteries and gadgets—then applying for a license. After that one must get a leather coat, boots and goggles. Then your flying contraption is parked 'way out somewhere in the suburbs. It is all most unhandy.

A Munich engineer purposes to dispense with all this. He is perfecting a pair of wings that you can strap about you in a jiffy. A few graceful arm gestures, and up you go, like a swallow. Icarus and Lilienthal tried it, though not with success. But this was before science made graphs of the wing movements of birds.

Every one has had the dream of flying. May not this denote the survival of a prehistoric instinct, when men flew around as did the bat or the ornithorhynchus? A great number of birds, also, are not so slick in the air as they used to be. The duck-billed platypus, the auk, penguin, for example. They prefer the ground to this self-propulsion business. So shall we, until those Munich wings are fixed up fool proof.

A Good Cornerstone

"I believe in a Federal Department of Education with a secretary at its head who shall be a member of the President's Cabinet."

This declaration was made by one of America's most distinguished educators—William F. Russell, Ph. D., LL. D., dean of Teachers' College at Columbia University and formerly a member of the National Advisory Committee on Education.

At one time Dean Russell was OPPOSED to the idea of a Federal Department of Education. He believed in "State autonomy" until he learned that "we now have the WORST KIND of Federal control—a plural ministry of education and more than $135,000,000 of Federal money going into education."

Further explaining his altered attitude some while ago, Dr. Russell said:

"It was difficult for me to come to this belief . . . 'It was my fear of national control and my admiration of local liberty that made me doubt the wisdom of a Federal Department of Education; but I served two years as a member of the National Advisory Committee on Education (appointed by President Hoover to study the situation) and I saw that I MUST CHANGE MY MIND . . .

"I hope that we can have a Department of Education and a Secretary of Education to give advice, to collect information, to conduct research and to give intellectual leadership.

"I hope that he will have cabinet status. Then his advice will be heard."

The Hearst newspapers have long advocated such a Federal Department and now urge it as something for THE PRESENT CONGRESS TO ESTABLISH.

Our structure of government—a democracy without a Federal Department of Education—is like a public building without its essential cornerstone.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Diary: Up and a screed from Gerald Stanley Lee, whose whereabouts I recently inquired, and he's hibernating on Mount Tom. Also a note from Charles G. Dawes in elaborate eulogy of Will Sibley, who like E. W. Howe, made himself nationally known writing from a small town.

So dragging my wife to see a batch of Charlie Russell canvases, buying one, and pecking out my daily joule. Later to a tea and met Jack Howard's fiancee Barbara Balfe, very lovely. And talked to Will and Inez Haynes Irwin. Will Hearst, Jr., and his brother Randolph, Esther Barton and Kate Rice.

Dinner with the Will Hamiltons and Isaac and Frances Marcosson there, having decided not to live in rural France after all. And Hamilton and Marcosson recalled their strange meeting in a Moscow hotel 10 years ago. Another story. Home and a wicker of azalea Will Rogers' Betty sent.

Guests at large cocktail parties are now carefully appraised at the door. At many affairs the crashers were almost outnumbering the invited, and what could people of charming manners do? Walter Chrysler, Jr., launched the innovation by having two checkers in cut-aways at a desk inquire names of arrivals to compare with the official list.

It was a grand opening night reception they gave Blanche Bates and Frances Starr — especially Miss Bates who could have run off with the show if she desired—when they appeared in support of Katharine Hepburn. Each litrally stopped the show for several minutes upon making an entrance. Miss Hepburn's play was no great shakes, but she did exploit that tragic husk—the husk of a child after a long cry—magnificently.

Phil Plant is now the regular occupant of Jimmy Walker's favorite table at the right of the Casino entrance. In more sedate years he has grown to resemble Tony Biddle, minus the sprinkle of gray hairs and gates-ajar collar. Intimates say the young millionaire's playboy period is behind him. He even ripped out the private bar of his upper Fifth avenue mansion. He enjoys the bright lights, but only as a rather pious onlooker.

Patent leather Russian half-boots for evening dress, so popular among the British set in the Orient, have reached New York's last-word elegantees. They are affected by such disciples of "sartor resartus" as Cole Porter and Ben Finney. They not only have the cowboy high heel click, but revive the old-fashioned bookjack in the nobby shops.

Earl Carroll escorting 17-year-old twins from Pittsburgh, kept a Casino dinner party in high gear the other evening. They were so alike that after being sent from the room at frequent intervals to return to different chairs the guests could not identify them. And—it is something for Bob Ripley—when they became embarrassed they blushed in unison.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Does It Pay to Be Square in a Crooked World?

Is there any use in being honest when all the world's on the make? And is, or isn't, the fact that "everybody's doing it" a valid excuse for being a heel?

Strange questions? No; natural and tragically common ones. And the man who asks them today will only echo doubts that have come to you and me as we faced this mad world's cruelty and greed. In just such bitter sentences we, too, have challenged the old laws.

"WHAT GOOD DOES IT DO," this man cries, "TO WORK YOUR HEAD OFF, TRYING TO BE HONEST WHEN EVERYONE ELSE IS OUT TO GRAB ALL THEY CAN, ANY WAY THEY CAN? Why turn down a chance to 'get yours' when everybody else is taking every chance that comes their way? You don't get any credit for it if you do. You just come out with less than the other fellow has, and get called a fool for doing it.

"If I don't take advantage of other people, they'll take advantage of me, and call me an 'easy mark.' I used to believe in working hard myself, and turning down too much change if it happened to be handed me. I used to refuse to take slightly shady 'rake-offs' in business. But since I've had more experience with people, I've changed my ideas. SINCE EVERYBODY'S DOING IT, I'M GOING TO GRAB FOR WHAT I CAN GET, TOO.

"Business men, right and left, are 'skinning' folks. So are politicians. But does the world look down on them for it? It does not. It says, admiringly, 'Look! There's John Doe! He has a million!' And then it proceeds to kow-tow to the said John Doe, and hand him a few extra slabs of cake.

"So—what's the use? What's the practical value of all this 'idealistic' stuff that's being handed out so freely? Why should I be honest, when nobody else is?

Does it pay to be square? It certainly does! It's the only thing that does pay. And even if it were true that "nobody else is honest," it still would pay.

But it isn't true. There are millions of honest people—people who play fair in spite of every temptation and handicap. If that were not so—if there had not been, since the beginning, that dream of decency in our muddled hearts—the race would have ceased long since, for we would all have cut each other's throats.

But regardless of that—regardless of how the other fellow does or doesn't act—an honest life DOES PAY, even though it often shows a loss in the bank balance. For we do not live by our bank balances.

WE LIVE BY OUR SPIRITUAL BALANCES.

No, that isn't a religious talk—"idealistic stuff.' It's a plain fact, as simple and real as an engineering estimate, or a chemical formula.

WE DO NOT LIVE WITH THINGS. WE DO NOT LIVE WITH PEOPLE. WE DO NOT EVEN LIVE IN THIS WORLD WHICH OUR SENSES CONTACT. WE ACTUALLY LIVE INSIDE OURSELVES—WITH OUR OWN THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS, OUR OWN PRIDE OR SHAME, COURAGE OR TERROR, LOVE OR HATE, HOPE OR DESPAIR.

Our own thoughts and feelings. These are the only things we really feel, the only things that really warm or chill us, hurt or help us. And that isn't true only of wise men or good men; it's true of all of us, regardless of our position or program.

WE ALL REALLY LIVE INSIDE OURSELVES, WITH NO COMPANION SAVE OUR OWN THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS—AND NOTHING AND NO ONE CAN MAKE THAT INNER LIFE BEARABLE IF THE THINGS WE PUT INTO IT ARE UGLY AND ABOMINABLE.

Why doesn't dishonesty pay, even if it does pad the bank balance; even if all our associates are dishonest? That's why. Because we can't live with our profits or pals. We must live with our feelings about them.

And, no matter how low we are, we all have one feeling about dishonesty—WE KNOW IT'S ROTTEN AND IF WE'RE DISHONEST WE MAY RIDE IN LIMOUSINES, WE MAY EAT FROM GOLD PLATES AND PARTY WITH BILLIONAIRES, BUT WE LIVE—REALLY LIVE — WITH THE SENSE OF OUR OWN ROTTENNESS.

And why does honesty pay, even though it may leave us poor and lonely? For exactly the same reason. We live with our feelings—and honesty is a swell feeling! IT'S THE ONLY FEELING THAT IS FIT TO LIVE WITH!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

History Repeating Itself Across the Pacific

By James T. Williams, Jr.

HISTORY in Japan today is repeating the history of Japanese-American relations during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt. Now, as then, a Japanese war party is inciting the people of Japan against the people of the United States.

Throughout the year 1907, a controversy was in progress over the question of Japanese immigration and the treatment of Japanese children in the public schools of California.

Writing from Oyster Bay to Secretary Root on July 13 of the year, President Roosevelt told in these words of his plan to send a battle fleet of the Navy around the world:

"I am more concerned over the Japanese situation than almost any other. Thank heaven we have the Navy in good shape. It is high time, however, that it should go on a cruise around the world. In the first place I think it will have a pacific effect to show that it can be done. Second, and in the next place, after talking thoroughly over the situation with the Naval Board, I became convinced that it is absolutely necessary for us to try in time of peace to see just what we could do in the way of putting a big battle fleet in the Pacific and not make the experiment in time of war."

Japanese Admiral Visits Roosevelt

ABOUT that time, a Japanese admiral visited Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and of their talk, through an interpreter, the President afterward wrote:

"He (the admiral) kept insisting that the Japanese must not be kept out save as we keep out Europeans. I kept explaining to him that what we had to do was to face facts; that if American laboring men came in and cut down the wages of Japanese laboring men, they would be shut out of Japan in one moment; and that Japanese laborers must be excluded from the United States on economic grounds. I pointed out that under our present treaty we had explicitly reserved the right to exclude Japanese laborers. I talked freely of the intended trip of the battleship fleet through the Pacific, mentioning that it would return very shortly after it had been sent out there; at least in all probability. How much impression I made upon him, I can not say."

After the battle fleet had completed its triumphant trip around the world, Roosevelt was no longer in doubt that this was the most important service to peace rendered by his administration. He said to his biographer, the late Joseph B. Bishop:

"This demonstration of combined courtesy and strength nowhere received a heartier response than in Japan, which is both strong and courteous. I regard the Pacific as home waters just as much as the Atlantic, and regard it as essential to find out in time of peace whether or not the fleet could be kept there bodily. I determined on the move without consulting the cabinet . . . a council of war never fights, and in a crisis, the duty of a leader is to lead and not take refuge behind the generally timid wisdom of a multitude of counsellors."

Strong Opposition In Congress

THERE was tremendous opposition in Congress against the fleet going to the Pacific at that time. In fact the chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs served notice that it could not go because Congress would refuse to appropriate the money. The reply of Roosevelt to this challenge of authority as commander-in-chief was the announcement that he had enough money to send the fleet as far as the Pacific and that it would remain there and not return to the Atlantic unless Congress appropriated enough money for the return trip. That ended all further opposition in Congress.

More than one European government expected that Japan would attack our battle fleet while it was on its way around the world. President Roosevelt did not expect such an attack, but he thought it possible. Afterwards he said that his point of view at the time the fleet sailed was "that if the Japanese attacked it, it was a certain sign that they intended to attack us at the first favorable opportunity."

The real reason Roosevelt sent the fleet around the world is told in one of his letters in which he said:

"I had been doing my best to be polite to the Japanese, and finally had become uncomfortably conscious of a very, very slight undertone of veiled truculence in their communications in connection with things that happened on the Pacific slope, and I finally made up my mind that they thought I was afraid of them."

Human Side of the News

The New Heir to the Throne of Japan—The Passing of the Dalai Lama

By Edwin C. Hill

IN the nursery of the Imperial Palace of Tokio lies a mite of humanity all in white silk, like a tiny image of ivory, with a sword at its side. The air is clamorous with songs of thanksgiving and with prayers to the gods. For the mite of humanity dressed all in white silk, with the sword by its side, is the newly-born heir to the imperial throne, and 66,000,000 Japanese are wild with joy.

Were that all—if the news involved no more than the birth of a man child to the Emperor and Empress of Japan, and the pride and happiness of a people to whom their Emperor is god as well as king—the event could be dismissed briefly enough. But glance once more at the babe in the cradle and note the sword at its side. It was placed there by the Emperor father, Hirohito, as a symbol of life-force, and an age-old charm against evil.

But in these days that length of polished steel lying against the tender skin of a new born baby has a significance so ominous that the consequences can scarcely be measured. For Japan today is a nation charged with dynamite, capable of an explosion, at almost any hour, which might shake the earth.

Japan is a nation with her back to the wall, desperate to the point of risking national suicide if denied what she firmly believes is due to her crushing necessities. It is not merely the imperial baby she thinks about—the royal child in white silk with the shining sword by its side, her next Emperor if he lives—but of the 2,000,000 babies that are born every year with no work for them to do, no ground for them to till, no place for them to go.

The Japanese have been rebuked and excoriated for their violent penetration of the Asiatic mainland; for attacking Shanghai; for seizing Manchuria; for breaking through the Great Wall of China. The League of Nations sought to chastise them, even mildly, and Japan walked out of the League of Nations—as significant an incident as has taken place in many years, if one believes that Japan is in no mood for being hectored, and is determined to resist any interference with her program of territorial expansion.

Japan Struggling With Congestion

CRITICISM and attack have been leveled against the Japanese government, and especially against the militarists, but one may fairly ask if all of it has been reasonable and just. Putting the fact as simply as it can be put, Japan is a small country which is full up, standing room only. It has the highest birth rate in the world and the lowest death rate. The number of babies born last year was just under 2,200,000. The net increase in population was about a million. That has been going on for years and must go on for years.

The population of the United States, with 125,000,000 people, increases about 800,000 a year. Japan with 66,000,000 adds a surplus of a million babies to that population every year that passes. Even vast India, with a population of some 350,000,000, increases at an average rate of only about 380,000 a year. So one can easily see the terrific human problem Japan is up against. Every year a million new mouths to feed in an over-crowded, over-cultivated little island.

There is no room for them on the farm, for the tiny farms, only two and seven-tenths acres in extent, support, every one of them, at least six people already. There is no room in the towns and the factories. Emigration laws bar them from every western country. Asia is their only hope and salvation.

Of all international problems, this one of Japan's desperate population and economic problem seems least understood in this country. Japan is made of very explosive material. If this material is either shocked or fired it will explode in the face of the world. A poor, proud, heavily-armed nation can scarcely be expected to starve in saintly submission in its own back yard.

Dalai Lama's Death Stirs Asia

THE passing of the Dalai Lama, high priest of the Buddhist faith, and the selection of his successor, who will be the child born at the very second of the Dalai Lama's death, is an event of tremendous importance to 200,000,000 human beings in the Far East. To all Asia it has a significance and importance comparable, in America, to the sudden death of a President of the United States, or in the Catholic world, to the unexpected demise of the successor of St. Peter.

It grips the imagination, this translation of the living Buddha to that vast ocean of peace called Nirvana. Sometimes, perhaps, it is worth while to step aside from the turmoil and clamor of our Western world, from the consideration of material things, to glance for a moment upon a race of mankind whose religious leaders everlastingly, day and night, strive to think their way into the heart of things, back to the place from whence their souls have sprung.

Men who come so close to the heart of Nature that they perceive the secrets of what, to the Western World, are immutable laws; men who can halt Time in its course, suspend the law of gravitation, defy flame and ice and become brother to the birds of the air and the beasts of the field—the holy men of Tibet who have learned the secrets of mind over matter.

Nowhere does one come closer to such men of pure faith and unselfish devotion than in Rudyard Kipling's magnificent story of "The Miracle of Purun Baghat."
